A striking example of the ordinary smoker's ignorance on the subject of smokes is the popular superstition that a dark looking cigar is stronger than a lighter colored one. Some strong cigars have dark wrappers, but the dark wrapper does not by any means indicate a strong cigar. Dark, gummy tobacco, if thoroughly cured, is the mildest form. Of course if dark tobacco is not thoroughly cured it will be strong, but so will light tobacco, for that matter. Any cigar man will bet you that the dark color is usually, though not always, a sign of a ripe, well cured leaf, which is therefore milder nine times out of ten than the lighter hued leaf. But when it is known that every manufacturer makes both dark and light cigars and that he uses exactly the same blend of filler in both and that the wrapper only constitutes a small fractional part of the cigar it is clearly seen that the shade of the wrapper has little to do with the strength of the cigar. Ask the dealer for a strong cigar. He hands out a dark one, and the imagination does the rest.—Harper's Weekly.

FELL DEAD.

Treasurer of Westinghouse Air Brake Company Dies Suddenly.

Pittsburg, Nov. 24.—John Caldwell, treasurer of the Westinghouse Air Brake company, vice president of the Bank of Pittsburg, and a leading financier of Pittsburg, was found dead in his office at Wilmerding. He had evidently been stricken by heart disease while signing some letters and fell dead in an effort to reach the door to summon help.

Mr. Caldwell was seventy years old. He leaves an estate of more than $1,500,000. He was trustee in many of Carnegie's projects in Pittsburg.

General Saenz Invades Nicaragua on the West.

New Orleans, Nov. 24.—Nicaragua has been invaded on the Pacific side by a large force under command of General Gersan Saenz, and the towns of El Viejo and Shinandega have been captured, according to information received by Dr. Luis Sequeira, consul general of the provisional government.

General Saenz's force is made up mainly of Nicaraguan exiles in Salvador.

DEATH RECORD IS VERY HIGH

Number of Hunters Killed Exceeds That of Other Years.

EXCEPT THAT OF YEAR 1907

Death List So Far Totals Twenty-Eight, With List of Injured Reaching Twenty-seven——In 1907 Fifty-one Persons Were Killed—Woman Fatally Hurt This Year.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 29.—The hunting season in upper Michigan and Wisconsin this year promises to be the most fatal for years to hunters, for already the number killed is equal to the highest figure in many years, with the exception of 1907, the worst on record.

So far the number killed totals 28 and the injured 27. There are still three days of the season, and more fatalities are expected to be recorded before the season ends. Of the total of 28 dead, nine were killed while bird hunting before the deer season began. Most of the others were killed by mistake for a deer by other hunters. In 1907, 51 were killed, but the majority of these were shot when duck hunting.

Among the more prominent persons who lost their lives are Dr. John R. Moore, a well known surgeon for the United States Steel corporation, at Ironwood, and H. L. Bacon, another well known doctor of New London.

One woman was fatally wounded at Calumet, Mich., by the careless handling of a gun by a hunter.

Milwaukee's victim was John Hoelzel, a well known real estate man. No part of the state escaped recording its victims. Perhaps the saddest feature of the open season is the large number of boys killed, either by companions or by their own carelessness. In one case a lad was shot by a younger brother.

Nurse Is Missing.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—Relatives of Miss Ida Batzhoff, a nurse, living in the country near Saginaw, are considerably worried as to her whereabouts. She mysteriously disappeared from her room on Howard street, near Tenth street, last August, and a quiet search has been conducted for her for the past month.

ALABAMA IS VOTING TODAY

Deciding Whether Constitution Shall Embrace Prohibition.

BITTER HAS BEEN CONTEST

Antis Confident Amendment Will Be Defeated by From 10,000 to 20,000. Prohibitionists Accuse Railroads of Aiding Opponents—Women and Children Hold Prayer Meetings at Polls.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 29.—After a bitter campaign of three months, Alabama today is deciding whether or not a prohibition amendment shall be written into the state constitution. Both sides profess to be confident of the results, but it is apparent that the antis are more confident than their opponents. In fact, experienced politicains are predicting the defeat of the amendment by from 10,000 to 20,000 majority. The antis base their prediction on hostility of cities to prohibition and on the fact that the drastic features of the present prohibition law and the way in which it has been enforced has alienated rural voters who were formerly for prohibition.

The "dry" forces, however, claim that they will carry the amendment, though no figures are given.

The fight has divided the state as never before, the division extending into families. The prohibitionists claim that the railroads are aiding the antis in the hope of discrediting Governor Comer, who, in addition to fathering the amendment, has been fighting the railroads ever since he took office. The prohibs also allege that the liquor interests have sent large sums into the state to be used to defeat the amendment in the hope of checking the dry wave in the south.

Congressmen Hobson and Heflin have been on the stump for it.

The women of the state are arrayed for the amendment, as are the preachers. Women and children are at the polls urging men to vote for the amendment. Prayer meetings are also being held at the polling places by Prohibitionists.

BALLINGER'S FIRST REPORT.

Development Through the Private Enterprises His Conservation Policy.

Washington, Nov. 29—A strong recommendation that the public lands and other natural resources shall be held in the control of the federal government, that the land laws be so changed as to prevent further depredations on the public domain and an emphatic declaration of his belief in the policy of conservation briefly summarizes the first report of Richard A. Ballinger as the secretary of the interior, just issued.

Secretary Ballinger's report, it is known, was scrutinized by President Taft before it was given out for publication and reflects the attitude the administration will assume in the matter of conservation. The Taft policy is expressed briefly in this statement taken from Secretary Ballinger's report:

"In this present policy of conserving the natural resources of the public domain while development is the keynote, the best thought of the day is not that development shall be by national agencies, but that wise utilization shall be secured through private enterprise under national supervision and control."

WELLMAN DOUBTS COOK.

Says That His North Pole Story Does Not Ring True.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Walter Wellman, who planned to reach the North Pole by a flight in an airship, has declared, in a prepared statement, that Dr. Frederick A. Cook did not attain the frozen goal.

"To an honest winner I could offer my congratulations," said Mr. Wellman, "but not to one who had cheated in the game."

Concluding, Mr. Wellman says:

"Cook's story is suspicious both in what it does tell and in what it does not tell. He is generally vague and indefinite, but, like most men of his class, altogether too precise at the wrong place. Nowhere does his story ring true.

Mr. Wellman offers a possible explanation of Dr. Cooks story, to the effect that he may have been the victim of some hallucination or mental illness.

HUNT'S WIFE HAS RETURNED

Woman Who Eloped With Russian "Prince" Is In New York.

SHE WAS DETROIT GIRL

Reconciliation May Follow—Father of Young Woman Meets Her In New York—Claims She Was Hypnotized by Man She Ran Away With—Hunt Is Sixty-five, Wife Twenty-eight.

New York, Nov. 29.—Mrs. John Wright Hunt, who deserted her husband, a hotel owner of California, Tex., and the south, and eloped from Paris six months ago with a Russian who called himself Prince Alexandre De Tgherniadief, arrived Sunday by the liner La Touraine, under the name of Mrs. J. W. Harris. She was met at the pier by her father, Mr. Babcock of Detroit, who took her to the Hotel Prince George.

At the pier she would not say whether or not there was a probability of a reconciliation between her husband and herself. When Mr. Hunt arrived here in June from Paris he said he had brought suit for divorce in Paris. When he came back again recently he declared that he had changed his mind and would not divorced his wife. He said at first he had decided to kill the Russian, whom he calls "a mere adventurer," and had hunted for him unsuccessfully for a week. Recent interviews with Mr. Hunt had it that he has finally decided to sue for divorce either in Washington or in Los Angeles, where he owns hotels.

Mr. Hunt is sixty-five and his wife twenty-eight. They were married eight years ago and spent their honeymoon in Europe. Paris had a fascination for the young bride, and she and her husband passed much of their subsequent life there. She became acquainted with the Russian, and, according to her, he hypnotized her. She fled with him on May 24, accompanied by her maid, and went to Marseilles in a motor car, taking a steamer to Italy, and making a tour of Egypt.

Before her departure for Italy Mrs. Hunt consented to see her husband, surrounded by friends of the Russian. She asked him to allow her to divorce him and he refused. Then he made her give up the jewelry he had given to her, and they parted.

DR. COOK THREATENED.

Brother Says Conspirators Said They Would Blow Up Ship and Records.

New York, Nov. 29.—A combing of Manhattan Sunday to find information about the movements of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, and, if possible, something definite as to whether or not he had secretly left America brought no results. But in Brooklyn, William L. Cook, the explorer's brother, who is running a milk depot, told everything worth while about his distinguished brother except the exact street number.

"Dr. Cook is right here in New York city today," said Mr. Cook. "I talked with him today over the telephone. Dr. Cook is in seclusion so that he can write his book in peace. He wants to be free to do that work, and he wants to avoid the conspirators who have not only threatened to destroy his records, but have threatened his life."

"Have you seen those letters?" Mr. Cook was asked.

"I saw letters threatening the doctor's life," was the answer. "There was another letter also sent to Dr. Cook in which the conspirators against him threatened to blow up the ship on which his records were to be sent to Europe."

"Did you see the letter?"

"No, but Dr. Cook told me about it when it was delivered to him."

TO WED WAINWRIGHT.

Mrs. Taft Will Lose Her Secretary, Miss Alice Blech.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Miss Alice Blech, Mrs. Taft's secretary, is to marry Lieutenant Richard Wainwright, Jr., U. S. N., son of Rear Admiral Wainwright. The engagement is announced by her mother, Mrs. Paul Blech. No date for the wedding has been set, but it will take place probably in the spring.

Miss Blech's home is in Alexandria, Va. She was employed in the Bureau of American Republics when Mrs. Taft obtained her services as secretary. She is accomplished as a linguist and is popular.

NIGHT WATCHMAN WAS BADLY HURT

Man In Custody Struck Him and Fled.

Ionia, Mich., Nov. 29.—Nightwatch Earl Alexander attempted to arrest Andy Meirss, a farmer who lives just north of the city, near Stanton Junction. In company with a woman and another man, Meirss had been in the city during the evening, and the officer, after having considerable trouble with him, finally took him in custody on a charge of being drunk.

When they had gone about a block to the north end of Third street, Meirss suddenly pulled from his pocket a large bottle of ammonia. With this he struck the officer a vicious blow on the jaw, felling the latter to the ground. The officer tried to hold his man, who broke away and jumped into his wagon, which the others had brought out, and was driven away. Alexander was taken to a doctor's office and his jaw bone found to have been fractured.

A warrant has been issued, charging Meirss with assault with intent to kill. He was arraigned in court this morning.

Rescues Boys From Flames.

Traverse City, Mich., Nov. 29.—Bursting through a wall of flames, Henry Gauchier saved the life of the four-year-old son of Joseph Lavassar of Provement. The boy, in company with his little brother, had set the barn on fire by playing with matches. Gauchier rescued them. The Lavassar boy was surrounded by flames when Gauchier reached him.

Horse Thief Is Captured.

Saginaw, Mich., Nov. 29.—The thief who made a daring robbery of Dr. G. H. Fuerbringer's horse from in front of his residence did not get far with his booty. He was trailed to Merrill, and Deputy Sheriff Con Rolland of that town captured the thief at a farm house two miles from St. Louis, in Gratiot couty. The man gave his name as John Pope, but it is believed to be fictitious. He is not known here.

Carried Splinter In His Eye.

Flint, Mich., Nov. 29.—Fifteen years following an accident in the northern lumber woods, Herbert Purdy of Attica has just submitted to an operation at Hurley hospital for the removal of a splinter from one of his eyes. Purdy was injured about the face and head at the time of the accident, but seemed to suffer no ill effects from the wound on his eye, and the sight of it never has been impaired until just lately.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Forrest, the seventeen-year-old son of E. M. Barr, a leading merchant of Potterville, was accidentally shot in the abdomen while hunting rabbits in company with his cousin, Sherman Walker of Detroit. Sherman's gun was accidentally discharged. The wounded boy will recover.

John Myers, a farmer south of Kalamazoo, has engaged attorneys and declared he would no longer permit balloon chasers on his land. He will ask the court for an injunction. Following balloon ascensions at Oakwood park, from 400 to 500 persons chased every balloon across his farm.

Carroll Bird, eleven years old, son of Dr. W. G. Bird of Flint, is likely to lose the sight of one of his eyes as a result of a boyhood game which he and two other lads, William and Johnston Bates, were having. With bows and arrows, the lads were playing "deer hunting," when one of the arrows struck young Bird in the eye.

In excavation work in Cadillac a human hand was unearthed. It was in a fair state of preservation. Quickly the story of a horrible murder was abroad in the city. Reporters and police scented a ghastly crime. The excitement lasted but a short time as a man happened along who, several years ago, buried the hand, following amputation by a local surgeon.

Edward Hennessy of Kalamazoo showed no gratitude to a kind-hearted minister of the gospel when the latter lifted him out of a mud hole where he had fallen while in an intoxicated condition, but on the other hand struck the minister a fearful blow in the face, rendering him unconscious. Rev. Garret Hondeling was the unfortunate preacher.

KILLS HER FOE OF 20 YEARS "The most merciless enemy I had for 20 years," declares Mrs. James Duncan, of Haynesville, Me., "was Dyspepsia. I suffered intensely after eating or drinking and could scarcely sleep. After many remedies had failed and several doctors had given me up I tried Electric Bitters, which cured me completely. Now I can eat anything. I am 70 years old and am overjoyed to get my health back again." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Kidney Trouble, Lame Back, Female Complaints, it is unequaled. When you have a cold the first thing to do is to have the bowels move. Do not take anything that may constipate—and most old fashioned cough cures do constipate. Try Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It drives the cold from the system by a free yet gentle action of the bowels; it stops the cough, it is pleasant to take. Children like it. Sold by all dealers.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very, very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to sooth and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself and see! Sold by all dealers.

"Why are there so many divorces?" asks the New York World. Why, its because married people fuss so much.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the week or ailing nerves of the orhans", said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve". When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days' test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"But the authorities! It will be prison."

"I am sufficiently armed for any event. It all depends upon your courage."

"Oh, if you take that tone," said O'Mally, coloring, "why, the thing is done. No one can call me a coward."

"I shan't desert you in a strait like this," remarked Worth quietly. "Only I think La Signorina rather cruel to force such a situation upon us when it was entirely unnecessary."

"It is agreed, then," continued La Signorina, "that tomorrow we depart for Florence as the Principessa di Monte Bianca and suit?"

* * * * * * *

It is in early morning that one should discover the Piazza San Marco. Few travelers, always excepting the Teutonic pilgrims, are up and about. The doves are hungry then, and they alight on your hands, your arms, your shoulders and even your hat. In a moment they are fluttering about you like an autumn storm of leaves, subsiding quickly.

It was such a picture Merrihew and Hillard, his guide, came upon the morning following their arrival. They had not visited it during the night. They had, with the usual impatience of men, gone directly to the Campo Santa Maria Formosa for the great reward. They had watched and waited till near midnight, but in vain.

Suddenly Hillard stopped. He gave a sharp exclamation and darted to one side to grasp the arm of a neat little woman who was buying corn. It was Bettina. But the maid refused absolutely to reveal the hiding place of her mistress, La Signorina, and Kitty.

Bettina, strongly tempted, finally refused the bribe. She threatened to call the carabinieri, moreover, if Hillard followed her.

Hillard rejoined Merrihew, discouraged.

As they passed out of the quadrangle a man accosted them. It was Giovanni, with a week's growth of beard on his face, his shoes out at the toes.

"Follow me," he said softly.

He led them through tortuous streets, over canal after canal, toward the Campo San Angelo. He came to a stop before a dilapidated tenement. The three mounted the dusty, worn stairs of stone to the third landing. Giovanni opened a door and bade them enter.

Seated by the window which overlooked the little canal, was a young woman. Her hands lay passively in her lap, and her head was lowered.

"You have found her!" whispered Hillard, a great pity swelling his heart.

At the sound she turned her head. Her face, thin and waxen, was still beautiful, ethereally beautiful, but without color. She was perhaps three and twenty.

"I have brought an old friend to see you," said Giovanni.

She stood up.

"We are going back to the Sabine hills, Enrichetta and I." The old man rubbed his hands joyously. "Eh, carissime?"

"Yes, father," with a faint smile.

"I found her," he said in English, the chords in his throat standing out. "And, mother of Christ, how I have suffered! She was dancing. She had to sit at tables and drink with the men—that or the Seine. When she saw me she gave a great cry and fell. She has not been like herself, but that will pass away in time. Now she sits in silence and broods. I went to the Italian ambassador. He heard my story in full. He wrote personally to the king. Today I am free. I have had to walk from Milan almost. I had little money. That letter of credit—so you call it—is with my cousin in Sorrento."

"And the man?" Hillard could not refrain from putting this question.

Giovanni looked down. "The signor told me never to speak of that again."

"So I did," replied Hillard. "But all is changed now.

"Go back to your hills with your daughter and leave vengeance in the hands of God. Forget this man who has wronged you. Forget."

"If he does not cross my path and if she lives. I have suffered too greatly to forgive and forget. I promise not to seek him."

The old man went down to the street with them. They were so kind. He hated the thought of losing them. They waved their hands cheerily and vanished from sight. They never saw Giovanni again, yet his hand was to work out the great epoch in Hillard's destiny.

CHAPTER XV.

THE ARIA FROM "IL TROVATORE."

"SHALL we take a look into the Campo Formosa again tonight?" asked Merrihew, stepping into the gondola.

"It will be a waste of time. Bettina will have warned them. What's the Italian coming to, anyhow? She refused a hundred francs. But I can see that Mrs. Sandford had a hand in this latest event. She has probably written that we might look for them in the Campo."

"To the barges of the troupes!" said Hillard to Achille.

In the great canal of San Marco the scene was like a water carnival. Hundreds of gondolas, with bobbing lights, swam slowly round the barges of the serenaders, who, for the most part, were fallen operatic stars or those who had failed to attain those dizzy heights.

What was that? Hillard was no [illegible]

From a gondola on the far side of the barge, standing out of the press and just beyond the radiance of the lanterns, came a voice which had a soul in it, a voice which broke into song for the pure joy of it—clear, thrilling—a voice before which the world bows down. The prima donna in the barge was clever; she stopped. The tenor went on, however, recognizing that he was playing opposite, as they say, to a great singer. Hillard's heart beat fast. That voice! There could not be another like it. And she was here in Venice!

Merrihew understood now.

"Follow!" commanded Hillard. "Ten lire if you can come up alongside that gondola. Can you see the number?"

"It is 152, signor—Pompeo. It will be a race."

At each stroke Merrihew swung forward his body. The end of the race came sooner than any one expected. A police barge nosed round an ell. By the time Pompeo was off again the ferrule of the pursuing gondola scraped past Pompeo's blade. Pompeo called, and Achille answered. There was a war of words, figure of a dog, name of a pig. Achille was in the wrong, but 10 lire were 10 lire.

"Signorina," said Pompeo, boiling with rage, "shall I call the police?"

"No, Pompeo," said his solitary passenger.

"To the Campo, Pompeo. Mr. Hillard, will you kindly follow? I would speak to you alone, since there is no escape."

The way to the Campo Formosa was made without further incident.

The gondolas became moored. Hillard jumped out and went to assist La Signorina, but she ignored his outstretched hand.

"What is it you wish?" she asked.

"One look at your face," he answered simply.

She slowly removed the veil. Then, for the first time, he looked upon the face of this woman who had burdened his dreams. The face was not like any he had conjured. It seemed to him that Vecchio's—Paola Vecchio's—Barbara had stepped down from her frame—beauty, tranquil, flawless beauty. A minute passed. He was incapable of speech; he could only look.

"Well?" she said in the same expressionless tone.

"Let us begin at the beginning," he replied.

"Since this is to be the end."

"Why did you permit me to dine with you that memorable night?"

"A regrettable impulse."

"And why, after all had come to an apparent end—why did you send me that mask?"

"It is unanswerable. Truthfully I do not know."

"Who is that man—the Italian with the scar?"

"I will not answer that."

"'A lady's Grace of Mary, that is troll'"

"[illegible] do you say that?"

"I am only quoting the man with the scar. Those were the words he used in regard to you."

"Perhaps he is right. Perhaps I am not a lady according to his lights." But she laughed.

"Do not laugh like that. What you are or have been or might have been to him is nothing to me. Only one fact remains clear, and that is I love you."

"No, Mr. Hillard, you are only excited. I may be a fugitive from the law."

"I do not believe it."

"There may be scars which do not show," she faltered—"in the heart, in the mind. I am sorry, terribly sorry. Heaven knows that I meant no harm. Forget me!"

"Forget you! Tell me what prevents friendship between us."

"You say you love me. Is that not answer enough? Give up all idea, all thought, of me. You will only waste your time. Come, is your love strong enough to offer a single sacrifice?"

"Not if it is to give you up. Oh, do not worry about persecution! I shall only seek to be near you."

"Good night," she said, "and goodby!" She wound the veil round her face, took half a dozen steps, halted and turned, then went on into the dark.

* * * * * * *

The Villa Ariadne rested upon a small knoll half a mile or more north of and above Fiesole, from which the panoramic beauty of Florence was to be seen at all times, glistening in the sun, glowing in the rain, sparkling in the night.

Life ran smoothly enough at the Villa Ariadne. La Signorina at the very last moment surrendered to the entreaties of Kitty. She agreed not to pass herself off as the princess. Among themselves each played the role originally assigned. La Signorina seemed to enjoy the farce as much as any one. It was a great temptation not to steal a look into the marvelous chests and sideboards, bulging as they knew with priceless glass and silver and linen and laces. But La Signorina each day inspected the seals and uttered solemn warnings.

They had now lived in the Villa Ariadne for two weeks, a careless, thoughtless, happy go lucky family.

Today was warm and mellow. On the stone bench by the porter's lodge hard by the gate sat the old Florentine and O'Mally. From some unknown source O'Mally had produced a concierge's hat and coat, a little moth eaten, a little tarnished, but serviceable.

"Pietro," said O'Mally, "I've got an idea. If any tourists come today I propose to show them around the [illegible]"

TECUMSEH BAPTIST MEN'S BANQUET

Held Friday Evening Nov. 26, in Church Parlors.

There is an organized Men's class of 40 members in connection with the Sunday school of the First Baptist church. They have their meetings every Sunday in the parlors of the church during the Sunday school hour. Their plan is to make out a program for the quarter indicating the subject for discussion and the leader to open the discussion.

The class planned a banquet to which the men of the church and congregation were invited. Seventy-six men responded and partook of an excellent dinner served by the committee from the Ladies' Aid society.

Following this, a program of toasts and music was given and it proved to be an interesting and enthusiastic one. Dr. L. G. North, the president of the class, acted as toast-master. The doctor had the matter well in hand, and his remarks were both witty and wise.

Dr. W. B. Hartzog, the pastor of the church, responded to a brief toast on "A new thing under the Sun, organized Men's classes from Pastor's Point of View." He said when he was called on to speak five minutes only, it reminded him of an epitaph on a tomb stone, erected in memory of a child that had lived only five, days the epitaph read, "If I was so soon to be done for, what on earth was I begun for."

Four years ago, when Marrian Lawrence, Inter-National Secretary of Inter-National association, published his great work on how to conduct a Sunday school, nothing was said about organized men's classes, except that he expressed a hope that such efforts would be put forth.

At present there are nearly 2,000 classes in the land. The several denominations have their Men's Brotherhood classes and in this way create a social circle for men.

Rev. W. R. Curtis of Rollin, Mich., responded to the topic, "A Yankee in the South." He related many interesting incidents of his experience when evangelizing in the South.

Mrs. R. S. Moore rendered a solo, "The Maiden's Wish."

A. Q. Howard spoke to the topic, "Why men should be in Sunday school."

Mrs. Charles Ruthruff sang "my First Love."

E. I. May, County Y. M. C. A Secretary, responded to the toast, "Things as I see them." He discussed men's work as he sees it in his travels about the country.

Mrs. R. S. Moore and B. J. Pulver rendered a duet entitled, "Silent Night."

F. W. Boswell, Secy. of the Adrian Y. M. C. A., gave an interesting address on, "What Men can Do."

Clarence A. Montgomery.

Clarence Montgomery passed away Sunday morning at five o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lowry after a long illness due to tuberculosis. Deceased was 26 years old. He leaves a widow who was formerly Miss Miss Sadie Lowry, and one sister Mrs. Ella Thomas.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the house Rev. Dunning officiating. The remains were laid to rest at Brookside.

The Gubernatorial Contest.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 29.—There are no additons to the four announced candidates for the republican nomination for governor. Judge Montgomery is devoting his time to his official duties but his campaign matters are being looked after by Ex-Senator Brown to collect something like $4,000,000 in taxes, dating back nearly a half century, and which has been drawing to a focus for years in this legal battle. In opposition to this suit the railway has a case started in Wayne county to collect some $9,000,000 from the state for the loss of its charter.

During the term of Justice Charles Blair, of the supreme court, as attorney general, this suit for the collection of taxes was instituted. It has once been in the supreme court on demurrer. For the state, Attorney General Bird, T. E. Barworth, of Jackson, and Otto Kirchner, of Detroit, are appearing, while the railway interests are being looked after by Henry Russell, Henry M. Campbell and O. E. Butterfield. It is expected that fully a month will be required to try the case.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

The President's official family, as his Cabinet is called, is back in Washington and busy in the preparation of the several reports for Congress. It is to be understood that there will be a rigid cutting down of expenses.

The postmaster-general has announced his intention to make the Post Office, as far as possible, non-expensive to the Government. He, however, cannot do this without legislation. The Post Office is the greatest common carrier in the world, but in the United States, the cream of carrying profits is skimmed by the express companies, leaving the Post Office department only the skimmed milk. The Post Office department should be in this country, as it is in other countries, a source of profit to the Government. There are thousands of city carriers and rural carriers, who, if the United States had a parcels post law, like other civilized and even semi-civilized countries, could be used without additional expense to deliver small packages, and thus be of incalculable service to the people, and pay through the Post Office, a revenue to the Government.

The Secretary of the Navy has a program of economy, which it is hoped is not merely missionary, but he will certainly have opposition from Senators Hale of Maine and McHenry of Louisiana and other in his efforts to wipe out utterly useless and expensive Navy Yards, in ports that the ships of the United States Navy cannot enter, and which have been useless since the the discontinuance of shallow draft wooden war vessels.

The dramatic version of Bertha M. Clay's beautiful well written novel, "Her Dark Marriage Morn" is drawing full houses entour. It is a strong soul stirring story told in a charmingly fascinating way by a company of practical players. It is a play that reaches the heart and touches the soul. It holds an appeal to the men as well as the women, and its success lies in the directness with which the whole theme is treated. A triumph of stagecraft and deserves all the success and praise it has received. W. F. Mann presents "Her Dark Marriage Morn" for your approval at the Bradley Opera House on Wednesday, December 1.

A Jackson View of "Option."

Jackson Patriot: The state convention of the Michigan Retail Implement and Vehicle Dealers' association at Flint, Thursday last, voted to hold its next year's convention in Jackson. Detroit extended an invitation and its delegates worked to secure the convention, but a majority of the delegates favored Jackson—because it is a saloonless town.

Such, the Patriot is informed, was the real reason for preferring this city over Detroit. The delegates had the memory of previous conventions in mind when they came to Flint. They were all men of affairs, but the saloons had interfered more or less with the business which the convention set out to accomplish. Without the saloons the social drink, which was sometimes extended to the embarrassment of the work of the convention, was not taken, and the work was better done. And when it came to determining a place for the next convention, the Jackson delegates, Messrs. Reid, Carlton and Hanlon, laid stress on the local optionness of Jackson, and local option was cheered.

The campaign claims of the anti-optionists now sound like ancient myths. One after another the assertions that a city could not prosper without saloons have been disproved. Jackson has prospered without them, and has not found the readjustment and reasonable enforcement of laws difficult with a prosecuting attorney and sheriff disposed to do their duty. One assertion most frequently made was that farmers would not trade in a city where they could not secure drinkables, and that conventions would be out of the question. Farmers are trading here just the same; and now Jackson is chosen for an important convention because of the absence of saloons.

Already the benefits of the no-saloon policy have been abundantly demonstrated.

A Woman that Made England Tremble

THE ACCOUNT OF WHICH WAS KINDLY HANDED US BY MRS. DR. HARDY.

The Woman of America who was Persecuted but Outdid them All at Last.

Tecumseh, Nov. 29. '09.

Dear Mrs. Stacy:

At your request I herewith beg to give you an account of Mrs. Pankhurst's lecture, recently given in Detroit.

We had heard so much of the woman who had made the English government tremble, and caused Premier Asquith to crawl through the Parcels chute in the Postoffice, of the woman, who could assemble a mass meeting, of half a million of people in Hyde Park, that we were naturally a little surprised, when a very slight, little woman stepped onto the platform. So womanly and quiet looking, that one would have thought her mission in life was to preside over nothing more exciting than a tea table.

She is the quietest, softest voiced speaker, I ever listened to. She is not pretty, and I have heard more brilliant orators, but I never yet heard a speaker, who impresses one more, of being in absolute deadly earnest.

Before one is aware of it, she has obtained a hold on one's attention, and one becomes aware that one is in the presence of a great leader, a woman superior to oneself in every way, more unselfish, more daring—one who would sacrifice ALL for the sake of her convictions. The English government may imprison her, they may kill her, they will never silence her, as long as there are wrongs to be righted, for she is the stuff of which martyrs are made.

She told how a woman in England cannot obtain a divorce, even if her husband brings another woman into her own house, she must prove cruelty and non-support as well.

500 women had been imprisoned for merely trying to use their constitutional right, of presenting a petition to the Prime Minister, and then some of the younger people declared:

"We have been imprisoned for doing nothing. If we go to prison again, it will be for doing someething." And they threw a few little stones into Asquith's house, each wrapped in a paper, containing a message.

Mrs. Pankhurst finally found a magistrate willing to allow their case to be carried to a higher court, and now at last they have caught the government, for if the judges are so venal as to decide that the right of Petition has become obsolete, then all Englishmen, as well as all English women, have lost that privilege, and the voters will certainly not sbumit quietly to that loss. If on the other hand, the judges decide that the right of Petition exists, then those 500 women will start damage suits against the government for false imprisonment, hard labor, and degrading punishments, such as tying their hands behind them during the daytime, and in front during the night, feeding them forcibly with a stomach tube, and herding them with the lowest of criminals.

The American public does not know the truth about the work of the militant suffragists. As an instance, it was widely circulated that they had thrown acid into a ballot box. The truth was that two women threw some colouring fluid, (which did not even stain clothes) into the box. Mrs. Pankhurst stated that she did not agree with the proceeding, but that where a number of thousand individuals were engaged in a work of this sort, someone was apt to do something unwise.

The American public also does not realize, that two recognized methods of showing popular displeasure in England, are, pulling down the railings in Hyde Park, and throwing stones through the windows of the Minister's houses. Premier Balfour, himself, told Mrs. Pankhurst "that she would never bring suffrage into the domain of practical politics, until her followers had thrown a few stones" and that, much as they disliked to do so, they had to a small degree, adopted these methods.

No one has been hurt in this Civil War, except the women taking part in it, probably the only instance on record, in a movement of such gigantic proportions.

Not only the women listeners became inspired by her words, but also the men. A lawyer sitting next to me called out: "Why don't you women follow her example?"

My husband said: "That after hearing her, no one, though he might not agree with her, would ever again laugh at the term 'Suffragette,' first given her in derision."

Emeline Pankhurst is a great woman. I can perfectly understand the influence she has, and I know that in the "Civil War," as she calls it, between the Suffragettes, and the government, the Suffragettes will win.

Yours very truly,
Jenny C. Law Harly.

RT. REV. CHAS. WILLIAMS

Makes Tecumseh a Visit and Confirms a Class on Sunday

Monday Evening He Delivered a Lecture at St Peters Church.

Confirmation services were held at St. Peter's Episcopal church Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. Rt. Rev. Chas. D. Williams, bishop of Michigan confirmed a class of five, they were Mrs. John Mahaney, Maud Saul, Carl and Louis Snyder and Grace Prichard. The services were very impressive and fine music was rendered by a choir of twenty voices.

Last evening Bishop Williams delivered a very fine lecture at the Episcopal church. His talk was very entertaining and instructive and the church was crowded.

The subject of the Bishop's talk was on the bringing up of children. He says they must be entertained at home or they will seek entertainment elsewhere and thus they are led to undesirable places.

Following the lecture a reception was given in the parish house which has been furnished and fitted up and dedicated to the young people of the village.

FRANK AVERY

Now Sole Owner of Avery and Co. Grocery

I have purchased the interest of my partner in the grocery business and intend to continue business at the old stand where I have been for more than 19 years.

I take this method of thanking the many people who have favored us with their patronage, and assure the people of Tecumseh and vicinity that I will be thankful for what business they may see fit to give me in the future.

There will be no radical changes in the management. While we shall be ready to extend short credits to worthy people we shall sell goods at cash prices and keep as near to cash prices as it is possible to do and still accommodate many who prefer to pay when they get their pay or at a stated time that we may agree upon.

Absolute spot cash business means a great inconvenience to many people who are good pay. On the other hand long credits mean a great inconvenience to the dealer when he has obligations which must be met.

It is my intention to keep clear, as far as possible, of either of the above difficulties. I will say in connection with this that the book accounts of Avery & Co, are in my hands for collection. If those who are indebted to the firm will pay the same without waiting for a statement, it will be greatly appreciated by me as it will save the unnecessary labor and expense of making and sending out statements.

Again thanking our many friends for past favors, I remain

Yours Truly,
Frank D. Avery.

AMUSEMENTS.

Today the biggest theatrical successes have been dramatized from popular books, so W. F. Mann has selected Bertha M. Clay's much read novel "Her Dark Marriage Morn" as his book play offering to the theatre loving people, because after reading all the successful or best selling ones, he considered this the best. It's a clean cut society comedy drama with a goeat heart interest and sends you home feeling better in body and mind for having seen it. It appeals to both sexes. The dramatization is very close to the lines of the book, many of which are food for thought but still effervescent with bright, snappy comedy. At the Bradley opera house Wednesday, December 1.

Culhanes Comedians closed a weeks engagement in Tecumseh Saturday evening. Each and every one of their plays were good and when they visit Tecumseh another season they will be sure to be greeted by good houses. From here the company went to Ypsilanti.

The next attraction at the Bradley Theatre will be "Her Dark Marriage Morn" which comes here well recommended.

WHAT IS HYOMEI?

You Have Heard About the Catarrh Cure O. A. Wright Guarantees.

HYOMEI is a wonderful antiseptic so powerful that it promptly destroys germ life, yet its action on the mucous membrane is extremely soothing and healing. It relieves catarrh in five minutes; it cures in a few weeks or money back.

It is made chiefly of eucalyptus and eucalyptol taken from the eucalyptus forests of inland Australia. The medical profession knows that eucalyptus is an absolutely certain germ destroyer and with the active principles of eucalyptus as a base Hyomei is made more efficient, pleasant and quick acting by the addition of Thymol, an antiseptic and disinfectant largely employed in the Listerian System. Guaiacol and other important medicinal agents are also included in the Hyomei formula, which, without a doubt is the greatest destroyer of catarrh germs the world has ever known.

Hyomei is a powerful, penetrating antiseptic that is pleasant to use. It does not contain a particle of cocaine, opium or any habit-forming or injurious drug.

No dosing the stomach when you use Hyomei. Just breathe it in through the small inhaler that comes with each outfit. Sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son. $1.00 for complete outfit.

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Residents of Tecumseh Cannot Doubt What Has been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs, from distressing kidney ills, thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Tecumseh, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Tecumseh Kidney sufferers.

Mrs. Charles Stevenson, Wyandotte and Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Sharp, shooting pains across the small of my back were the first symptoms of kidney trouble in my case. My kidneys gradually became disordered and I was very miserable. Being advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I did so and the pains disappeared. For years I had also been distressed by gravel but Doan's Kidney Pills removed this trouble and I have not been bothered since."

Above statement was given on Dec. 10, 1906, and on Dec. 9, 1908, Mrs. Stevenson confirmed it in detail adding that her cure had been permanent. For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

KELLOGG LIKELY THE MAN.

Will Probably Conduct Government's Case Against Sugar Interests.

Washington, Nov. 29.—While neither Attorney General Wickersham nor Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul will discuss the subject, there is good reason to believe that if the department of justice retains special counsel in the prospective cases against the so-called sugar "trust," Mr. Kellogg will be offered the job.

Mr. Kellogg's reputation as a lawyer has been enhanced considerably in administrative circles since the decision by the United States circuit

FLEES TO ENGLAND.

Mme. Steinheil Seeks Refuge From Prying Public.

London, Nov. 29.—Mme. Marguerite Steinheil arrived at the Charing Cross station at 6:35 o'clock Sunday morning from Paris, accompanied by Dr. Mignon. She adroitly avoided the shoal of French and English reporters.

Mme. Steinheil proceeded to the Great Central hotel, where the reporters were prevented from entering.

"I have come to England for protection. The cruelty of the French press was killing me. I am broken down and need solitude and rest. If the English reporters do not leave me alone I shall go to another country, possibly America. People ought to have pity. I do not want anybody but my daughter. I have engaged English counsel to protect me. It is absolutely untrue, the report about my joining the musical profession."

The manager of the Grand Central hotel declined to receive Mme. Steinheil, saying there was no room available, whereupon her sad pilgrimage started again, ending finally at the Midland hotel, where a suite of rooms was arranged.

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.

No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purgative tablets, etc., and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen, then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not new, only we are trying to find new friends for it.

A. A. Feltz, of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found his cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through neighbors or friends; others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from a stomach, liver or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. If you will send your name and address he will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. If it proves itself as he claims then continue the treatment by buying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist, as all of them sell it. Old people, like children, should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouched for with the U. S. government. Also, though a free bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are always guaranteed from the regular bottle bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free test bottle today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand or if you want any medical advice, write to the Doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 300 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

HUNTER WILL DIE.

Shot by Own Gun, Grand Rapids Man Badly Wounded.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 29.—While hunting near Berlin, ten miles from this city, Adam Balke, twenty-five years old, was accidentally shot and will probably die.

In company with two companions, Balke was stalking through the woods in quest of game. In climbing a fence his shotgun was accidentally discharged, the entire charge entering his side just below the heart.

His companions carried him three miles to an interurban car, on which he was brought to this city. The conductor refused to allow the hunters to board the car with their dogs, much against the protests of other passengers on the car. Weak from the loss of blood, the wounded man was forced to make the trip here with strangers.

At a local hospital it was stated Balke could not live.

FRIGHTFULLY INJURED.

Stray Bullet Gouges Out Eyes and Tears Off Nose of Hunter.

Traverse City, Mich., Nov. 29.—John Dalzell, both of whose eyes were gouged out and his nose torn off by a stray bullet while hunting deer near St. Ignace, has been brought home and is now in the hospital in a serious condition.

Dalzell was sitting near a runway when the bullet came out of the woods. Grouping his way through the trees and falling over obstructions, he made his way a mile before he dropped exhausted.

Dan Hines, who was one of the party, heard Dalzell's screams three-quarters of a mile away and found him. Dalzell is a prosperous farmer.

OLD MINE CAVES IN.

Grand Rapids Poles Have Narrow Escapes From Death.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 29.—Members of half a dozen Polish families narrowly escaped death Sunday, when an old gypsum mine on the Butterworth road caved in directly beneath the several shacks in which they were living.

Without warning, the earth began to tremble and crackle shortly after noon. As the shacks began to toss about on their foundations and quake after quake came in rapid succession, the frightened Poles beat a hasty retreat.

The Poles probably owe their lives to their quick action in leaving their homes. When the disturbance had ceased the various shacks had been demolished, and some of them had disappeared completely.

The mine in which the cave-in occurred was worked out and abandoned thirty years ago, but had never been filled.

INDEPENDENT LINES SELL.

Eastern Telephones Now Controlled by Continental Company.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 29.—Control of virtually all of the independent telephone lines in Pennsylvania outside of Philadelphia and Allegheny counties has passed into the hands of the Continental Telephone and Telegraph company of New York, with the purchase of the American Union Telephone company, which has been announced at the headquarters of the American Union company here. The transactions have just been concluded.

The Continental Telephone and Telegraph company controls independent lines in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia, in addition to the Pennsylvania lines acquired by this latest purchase. It recently took over the Interstate Telephone company of New Jersey.

GASOLINE EXPLODED.

Woman So Badly Burned That She Died.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—Flames enveloping her entire body, Miss Emily Love, fifty-two years old, 3007 West Grand Boulevard, was so badly burned that she died at Grace hospital four hours later.

It was another case of a woman's ignorance of the explosive powers of gasoline that cost the life of Miss Love. She sought to clean some linen centerpieces by washing them in gasoline and boiling them afterwards. A moment after she had placed the boiler on the stove a terrific explosion followed. The burning oil spattered all over Miss Love's clothing.

All His Own.

The young man was rather of a bashful nature and had been paying attention to this same young woman for a considerable time without having plucked up courage to put the all important question.

On this particular night, however, he mustered sufficient pluck to ask her how she thought he was progressing with his courting. At the same time his arm stole round her waist.

"Well, Jack," said the girl quietly, "I think you are holding your own at present."

MAY MOVE ARMY POSTS

Dickinson Wants Changes Throughout Amry.

MAKES HIS ANNUAL REPORT

United States Army Now Numbers 76,049—Colonel Booth of Fort Wayne Intimates That Post Near Detroit May Be Taken Away Entirely—Factories Menace Health of Soldiers.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Comprehensive and complete reorganization of the army establishment of the United States is the principal recommendation contained in the annual report of Secretary of War Dickinson for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, just made public.

More officers, closer co-operation with the militia of the various states and a general readjustment of the locations of the various army posts are some of the crying reforms urged upon the attention of congress. The present distribution of the troops of the regular army, in the opinion of the secretary of war, is not only illogical, but offers a serious menace.

At the time of the last reports from the military departments, which were received in October, it was found that the regular army numbered 71,840 men, with 4,209 officers, making a total force of 76,049, a net increase during the year of 3,421. The figures do not include the 3,485 men of the hospital corps.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 2.—If the unofficial, personal opinion of Colonel Booth, commandant at Fort Wayne, is correct, the Detroit Board of Commerce, the common council and the others who are agitating the question of the removal of Fort Wayne from its present site would do well to go slow. Colonel Booth thinks that, judging from the policy of the war department in recent years, concentration is the order of things, and so if the fort is moved at all it will be moved away from Detroit entirely.

He also thinks there is a possibility that, unless the nuisance of smoke and stench from nearby factories is mitigated soon, the department may be compelled to take a hand in the game earlier, and remove the battalion of the Twenty-sixth infantry. The health of officers and men is threatened by present conditions.

FREIGHT TRAINS ALL TIED UP

Strike of Switchmen Involves 65,000 People Directly.

FACTORIES ARE CLOSED DOWN

Knox's Note to Zelaya's Representative Scathingly Arraigns Zelaya Regime—Insurgent Government Virtually Recognized — Execution of Cannon and Groce Brought This On.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 2.—The strike of switchmen on the northern transcontinental lines between St. Paul and the Pacific coast now involves 65,000 people directly and indirectly, and before the strike is adjusted it is believed that 150,000 person will have been affected. Not a wheel is turning on any freight train between St. Paul and Seattle. In Minneapolis three of the big flour mills are closed down for the reason that they cannot receive grain nor ship flour.

At St. Cloud, Minn., the Great Northern has closed its shops, putting 500 men in idleness. At Superior, Wis., the Great Northern closed down its shops and docks, crowding out 350 men. At St. Cloud, in the granite works, 500 men were thrown out of employment because of the uncertainty of the future. From St. Cloud, Wilmer, Fargo, Grand Forks, Jamestown, Minot, Billings, Livingston, Butte and Helena, 165 engine crews were called off.

Move Perishable Goods.

The switchmen have allowed perishable freight to be attached to passenger trains to be taken to terminal stations, but this only applies for a limited time.

This situation is practically the same clear to the coast. The chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen has advised the general managers of all the western railroads if any attempt is made to replace the striking switchmen by non-union men that he will call a strike.

The situation at present is this: That none of the jobbers of Chicago, the Twin cities or Duluth can ship a single article except by express. Not a farmer in the northwest can deliver to the commission houses of the Twin cities except by express. That the prospective Christmas business throughout the northwest on all lines is paralyzed. Milling and manufacturing industries are rapidly being suspended, and the loss in money runs into the hundreds of thousands of dollars every twenty-four hours.

This is the most far reaching and disastrous strike that has occurred in the west in twenty-five years, and the determination on both sides to fight to a finish promises to prolong the struggle for weeks. Members of the interstate commerce commission, business men of St. Paul and Minneapolis and members of the city councils of various cities of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana are preparing to appeal to the railway officials in an effort to settle the strike. All overtures to the striking switchmen have been unavailing, and public sympathy is with them.

Firemen May Quit.

Two thousand three hundred and sixty-four men are directly involved in the strike on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific between St. Paul and the Pacific coast, but they have the backing of 5,000 locomotive firemen, and should the railroads attempt to replace the striking switchmen with non-union men the firemen will refuse to work, and this will tie up the passenger trains on the four northern trans-continental lines.

Telegrams from the northern Minnesota iron range towns, which include a population of more than 175,000, say that if the strike continues for a week there will be a food famine in all of the towns.

Despairing of any possible compromise, Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the Interstate commerce commission, and Charles P. Neill, United States labor commissioner, who came here to act as mediators, have returned to Washington.

Railroad managers are now arranging to import strike breakers. This may be followed by stronger defense measures.

Her Playing.

Mrs. McDuff—This paper says that mice are attracted by music, but I don't believe it.

McDuff—Why not?

Mrs. McDuff—Because I never see any mice around when I play the piano.

McDuff—Well, that's no reason for doubting the paper's statement.

KNOX MAKES CHANGES.

Creates New Post and Establishes New Division In State Department.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Secretary of State Knox has just made several changes with a view to improving the efficiency of the organization of the state department. The post of director of the consular service was created, and Wilbur J. Carr, chief clerk of the department was appointed to the new office. Secretary Knox also established a division of near eastern affairs. Charles F. Wilson, law clerk of the department, was appointed assistant solicitor.

The establishment of a division of near eastern affairs is an extension of the politico-geographical organization of the department. The division of far eastern affairs has been in operation about two years. The division of Latin-American affairs, of which T. C. Dawson, former minister to Chili, has been appointed chief, is now being organized. The division of near eastern affairs will have jurisdiction over diplomatic and political questions arising in the Balkan states, the Ottoman empire and in Asia minor. Evan E. Young of South Dakota, American consul at Salonika, has been selected for duty in the new division.

ATTACH CARLISLE'S HOME

Jewelry Firm Seeks Pay For Diamonds and Jewelry Sold Him.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The Washington home of John G. Carlisle, formerly secretary of the treasury, has been attached by T. Kirkpatrick and Co., Jewelers of New York, for an account of $2,385 worth of diamonds and jewelry which the firm alleges was bought by Mr. Carlisle between Dec. 24, 1906, and Nov. 6, 1908.

ARTISTE.

The attachment grew out of a suit just filed by the jewelry company for the amount named. In the declaration filed it was said that Mr. Carlisle, although a resident of New York, owns the premises attached, 1426 K street, N. W., in this city, and lives either in the Hotel Imperial, the Holland House or at the Manhattan club, in New York.

DROVE FIRE ENGINE!

Man Who Volunteered In York, Pa., Was Fatally Injured.

York, Pa., Dec. 2.—Elias Spangler, a well known contractor of this city, was fatally injured here while driving to a small blaze in the eastern part of the city. The regular driver was not at the engine house when the alarm sounded, and Spangler volunteered to take charge of the engine.

Dashing down East Market street, the horses reached a steep grade and got beyond the control of the driver. Continuing on their wild run, the animals struck an obstruction, and Mr. Spangler was thrown to the ground, the left side of his head being crushed. He was hurriedly taken to the hospital, where it is said that he will die.

SAW HOME BURNING.

Man Near Cassopolis Drops Dead From Sudden Shock.

Cassopolis, Mich., Dec. 2.—Coming unexpectedly on the sight of his home burning, his wife near to death, Oliver Simpson of Porter township dropped dead.

Simpson had been away, and he reached the home while the fire was at its height. Mrs. Simpson had just gotten out of the building. Two sons also survive the deceased.

Still Searching For Son.

St. Charles, Mich., Dec. 2.—Joseph E. Brownell, father of the missing deer hunter, Harry Brownell, arrived here on an important errand from Newberry, and after a few hours' stay returned to the north woods to continue the search for his son, which has kept up unceasingly for over a month. Mr. Brownell has not yet given up hope.

GIVE CHINESE POST TO DENBY

His Name Being Mentioned In Washington Circles.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 2.—According to the Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript, Congressman Edwin Denby is considered in the capital city exceptionally good timber for the post of minister to China. After enumerating in brief several who are said to be under presidential consideration, the Transcript man continues:

"Officials in Washington who have given study to the Chinese situation wonder why it is that the name of Representative Edwin Denby of Detroit has not been more prominently mentioned in connection with the Chinese mission. There is no doubt that as far as intimate knowledge of Chinese commercial affairs and the home and foreign relations of the Chinese are concerned, Mr. Denby is peculiarly fitted for the office of minister. Mr. Taft knows Mr. Denby's qualifications, for they have been called sharply to his attention—needlessly so perhaps, because the president, with all other public men who have been interested in eastern affairs, knows the Denby history, and knows what he has done along certain legislative lines while he has been in congress."

M'CURDY'S WILL VALID

Judge Gives $60,000 Estate to His Family.

Corunna, Mich., Dec. 2.—Judge Searless, sitting for Circuit Judge Miner, held the Hugh McCurdy will invalid and ordered McCurdy's widow to be paid a lump sum of $25,000, instead of the $800 annuity given her in the will.

His decision was based on the grounds that McCurdy was demented when he made the will. As originally made, it left most of the $60,000 estate to a Masonic lodge in Grand Rapids.

John C. McCurdy, a son of the dead man, contested the will and is awarded a third of the estate, while the other two children share equally in the remainder.

According to Fisk, Dudley shot him.

Many Claims For Flats Filed.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 2.—A total of 1,119 claims for St. Clair Flats lands have been filed with the commission appointed to quiet the titles of holders of such property. The commission kept open house till midnight Tuesday, when the last moment for filing claims expired. The deeds to the lands will be issued in due course, unless Attorney General Bird intervenes with court proceedings to prevent the settlement.

Bird's Brother Defeated.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Dec. 2.—A hot political fight has closed here in the selection of Charles K. Farmer as postmaster. The appointment was made by Congressman Hamilton of Niles. Farmer's candidacy was opposed by Harry L. Bird, a brother of A. C. Bird of Lansing.

Quake Destroys Villages.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is found to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"WHAT'S the matter, Jack? Whenever you smoke your cigar goes out. You read a newspaper by staring over the top of it. You leave your watch under the pillow and have to hike back for it. You are absent-minded. Now, what's the matter?"

Hillard sighed heavily.

"There you go again!" laughed Merrihew. "You talk that sigh to everything you say.

Hillard was human. He might be deeply in love, but this had not destroyed his healthy sense of humor, so he laughed at himself.

"It's a curious business—the dinner, the mask, the veil, the mystery," went on Merrihew. "I tell you frankly, Jack, something's wrong, and we shall both live to find it out."

"But what? Heaven on earth, what? Haven't I tried to figure it out till my brain aches? I haven't gone forward a single inch."

"What shall you do?"

"Nothing. When we have seen Florence we'll drop down to Perugia and Rome, then up to the Italian lakes, after that home, if you say."

Hillard looked at his watch.

"Only 9," he said. "Let's go over to Gambrinus' and hear the music."

The Hotel Italie was but a few blocks from the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele. They found the Halle crowded, noisy and interesting. From the Halle they went downstairs and through the billiard room. Under the arcade they found a small table. Presently two officers, one in the resplendent uniform of a colonel, went past. Hillard's pulse was tuned up a quicker stroke.

"I hope he doesn't see us," he said, tipping his panama over his eyes.

Merrihew scowled fiercely.

"So long as he doesn't observe us," said Hillard. "I have no interest in his affairs." Had he none? he wondered.

"He is coming this way again, Dan."

Hillard changed his mind. He pushed back his hat. If the man with the scar saw him and spoke he would reply. The colonel, glancing at the pair, halted. He turned and spoke to his brother officer. The man with the scar stepped over to the table and leaned with his hands upon it. There was a savage humor in his dark eyes.

"Did I not tell you that we should meet again?" he said to Hillard.

"Are you speaking to me?" asked Hillard. Every muscle in his body was alert and ready.

"Certainly I am speaking to you. This is the fellow," speaking to his companion, at the same time drawing off his gloves.

"I object to the word fellow," said Hillard. "Besides, I don't know you."

"Ah, discreet!" sneered the man with the scar.

"Colonel!" cried the subaltern as his senior smoothed the gloves and placed them carefully in his left hand.

"Oh, I am calm! But I have been dreaming of this moment. Now!" The colonel readdressed Hillard. "You meddled with an affair that night in which you had no concern."

"Are you quite sure?"

"Yes, I am sure. And yet as I think it over, as I recollect the woman," went on the colonel, with a smile which was evil and insinuating. "In Monte Carlo I was practically alone. Here it is Florence. Doubtless you will understand." He struck out with the gloves.

But they never touched Hillard's face. His hand caught the assailant's wrist and with a quick jerk brought him halfway across the table. The Italian cried faintly. Hillard spoke tensely:

"Listen carefully, signor. I understand perfectly, but I shall fight no duel. It is an obsolete fashion. A blackguard I know you to be. If you ever address me again I promise to give you a whipping which will have a lasting effect upon your future actions. If that will not serve I shall appeal to the police."

Through the crowd the ever present carabinieri shouldered their way. The colonel motioned them to stand back, which they did with a sign of respect. This sign gave Hillard some food for thought. His antagonist was evidently a personage of some importance.

Hillard laughed.

The scar was livid on the Italian's cheek. His companion laid a restraining hand on his arm. He nodded, and the two made off. Merrihew was for going back to the hotel. Hillard agreed.

"I wanted you to give him a good stiff punch," said Merrihew.

"We should have slept in the lockup overnight if I had. If our friend is left handed he'll be inconvenienced for a day or two. I put some force into that grip. You see, Dan, the Italian still fights his duels. It would have been a fine joke if I had been fool enough to accept his challenge. He would have put daylight through me at the first stroke."

"Did you notice how respectful the carabinieri were?"

"It set me thinking. Oh, I've a premonition that we haven't seen the last of this distinguished gentleman!"

After luncheon the next day they were entering the Via Tornabuoni when a young woman came out of a little millinery shop. Immediately Hillard stepped to one side of her and Merrihew to the other.

"You cannot run away this time, Kitty Killkrew!" cried Merrihew joyously.

In the Villa Ariadne the wonderful fountain by Donatello was encircled by a deep basin in which many generations of goldfish swam about. Forming a kind of triangle about the basin were three ancient marble benches such as the amiable old Roman senators were wont to lounge upon during the heat of the afternoon. A maiden sat on one of these benches, her arms thrown out on either side of the crumbling back, her chin lowered and her eyes thoughtful.

Merrihew stole up from behind with all the care of a practiced hunter. Then he put his hands over her eyes. She struggled for a brief moment, then desisted.

"It is no puzzle at all," she declared. "I can smell horse, horse and again horse. Mr. Merrihew"—

"Yes. I should have fetched along a sachet powder. I remember but one thing, Kitty, and that's you." He sat down beside her. "There's no doubt that I reek of the animal. But the real question is, How much longer are you going to keep me dangling on the string? I've been coming up here for ten days. Now—"

She had dressed expressly for this moment, but Merrihew was not going to be told so.

"But am I to be blamed if, after having refused twice to marry you, you still persist?" Kitty assumed a judicial air.

"But you haven't refused me this time."

"Because I wish to make it as easy as possible for you." Which of the two meanings she offered him was lost upon Merrihew.

"Come, let us be sensible for ten minutes."

Merrihew laid his watch on the bench beside him.

Kitty laughed rollickingly, for beneath her furbelows and ribbons and trinkets she was inordinately happy and light of heart. Her letter had come. She was only waiting for the day of sailing.

Merrihew reached out and caught her hand.

"Oh, I said let us be sensible for ten minutes!" she demurred.

"Kitty, will you marry me?"

"Could you take care of me?"

"I'll work."

"Oh, if you were only rich!"

"You don't mean that, Kitty."

"No," relenting. "I don't. But you bother me."

"All right. This will be the last time. Will you marry me? I will do all a man can to make you happy. I love you with all my heart. I know. You're afraid. You've an idea that I am fickle. But not this time, Kitty; not this time. Will you?"

Then without further hesitance, in-

A Long Time Dying.

Mr. Fred Terry told this anecdote of the death scene in "The Heel of Achilles:"

"One day," he says, "we were rehearsing this play, and a member of my company came in from the street and asked the call boy how far the rehearsal had got.

"'Mr. Terry's just dying,' replied the boy.

"'Good. I've time to smoke a cigarette before my entrance.'

"Presently the actor returned and repeated the question.

"'Still dying,' answered the boy.

"'Oh, I'll go and have another cigarette, then.'

"Back he came and only got the same reply from the call boy.

"Finally, after smoking five cigarettes, he asked, a little wearily, how far the rehearsal had gone.

"'Still dying,' answered the call boy.

The First Language.

No one of the existing languages has any legitimate claim to be considered the original of the family of languages, standing to the others as Latin, for instance, stands to Italian and French. Of an original primitive language of mankind the most patient research has found no trace. All of them—Assyrian, Phoenician, Hebrew, Arabic—are sister languages, pointing back to an earlier parent language, which has long disappeared. Since the historical period man has done little in the way of the absolute creation of language. The work had already been accomplished ages before the birth of written inscriptions.—New York American.

to him the receipts he could conduct the tourists as often as he pleased.

They shared a flask of wine.

The porter's bell rang loudly.

"Tourists!" whispered O'Mally. He settled his cap on straight and went to the gates. A party of five Americans stood outside—two men, two women and a girl.

"This is the Villa Ariadne?" asked one of the women.

"It is," said O'Mally, touching his cap.

"He speaks English!" cried the woman, turning joyfully to the others. "We wish to see the villa and the park."

"The villa is now occupied, signora," replied O'Mally, "but you are permitted to see the park and gardens."

"How much?" asked one of the men.

"Cinquanty," said O'Mally, then correcting himself, "for each person."

"Ten cents? Two lire fifty? Why, this is downright extortion!" declared the woman.

O'Mally gave vent to a perfect Italian shrug and put a hand out suggestively toward the gates.

"Oh, come, dear," protested one of the men wearily. "you've dragged us up here from Fiesole, and I'm not going back without seeing what's to be seen!"

Solemnly Pietro watched them pass, wondering what the terms were. O'Mally led the party to the fountain.

"This," O'Mally began, with a careless wave of the hand, "is the famous fountain by Donatello. It was originally owned by Catherine d'Medissy. The Borgias stole it from her, and Italy and France nearly came to war over it."

"The Borgias?" doubtfully. "Were these two families contemporaneous?"

"They were," scornfully.

The quintet consulted their guidebooks, but before they had located the paragraph referring to this work O'Mally was cunningly leading them away. He passed on to the antique marbles, explaining how this one was Nero's, that one Caligula's, that one Tiberius'. He led so gracefully that the tomb of Ananias must have rocked.

"Do you know," said the woman, who had not yet spoken, "you speak English with an accent I do not understand."

O'Mally shivered. Was she going to spring dago on him? "I am an Italian," he said solemnly. "I was born, however, in County Clare. My father and mother were immigrants to Ireland."

"Ma," whispered the girl, "ask him for one of those buttons."

The stage whisper was overheard by O'Mally. "These buttons," he explained, "cost a lira each, but if the signorina really wishes one"— And thus another lira swelled the profits of the day.

At the gates O'Mally received his pourboire (tip) of 20 centesimi and returned to Pietro.

"Quando!" he cried.

O'Mally handed him the exact amount, minus the lira for the button.

"Santa Maria! All thees? How? No more I take dem! You!"

O'Mally sat down on the bench and laughed. It was as good a part as he had ever had.

Early evening. La Signorina leaned over the terrace wall, her hand idly trailing over the soft cool roses. Stretched out on either hand, white and shadowy, lay the great road. She was dreaming. Presently upon the silence came the echo of galloping horses. Two horsemen came cantering toward the Villa Ariadne. She heard their voices.

"Jack, this has been the trip of my life. Verona, Padua, Bologna and now Florence! This is life. Nothing like it."

"It has been enjoyable, Dan. I only hope our luggage will be at the hotel."

La Signorina's hand closed convulsively over a rose and crushed it.

"A last canter to Fiesole!"

The two went clattering down the road.

La Signorina walked slowly back to the villa. It was fatality that this man should again cross her path.

How Spiders Undress.

It is an interesting sight indeed to watch a spider change its skin and one that will well repay any one for the time taken up by waiting for the little known—generally speaking—event to take place. When preparing for the change the spider stops eating for several days and makes his preliminary arrangements by fastening himself by a short thread of web to one of the main lines of his snare, this to hold him firmly while he proceeds to undress. First the skin cracks all round the thorax, being held only by the fore part. Next the lower part of the body is uncovered, and then comes the struggle to free the legs. He works and kicks vigorously, seeming to have a very hard time of it. Fifteen minutes of continued perseverance, however, brings him out of his old dress, the struggle causing him to appear limp and lifeless for some time after it is finished.

Rather Hard on an Editor

A good joke on an editor who went one evening to report a party at a home recently blessed with a new baby. He met his hostess at the door, and after the usual salutations he asked after the baby's health. The lady who was quite deaf, and suffering with the grippe, thought he was asking after her cold and answered that although she usually had one every winter, this was the worst one she ever had; it kept her awake at night a good deal and at first confined her to bed. Then noticing that the newspaper man was getting nervous she said she could tell by his looks that he was going to have one just like hers, and asked him to go in and sit down.—Ex.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening powder. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

J. N. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world. Sold by all druggists.

JOHN DUNNING'S

The occasional visits of Bishop Williams to St. Peters Parish are great opportunities for Tecumseh and it is unfortunate that more of our people do not have opportunity, to hear this virile Christian man, scholar and prophet. His messages are most stimulating intellectually and spiritually, and his interpretations of religion most sane and practical. Those who do not hear him miss a great opportunity.

One point the good Bishop made in his lecture on the "Social Problems of the Small Town," a great many of us who are studying conditions in the country cannot agree with. The Bishop is a city man born and bred, and practically all of his labors have been in the city. He is a master of the problems that confront the city. But in common with most other sociologists he falls into the error of assuming that the problems of the country village are the same. As a matter of fact they are often the reverse of the city problem.

No one can deny that for the dweller of the tenement and the "wage slave" of the factory, the department store, and the sweat shop, in the city, the problem of the church is to fill that aching void in his social life occasioned by hours of liesure, that offer him only the choice between a cheerless home and dark streets; or the gayety of the saloon and brothel. To give him a clean place, where he can dance, play cards and pool and smoke, if he desires, away from temptation to crime and sin, is a great step in advance, and a great work for the church. Of course it is not the last step, but it is a great thing to fill these undersocialized lives with a clean and healthful amusement, away from temptation to sin and crime. The problem, as the bishop says is to fill the empty house, with things the people can appreciate, which of themselves are harmless.

But the country problem in communities like Tecumseh is totally different. The problem here is over socialization. Very few of our people but have the ordinary comforts of home. There is no aching social void in the life of our people that cries out for more social opportunity to fill it. It is not necessary for us to enlarge our social activities to fill in leisure hours. The fact is the leisure hours of our people are more than full already, and amusements are seriously crowding if not displacing the serious business of real living. Our problem is not that of saving our young people from sin and crime, occasioned by social vacuity; but of saving them from frivolity and thoughtless living, occasioned by such abundance of amusement, that better things are lost sight of.

Those very things so servicable in uplifting the poor of the city, cards dancing, theatres and public amusements of every kind, have such a hold on us, that we cannot get away from them and take the next step higher. Instead of serving us as the bishop assumes, the frivolous things of life have mastered us. The end (the building of thoughtful Christlike character) is lost sight of in the enjoyment of ONE only of the means (pleasure).

For a year I led a club of boys in the slums of Chicago, and with them the problem was just what the bishop says it is—to provide amusement for their leisure hours and save them from the temptations of the street.

The problem with my boys, and girls here is entirely different. It is to wean them away from an overindulgence in those very things that were the crying need of the boy of Chicago Slums. Boys and girls here are ready in their social development, and their Christian environment for higher things, for study, for business training, for Culture in all that means, for the building of Christian manhood within, and Christian service without. And I with others find this problem an exceedingly difficult one, because the pleasures of social life fill the minds of the young, possess their hours, and lower their tastes until those higher things of real life knock at the door of the heart in vain.

In view of these couditions can the community wisely enlarge the field of entertainment amusement already so full that it is crowding out better things? Can it not with more profit spend its energies in building up its schools, its library, its homes, its religious institutions, as the training schools of morality, Citizenship, culture and character grounded in the deep things of God? The call of life is always to come up higher. We cannot answer that call, by simply multiplying the supply of lower things.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.

Bad Stomach Causes Unsightly Complexions. O. A. Wright Has a Remedy.

Why? The stomach in a healthy condition separates the nutritious matter from the food and gives it to the blood to supply the entire body with nourishment.

If the stomach is not in a healthy condition it does not separate from the food the nutritious matter and it passes off with the waste.

Thus the blood is impoverished and has not sufficient nourishment to supply the muscles, skin and body generally.

If you have belching of gas, distress after eating, nausea, biliousness, nervousness or foul breath, then your stomach is wrong and you want the best prescription for stomach troubles the world has ever known.

You want Mi-o-na tablets, the great stomach remedy which C. A. Wright & Son guarantees to cure indigestion, no matter of how long standing, or money back.

Relieves stomach distress at once.

Mi-o-na is sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son for 50c a large box. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

RELATIONS ARE SEVERED

United States No Longer on Terms With Nicaragua.

CHARGE GETS HIS PASSPORTS

Firemen Threaten to Tie Up Railroads Attempt to Put on Non-Union Men—Most Far Reaching and Disastrous Strike That Has Occurred In West In Years.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Diplomatic relations between the United States and Nicaragua were severed last night by this government. The charge d'affaires of Nicaragua was handed his passports. This action does not mean any intention of hostilities, but is the usual preliminary to that condition. The blow was softened, however, by a suggestion to the representative of Nicaragua that he might remain in Washington, where he would be received unofficially by the state department.

Incidentally the insurgent government was recognized virtually.

The radical action of the United States was the direct outcome of the execution of the American citizens, LeRoy Cannon and Leonard Groce, by order of President Zelaya of Nicaragua. In severing relations with Zelaya's government Secretary of State Knox took the first step toward punishing Zelaya for the Cannon and Groce execution and repeated violations of the conventions of the Central American peace conference which was fostered by the United States and Mexico.

Knox's Curt Note.

Mr. Knox's action took the form of a diplomatic note to Senor Felipe Rodriguez, Nicaragua's charge d'affaires. It was sent after a long conference between President Taft and Mr. Knox.

Mr. Knox's note in part, follows:

"Department of State, Washington, D. C., Dec. 1, 1909:

"Sir: Since the Washington conventions of 1907 it is notorious that President Zelaya has almost continuously kept Central America in tension or turmoil and that he has repeatedly and flagrantly violated the provisions of the conventions.

"It is equally a matter of common knowledge that under the regime of President Zelaya, republican institutions have ceased in Nicaragua to exist, except in name; that public opinion and the press have been throttled, and that prison has been the reward of any tendency to real patriotism.

"In view of the interests of the United States and of its relation to the Washington conventions, appeal against this situation has long since been made to this government by a majority of the Central American republics.

Consulate Was Menaced.

"There is now added the appeal, through the revolution of a great body of the Nicaraguan people. Two Americans, who, this government is now convinced, were officers connected with the revolutionary forces, and, therefore, entitled to be dealt with according to the enlightened practice of civilized nations, have been killed by direct order of President Zelaya. Their execution is said to have been preceded by barbarious cruelties. The consulate at Managua is now officially reported to have been menaced.

"From every point of view, it has evidently become difficult for the United States further to delay more active response to the appeals so long made to its duty to its citizens, to its dignity, to Central America and to civilization.

"The government of the United States is convinced that the revolution represents the ideals and the will of a majority of the Nicaraguan people more faithfully than does the government of President Zelaya and that its peaceable control is well nigh as extensive as that hitherto so firmly attempted by the government at Managua.

Confidence and Respect Gone.

"In these circumstances the president no longer feels for the government of President Zelaya that respect and confidence which would make it appropriate hereafter to maintain with it regular diplomatic relations, implying the will and the ability to respect and assure what is due from one state to another.

"The government of Nicaragua, which you have hitherto represented, is hereby notified as will be also the leaders of the revolution that the government of the United States will hold strictly accountable for the protection of American life and property the factions de facto in control of the eastern and western portions of the republic of Nicaragua.

"The government of the United States will temporarily withhold its demand for reparation in the case of Groce and Cannon, in the meanwhile taking such steps as it deems wise and proper to protect American interests.

"From the foregoing it will be apparent to you that your office of charge d'affaires is at an end. I have the honor to enclose your passport for use in case you desire to leave this country.

(Signed) P. C. KNOX.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently."—Hon. John R. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache, headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John B. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York. Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have pooven its absolute merit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

SERGEANT BLAMED.

Loss to Depositors in Vernon Bank is Greater Than Anticipated.

Vernon, Mich., Dec. 2.—According to the statements of several of the creditors of the defunct Sergeant & Sergeant bank, the junior member of which firm, Ned Sergeant, is now in a Detroit hospital with a badly gashed arm, the loss to depositors will be greater than at first believed. U. P. Ferguson, a merchant here, had $700 in the institution, and the village of Vernon had a like amount. M. M. Byington, a hardware merchant and extensive sheep dealer, stated that about ten days before the bank closed its doors he deposited $2,300 to meet the draft of a Chicago stock firm in payment for sheep purchased, and that as yet he had not been notified of the receipt of the money by the firm.

The feeling against Sergeant is rapidly changing from pity and sympathy to condemnation of his alleged loose methods of banking and the certain extravagances attributed to him. Among the depositors of the institution were many poor people who can ill afford to lose their savings.

COST THEM $800,000

It is Estimated That is What Grand Trunk Paid For P. O. & N.

Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 2.—In order to secure possession of the P. O. & N. railroad, the Grand Trunk had to pay $400,000 and take over a bonded indebtedness of an equal amount, making the entire purchase price equal to $800,000. This is considered by railroad men a real bargain, as the road is said to be worth $1,000,000. It is capitalized at this amount.

When Receiver R. J. Lounsbury is discharged, the litigation which has for years involved the road running from Pontiac to Caseville will be brought practically to an end, although it may take several weeks yet to wind up some outstanding suits and other obligations for which the receiver is responsible.

"Lor,' mum," replied Mary, "don't you set no heed on that. Look at me. I'm not fretting, and I've just broken the large pier glass in the drawing room."—London Fun.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lemuel Landsdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they tried it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and, what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn how to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

BIG MINES TO CLOSE.

Switchmen's Strike Seriously Affects Butte, Mont.

Helena, Mont., Dec. 2.—The switchmen's strike situation in Montana became more aggravated Wednesday, when all of the railway train men employed in the Helena yards of the Northern Pacific joined the strikers. Orders have been issued for the closing down of the Boston and Montana mines, in Butte, and its smelter in Great Falls, and the indications are that the East Helena plant of the American Smelting and Refining company must soon cease operations because of non-receipt of ore shipments. Five thousand men are affected by the strike in the Boston and Montana properties.

The Northern Pacific had taken off a number of passenger trains as well, and none of the roads are accepting freight shipments.

There is danger of a coal famine unless the strike is settled soon.

MONEY WAS WET.

Undertaker Testifies He Took Purse From Elbera's Pocket.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 2.—The sum of $102 in a purse which was found in a pocket of Frank Elbera's clothes the morning after Louis Rosenberg had been murdered at the St. Clair Flats and Elbera himself had committe suicide was introduced at yesterday afternoon's session of Samuel Frisbie's trial.

Undertaker Albert Falk, who extracted the purse from Elbera's pocket, testified that the money was wet, as also was the inside of the purse, while the outside was perfectly dry. This, the prosecution attempted to prove, showed that the money had been taken from the person of Louis Rosenberg after he had been dragged from the water by his assailants.

DEER HUNTERS INCREASE,

Twenty-five Counties Sent 3,415 Men Into Woods.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 2.—The game warden's department has issued a statement dealing with the increase of resident deer hunters' licenses taken out in the past three years in twenty-five of the eighty-three counties. In 1907, 2,167 licenses were issued; in 1908, 2,990, and in 1909, 3,415.

The inmates of the state blind school here enjoyed a venison dinner, Tuesday, when the carcass of a deer which was seized at Mackinaw because of illegal shipment was sent to the institution.

Latham Flies High.

Mourmelon, France, Dec. 2.—Battling against a wind of nearly forty miles an hour, Hubert Latham, the French aeronaut, attained a height of between 475 and 500 meters (about 1,600 feet), Wednesday, beating the official world's record.

Just Pleasantness.

Perhaps just pleasantness has not a very heroic sound, but the human heart that, knowing its own bitterness, can yet carry itself cheerfully is not without heroism. Indeed, if that human heart does no more than hold its tongue about its own aches and pains it has a certain moral value that the world cannot afford to lose. "Pleasantness" does not sound as well as self sacrifice or wisdom or spirituality, but it may include all these great words. And certainly just to start one's husband out to his work cheerfully, to make the hobbledehoy of a son feel a gentler and sweeter sentiment toward women because of his own mother's sound, sweet gayety and strength, to help one's servants to put good humor and friendliness into their services—these things make for righteousness in the world.—Margaret Deland.

It Didn't Work Out Just Right.

I saw the best of intentions become a veritable boomerang on Broadway the other night. A policeman had arrested for some small disturbance two well dressed men who had evidently had too much, but were facing the inevitable trip to the station without any further fuss. A friend saw their plight and rushed up.

"Officer," he piped in a peculiarly effeminate voice, "I beg that you will not arrest these men. Why, they are no more drunk than I am."

"Oh, very well," said the cop. "I'll take you too."

And he did.—New York Telegraph.

TROOPS GUARD THE WORKMEN

Activities Resumed in Steel Mills in Ohio.

Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 6.—Fifteen hundred blue clad troopers of the Ohio national guard are patrolling the streets of Bridgeport and Martin's Ferry, O., where a few days ago striking workmen of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company engaged in pitched battles with guards and men employed in the Aetna Standard plant of the company, located at Bridgeport.

The arrival of the troops has put a stop to the rioting, but the situation is very serious.

The mill did not work at all Sunday, but this morning there was a resumption of the plant, and the men who work are guarded to and from their homes by guardsmen.

GIVE MILLIONS TO CHINA.

Reported John D. Rockefeller Contemplated Doing So.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—A report that John D Rockefeller will give $25,000,000 to the Chinese empire has been confirmed and denied by eminent authorities. It was said that a statement probably will be issued soon that would dispose of the matter.

Dr. Ludwig Hektoen of Rush Medical college stated that he first heard rumors of the contemplated gift about a year ago.

"Although I can make no absolutely certain statement regarding this matter," said Dr. Hektoen, "I believe that Mr. Rockefeller is seriously considering a gift of $25,000,000 to the Chinese."

President Judson of the University of Chicago would make no statement.

Professor T. C. Chamberlin, head of the Geology department of the university, recently returned from China. "I know nothing of such a gift," he said.

Trees That Explode.

All lightning blasted trees explode as overcharged boilers do. The flame of the lightning does not burn them up, nor does the electric flash split them like an ax. They simply explode, overcharged, as may be a boiler with steam. The lightning is conducted into the damp interstices of the trunk and into the hollows under the bark. Its tremendous heat at once turns all the moisture in those cramped spaces into steam. This steam in its immediate explosion blows the tree asunder.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

STRANGE WOMAN ON A HORSE

Does Surprising Stunts For Students at Ann Arbor.

VISITS FRATERNITY HOUSES

Madly Gallops About and Entertains Her Watchers With Expert Horsemanship—Believed She Is Insane and That Her Home Is Either in Detroit or Toledo.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 6.—A daring horsewoman, whose identity remains a mystery despite the efforts of half the students at Michigan, rode a beautiful bay horse through the streets Sunday morning for three hours and then decided to call on the frat men of the university. Hardly a fraternity house but that the "dark lady," as she is called, stopped before and examined from the street.

If the place seemed to suit her, she would dig the spurs of her riding boots into the horse's flanks and go dashing around the house in a mad burst of speed. Of course her actions attracted a crowd. The man who did not rush to the windows and porch of the house was a "deader," and there were no dead.

After madly galloping around the house several times, she would draw rein in front of the house and gossip with the men. In some of the houses she was invited to come in, and at such times she did so, first turning the horse over to some member of the fraternity, telling him to drive a certain number of minutes. She always handed him her watch and insisted that he take the timepiece and return on the given moment.

Men Couldn't Ride Horse.

The man was usually back before the time stated, because of two reasons. One was that he wanted to see more of the petite lady, and another was that he was seldom able to ride the spirited animal.

During the calls she discoursed freely about herself, sometimes giving her residence at Detroit and sometimes at Toledo, and again as Buffalo. Then, coquetishly kissing her hands at her hosts, or catching a cigarette from their lips and putting it to her own before returning it, she would dance out of the house, mount her horse before a hand could be offered in assistance, and drive away, like mad, fairly standing in her stirrups, one hand waving a handkerchief. After she had called upon nearly all the large number of frat houses, she returned the horse to the livery barn, where she got it, and left word that if her brother came to tell him he'd find her at the Cook House.

At the hotel they say the strange woman was undoubtedly insane. She had rented a room earlier in the morning and used it as a dressing room while she changed from a street suit to her riding costume and back again. After her ride she lunched alone in the cafe and waited around some time for her "brother," who she said was a member of a frat house here. Then she boarded a car for Detroit.

ARRESTED TWO BURGLARS.

Detroit Officer Did the Act Single Handed.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 6.—Motorcycle Patrolman Fred Raymond, single handed, effected the capture of two men who had broken into the saloon of J. M. Kavanaugh, 221 Franklin street, early this morning. Raymond was forced to pursue rather unusual methods in making the arrests. When he sped to the scene he found one of the men beside th building, evidently acting as a lookout.

The officer grabbed this man and, after a short struggle, overpowered him and handcuffed him to a post, in such a position that his arms were pinioned behind him. Then Raymond entered the saloon and caught the other man. Both were taken to Central police station and are locked up on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time.

OLD GENTLEMAN HIT BY CAR

Pioneer Near Saginaw Meets Untimely Death.

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 6.—Frederick Lebsch, one of the best known farmers of Buena Vista township, met a tragic death in front of his home on the Genesee plank road, which is opposite the Haly Way House, between Saginaw and Bridgeport, when he was struck and instantly killed by a Saginaw and Flint interurban car.

Lebsch, who was nearly eighty years old, had been visiting a neighbor a few rods from his house, and when he left it was raining hard. The aged man threw his overcoat partly over his head to protect himself from the rain and wind. It is believed he walked down the track of the interurban line, which runs along the road by his farm, and when just in front of his house and in the act of turning to enter his gate, a southbound car, running rapidly, overtook and struck him.

Lebsch, who was born in Germany, had lived on his farm in Buena Vista nearly half a century.

Governor Warner Home Again.

Farmington, Mich., Dec. 6.—Governor Warner has returned to his home here after an absence of six weeks, most of which time he was in Yucatan and other states of Mexico. His trip there was for the purpose of arranging for a supply of sisal for the binder twine plant at the Jackson state prison direct from the growers, instead of buying through brokers as heretofore.

OFFER RENEWED.

Uncle Sam Anxious to Send William J. Calhoun of Chicago to China.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The offer of the diplomatic mission to China which was tendered ten days ago to William J. Calhoun of Chicago and declined at that time has been renewed to Mr. Calhoun. The fact that negotiations with Mr. Calhoun have been reopened is taken to mean here that he will accept, and there is reason to believe that he has already given an intimation to that fact, although not officially.

Mr. Calhoun is a Chicago lawyer who was employed by President McKinley in 1897 to go to Cuba to investigate a claim case and incidentally to report on the condition of Spanish rule in the island. Subsequently President McKinley appointed him a member of the interstate commerce commission and he served for two and a half years until October, 1900.

Tight Lid on Saginaw.

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 6.—Chief Kain has given the police force sweeping orders to enforce rigidly the liquor laws. The chief declares that he has discovered that the state law and city ordinances are being constantly violated. He says these practices must stop.

Texas Judge Resigns.

Austin, Tex., Dec. 6.—M. M. Brooks, associate justice of the state court of criminal appeals, has today presented his resignation to Governor Campbell. Judge Brooks is a candidate for governor and resigns to wage an active fight for the office.

Pleasure.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Simon Perlstein, a junk dealer, and eleven small boys are under arrest at Menominee. The junk dealer is charged with receiving brass and lead that was stolen by the boys, and encouraging them to steal.

Pontiac officers believe that Ernest Christian, who is held at Auburn, Cal., awaiting extradition to Flint, is the man who, under the name of Harry Blackburn, fleeced Mrs. Maggie Leroy of Rochester out of $800.

Residents of the south side of Pontiac are circulating a petition asking the council to appoint another patrolman for duty nights in that section of the city. At present the district is entirely unprotected, and the increasing frequency of robberies has caused people to become thoroughly alarmed.

Negotiations have just been closed whereby the Shuberts gain control of the Olympic theater, at Grand Rapids, now playing vaudeville. Changing of lessees of the theater is said to be but another step of the Shuberts to form a string of independent theaters throughout Michigan.

BATTLE SOON TO BE FOUGHT

Matters in Nicaragua Nearing Crisis.

ZELAYA'S DEFEAT PROBABLE

Forthcoming Battle Will Be at Rama. Men in Ithaca, N. Y., Who Know Zelaya, Declare Him a Tyrant—Declared He Cannot Last Long—Elections There a Farce.

Bluefields, Dec. 6.—By wireless to Colon).—It is expected that a battle will be fought between the Zelayists and the revolutionists at Rama on Wednesday. It is believed here that the defeat of the Zelayists is certain. All approaches by land and water are mined. Some of the men who have seen the Zelayan army confirm the report that it is in a critical condition.

General Chamorro, the rebel leader, who is besieging Greytown, will attack that port if the revolutionists win at Rama. The troops of General Toledo, who is holding Greytown for Zelaya, are suffering from fever and starvation.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Dr. Salvator Castrillo, the agent in Washington of the Nicaraguan provisional government, has received a dispatch saying that a decisive battle between the insurgents and the government troops was expected within the next few days near Rama. The revolutionists are expected to adopt shortly more aggressive plans of campaign against the forces of President Zelaya.

The United States is awaiting further developements in Central America. Whether marines are landed on Nicaraguan territory will depend largely on eventualities.

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 6.—That President Zelaya of Nicaragua is a cruel tyrant and that the United States will have to step in to reorganize the Central American governments are the opinions of several residnts of Central America now in this city.

E. Perez, son of the leader of the opposition in the Costa Rican congress, and nephew of J. B. Calvo, for years Costa Rican representative in the United States, declares that the Zelayan government cannot last more than two months longer. He has just arrived from Costa Rica and tells of the situation in Central America before he left.

José S. Rodriguez, whose father is the Spanish consul general at Managua, also said that Zelaya was a cruel tyrant and that elections there were a farce.

Managua, Dec., 6.—President Zelaya has asked the United States government to send a commission to Nicaragua to investigate conditions here, and he says that if its findings show that his administration is detrimental to Central America he will resign.

Dies While Burying Wife.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Henry Augustus Willard, one of the wealthiest citizens of Washington, and former proprietor of the Willard hotel, is dead at Walpole, N. H., where he had gone a month ago to attend the interment of his wife. Mr. Willard was in his eighty-eighth year and had been very feeble for some time.

Judgment Reversed.

A middle aged and nervous tenant in an apartment house had summoned his next door neighbor, a young woman student at the conservatory, into court and charged that the peace and quiet of his lodgings had been disturbed by her singing.

The court was inclined to regard the proceedings as unwarranted.

"How much do you sing?" he asked the defendant.

"Only two hours a day," she answered. "An hour in the morning and one at night."

"Two hours," said the judge. "It appears unreasonable to complain of that."

"But, your honor," interposed the complainant, starting up excitedly, "I trust you will not decide the matter until you have heard the defendant sing."

The defendant was not at all loath to sing. In fact, her personal assurance and professional pride urged her to make the most of this opportunity in the interests of high art.

She began an aria from Wagner, but she had sung but four or five bars when the court interrupted her.

"That will do—that will do," he said. "No further testimony need be taken. The court's judgment is reversed."—Youth's Companion.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

different to the future or the past, conscious only of the vast happiness of the present. Kitty laid her hand in his. He would have drawn her into his arms had not they both seen O'Mally pushing through the box hedge, followed by some belated tourists. Merrihew swore softly, and Kitty laughed.

On the terrace the tea table dazzled the eye with its spotless linen, its blue canton and its bundle of pink roses. Hillard extended his cup for a second filling. La Signorina vaguely wondered where Kitty was. She needed Kitty at this moment.

How inexplicable were the currents and cross currents of life! She had met a thousand men handsomer, more brilliant. They had not awakened more than normal interest. And yet this man, quiet, humorous, ordinarily good looking, aroused in her heart discord and penetrated the barriers to the guarded sentiment. Why? Always this query.

She gathered up a handful of the roses and pressed them against her face, breathing deeply.

"If I were a poet, which I am not"—He paused irresolutely.

"You would extemporize on the beauty of the perspective," she supplemented. "How the"—

"I was thinking of your hair," he interrupted. "I have never seen anything quite like it."

She had recourse to the roses again.

"You have not told me the real reason why you sang under my window . . . ."

"Have I not? Well, then, there can be no harm in telling you that. I had just signed the contract to sing with the American Comic Opera company in Europe. I saw the world at my feet, for it would be false modesty to deny that I have a voice. More disillusions. The world is not at my feet," lightly.

"Will you answer a single question?"

"I can make no promise."

"Is there another man?"

Silence, which grew and lengthened.

"What do you mean?" she asked evenly.

"In Venice you told me that there was a barrier. I ask now if this barrier be a man."

"Yes."

A wrinkle of pain passed over his heart. "If you love him"—

"Love him! No, no! I had hoped you would not speak like this. I relied upon your honor."

"Is it dishonorable for me to love you?"

"No, but it is for me to permit you to say so."

He was pale, but not paler than she.

"I offer you nothing, Mr. Hillard, nothing—no promise, no hope, nothing. A few days longer and we shall separate finally."

Merrihew and Kitty came into view.

"It is all over," said Merrihew exultantly. "Kitty has promised to marry me as soon as we land in America."

La Signorina took hold of Kitty's hands.

"Is it true, Kitty?"

"Yes, ma'am," Kitty answered, with a stage courtesy. "I have promised to marry him, for there seemed no other way of getting rid of him."

This caused real laughter. La Signorina relighted the tea lamp, and presently they were all talking together.

They laughed quietly as they saw O'Mally gravely conducting his charge to the gates. He returned with Smith. Both were solemn visaged.

"Well, noble concierge?" inquired La Signorina. "Why, you look as if you were the bearer of ill tidings."

"I am," said O'Mally.

"What has happened?" asked Merrihew.

"Enough," said O'Mally laconically. He directed his next words to La Signorina. "You are sure of this friend of yours, the princess?"

"Is it dishonorable for me to love you?"

"Certainly," answered La Signorina, her astonishment increasing.

"She gave you the right authority?"

"Absolutely," more and more astonished.

"Well, before I swing the thunder let me tell you something," said O'Mally. "I was in Florence a few days ago. I made some inquiries. It was impertinent, I know. I interviewed four or five hotel concierges. Only one of them ever heard of the name. This concierge directed me to another, but as he spoke only Italian we could not make things fit. But when I mentioned the princess' name he laughed, as if something highly amusing had hit him. The main thing is this, your princess has played us all rather a shabby trick. In the letter you read to us in Venice she said that she had never visited this villa."

"Only in her youth," replied La Signorina, her brows drawing together in a frown. "To the point at once."

"It is simply this. Our little jig is up," responded O'Mally. "Read these and see for yourself." He gave to her a broad white envelope and a clipping from the Nazione of the day before.

She seized the clipping eagerly, but the eagerness died from her face quickly, leaving it pale and stony. The clipping fluttered to the ground. Her gaze passed from one face to another, a horror growing in her eyes. Slowly she picked up the envelope and drew out the card.

"Tell me, what is it?" cried Hillard, troubled.

In answer she gave him the card. He read it. It was rather a knock. Now, why should the Principessa di Monte Bianca take it into her head to give a ball in the Villa Ariadne Wednesday week when she had loaned the villa indefinitely to her friend La Signorina?

CHAPTER XVII.

MORE TANGLES.

HILLARD passed the card to Merrihew, who presented it to Kitty. Smith had already seen it. He waved it aside moodily. La Signorina's eyes roved as in an effort to find some way out.

"It's a pretty kettle of fish," said O'Mally, rather pleased secretly in having created so dramatic a moment. "There's nothing for us to do but to clear out, bag and baggage."

Then La Signorina rose to her feet. She took the card from Kitty's fingers, tore it into many pieces and flung them over the wall.

"We have been betrayed!" she cried, a storm in her eyes.

"Betrayed? In what manner?" asked Hillard.

"Her highness has had no hand in this, I know. Some one with malice has done this."

La Signorina, her arms folded, her lips compressed into a thin line of scarlet, the anger in her eyes unabated, began to walk back and forth.

Two carabinieri and an inspector of seals, dusty, but stern of countenance, came up the path. The inspector came on. Without touching his cap—a bad sign—he laid upon the tea table a card and a newspaper, familiar now to them all.

"Signora," he said politely, but coldly, to the whilom prima donna, "will you do me the honor to explain this? We have some doubts as to the authority upon which this invitation was issued."

She spoke evenly, almost insolently. "The invitation is perfectly regular."

Everybody experienced a chill.

This time the inspector bowed. "Then her highness will occupy her villa?"

"She is already in possession. I am the Principessa di Monte Bianca," calmly.

Had an earthquake shattered the surrounding hills and gulfs opened at their feet it could not have spread terror more quickly among the transient guests at the Ville Ariadne than this declaration. They knew that she was not the princess, and here, calmly and negligently, she was jeoparding their liberty as well as her own. She was mad.

The keen eyed inspector took mental note of these variant expressions.

"Your highness," he said, his cap setting the dust on the stones flying, "a thousand pardons for this disagreeable intrusion. It was not officially known that your highness was here."

"And the seals?" purred the official.

"We shall go through that formality the morning after the ball. At present I do not wish to be disturbed with the turning of the villa upside down, as would be the case were the seals removed."

"That will require the permission of the crown, your highness."

"Then you will set about at once to secure this permission."

The air with which she delivered this command was noble enough for any one.

"You will telegraph to Cranford & Baring, in the Corso Umberto Primo, Rome. They will supply you with the necessary details and information."

The inspector spoke to the carabinieri, and the trio marched to the gates.

Loud were the exclamations of dismay from the unfortunate Americans, and only Hillard and Merrihew showed faith in La Signorina and her protestation that she would straighten out the tangle without any additional misfortune coming to her former associates in the opera troupe.

Kitty, O'Mally and Smith, however, were convinced that a dirty Italian prison would be their ultimate resting place.

"Suppose we go and break the news to Worth," remarked Smith.

O'Mally assented, stopping a moment in front of La Signorina.

"We have all been together for many weeks," he said. "Yet who you are none of us knows."

The shadow of a smile lay upon her lips and vanished. "My name is Sonia Hilda Grosvenor." And her voice was music.

"Tomorrow," said Merrihew. "I'm going to look up the jail and engage rooms ahead. It might be crowded."

Both he and Hillard rode back to their quarters for the night, but they found that sleep was practically out of the question.

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE

Held in Hudson was a Big Success

The Teachers' Institute for Lenawee and Hillsdale counties held in Hudson last Friday and Saturday proved a big success and was attended by fully 500 teachers and a large number of patrons from schools in both counties.

It has been nearly eighteen years since the teachers met in Hudson and they were given a royal welcome in that city.

One of the most pleasing features on the program was an address given by Dr. A. E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education of Boston, Mass. Prof. E. E. Gallup and Dr. Gray of Adrian each gave an interesting address.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening powder. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

A Policeman's Testimony

J. N. Patterson, night policeman of Nashua, Iowa, writes: "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least half a dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world. Sold by all druggists.

W. P. STOCKING

A RESIDENT OF LONG BEACH, CAL., GIVES BELOW A

Typical Idea of what Local Option May do for the Towns in his Vicinity and Elsewhere

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 1, '09.

Editor Herald:

I see by the papers that Lenawee county is to vote on local option in the spring. I wish it were possible for me to say something to offer evidence sufficient to convince every reader of the Herald, yes, every voter in Lenawee county, that it is not only for their individual good, but for the good of every man, woman and child in the county, that the liquor traffic in every form in which it exists be driven from the county.

From early boyhood, when I was a member of the Cadets of Temperance in dear old Tecumseh, I have exerted what little influence I have had against the liquor traffic and the older I grow and the more I see of the evil influences of the use of intoxicants on all classes and condition of people, and the more experience I have with the effects of prohibition upon all classes and conditions of people and upon all classes of business, the stronger grows my conviction that the liquor traffic should be oblivious from our land and from all lands.

I want to offer you a few facts concerning the working of prohibition in Southern California. The dry counties are Del Norte, Imperial, Kings, Orange, Riverside, San Diego, Sutter, Venturia and Plumas. With the exception of Alturas, Modoc county belongs in the same list. Prohibition has proven a blessing to each and all of those places.

I want to call your attention of the reader to our home city, Long Beach, as an example of what prohibition has done for it and will do for every community which will give it fair trial.

Long Beach has been dry for nine years and no one but a liquorite wants anything else but absolute prohibition. We have lived here seven years and in that time we have seen Long Beach grow from a small village of a few hundred inhabitants with cheap homes and cheap business houses, poor sidewalks and no paved streets to a city of 20,000 permanent inhabitants which is greatly enlarged during tourist seasons. We now have an assessed valuation of $17,716,754, 100 miles of concrete sidewalks, and miles and miles of paved streets, Hotel Virginia costing $100,000, bath house $150,000, pleasure pier and immense sun parlor, public library $40,000, pavilion $40,000, large ostrich farm, daily steamboat trips to San Pedro and Catalina Island, a fine municipal band giving concerts every afternoon and evening, except Mondays, the year around, the Pike, a street lined with various places of amusement, a variety of booths of curios, etc., etc., and all within a few rods of the ocean.

We have one of the largest land locked harbors in the world nearing completion, a large ship building plant, a number of extensive lumber yards and planing mills, ice plant, two daily papers, two water companies, two gas companies and two telephone systems.

I am sorry to say that our grand million dollar Hotel Virginia has been a "thorn in the flesh" of Christian Temperance people, the hotel company trying to obtain a liquor licence to serve liquors to their guests. Failing in this, they started to run a blind pig in one of the rooms, but thanks to a mayor, a city council and chief of police, who have backbones, the place was raided, one arrested, tried, convicted and fined $270 which was paid. Then for two or three months the guests were allowed to take their own "booze" there and use it on the tables.

The hotel was then closed for the winter with the plea that it could not be made to pay without a table license. During the winter the temperance people tried to rent the hotel and run it as a temperance house. The proposition was turned down by the hotel company though it was backed by a number of men, anyone of whom was able financially to make good the proposition. The hotel has been running this summer with the claim that the guests purchase their "booze" elsewhere and it is then served to them on the table. The truth of this statement of the hotel management I am not one willing to vouch for.

I desire the reader to understand that I am not writing this simply to to boost Long Beach, but that I wrote it to effect the liquorites statements that "prohibition don't prohibit," that "prohibition kills every place where it exists," that "prohibition is losing ground" and other false statements sent abroad all over the land.

If Lenawee county will go dry once it will never go wet again.

CLARENCE MONTGOMERY.

Many friends were saddened Sunday to learn of the death of Clarence Montgomery, which came at five o'clock Sunday morning. For several years he had been making a stubborn fight against tuberculosis, contracted a number of years ago and had been a great sufferer. Death came to relieve him of further suffering.

Mr. Montgomery was but 26 years of age. He was educated in the Tecumseh High Schools, and afterward was employed in the railroad offices, and was rapidly rising in position when failing health compelled him to resign and go to Colorado. Before leaving he was married to Miss Sadie Lowry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lowry, and they made their home in Denver, Colorado, where Mr. Montgomery had charge of the express business. The change however failed to better his health, and two months ago they returned to Tecumseh. He grew rapidly worse until the hour of his death.

He was a fine young man, in the prime of manhood. In his long suffering was very patient and hopeful. He became a Christian some time ago, frequently expressed to his loved ones the desire and the hope of speedily entering the Christian's reward.

Besides his wife, he leaves a mother, a sister, and many friends to mourn his death.

Funeral services were held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lowry Tuesday afternoon, and the burial was in Brookside.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during our sad bereavement, also to those contributing flowers.

MRS. C. MONTGOMERY,
MR. AND MRS. JOHN LOWRY AND FAMILY.

Mrs. Sabin Hutchins.

Mrs. Sabin S. Hutchins came to the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Belcher, Dec. 24, 1908 to spend the holiday season and enjoy the pleasure of meeting with her four children. Her health was such that she was never able to return to her home in Clayton. Her health gradually failed until the end came, Monday Dec. 6, 1909.

She was of a quiet nature loving her home and children and a large circle of friends, who will be saddened to hear of her death.

She is survived by four children, Charles with whom she lived, Horace of Mishawaka Ind., Mrs. J. J. Belcher of Tecumseh and Frank of New York also two sisters, Miss Emma J. Smith and Mrs. Norman Hutchins of Clayton.

The funeral services will be held at Clayton Wednesday with interment at North Dover Cemetery.

"Advertising creates a demand, the merits of the goods will or will not establish a permanent demand"

Without this permanent demand business is a failure. In regard to our coal business, it increases almost daily because of the many new customers who come back for more coal and tell their friends and neighbors that

CONGRESS IN FULL SWING

Began Its Regular Session at Noon Today.

EARLY ADJOURNMENT TAKEN

Galleries Filled With Visitors—President's Message to Be Read Tuesday. "Cut Down Expenditures" Will Be Slogan of Present Sitting—Postal Savings Bank Law May Go Over.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Promptly on the noon hour today Vice President Sherman and Speaker Cannon let fall their gravels in the senate and house of representatives, respectively, and congress was thenceforth in regular session.

The occasion was not the really stirring one that it has been some previous times, still there was sufficient doing to entertain the crowds which filled the galleries. On the floors took place considerable hustle and bustle as senators and representatives scurried about renewing acquaintances and meeting the newcomers.

The reception feature was ended only for a short time when the two houses were called into session: Committees were at once appointed to notify the president that congress was in session, after which adjournments were taken for the day, out of respect to the memory of members who had died since the last congress. This was not done until resolutions had been passed expressing respect for the memory of deceased members.

The president's annual message will be read before both houses on Tuesday.

Besides the introduction of a number of resolutions in both houses, little else was done today.

While senators and representatives have been besieged for tickets of admission to the private galleries and have responded liberally, the rule of "first come, first served," was applied, and it is safe to say that every two of those armed with what they regarded as an open seasame staid out to every one who got in.

From all accounts the session which began today is likely to be busy, but not of the liveliest character. The main purpose of President Taft and the congress leaders will be to keep down expenditures. That will be the foremost administration policy, and those in control of the organization of the senate and house are co-operating with the president. It appears to be a foregone conclusion that the appropriations will be cut considerably.

President Taft has already made known that he will make no recommendations in regard to amending the anti-trust law until the United States supreme court disposes of the appeal from the opinion of the United States court of appeals that the Standard Oil company and its affiliated concerns constitute a combination in restraint of trade.

While the house may dispose of some appropriation bills before the Christmas holidays, the senate probably not give serious consideration to any legislation of importance, even supply measures, until both houses reassemble after New Years.

While it is too early to make a prediction with any certainty, the prospects of the enactment of a postal savings bank law are not promising. The administration is in favor of the creation of postal savings banks. The suggestion has been made, however, that this matter should be deferred until after the monetary commission submits its report, which probably will not be until the third session of the present congress, in Dec. 1910. There is a suspicion that the leaders are in favor of this program of postponement.

That congress will devote considerable attention to legislation for the better conservation of natural resources appears to be assured.

"I made a big hit with that woman, all right." "What did you say to her?" "Nothing. I just kept still and listened."—Chicago News.

DEAD IN A SHED.

Man, Apparently From Columbus, O., Murdered and Robbed in Canton.

Canton, O., Dec. 6.—An unknown well dressed man, evidently from Columbus, O., was found murdered, in a shed at Second street and the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. The man's pockets were turned inside out, and there was a gag in his mouth. Evidently he had been dead since Friday.

The body was discovered by a woman living next door.

The handkerchief found in the man's mouth is the only clue. Shoes and clothing worn by the man were purchased in Columbus.

Son's Body Had Been Stolen.

Owosso, Mich., Dec. 6.—While removing the bodies of his brother and sister from the Howard cemetery to the newer Fremont cemetery, Frank Bowles of Bancroft also opened the grave where his son's body was buried thirteen years ago. To his horror, he found nothing but the rough box in the grave, the casket and body having been removed. When the work of the ghouls was performed is, of course, unknown.

Senator McLaurin Ill.

Brandon, Miss., Dec. 6.—United States Senator A. J. McLaurin is desperately ill of an acute attack of indigestion. He had intended leaving Sunday for Washington.

A BIT OF ADVICE

First Don't Delay—Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache, headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John B. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

There are many different terms for chauffeur. Some of them will readily come to mind about the time you get bumped by a machine.

STUNG FOR 15 YEARS

by Indigestion's pangs—trying many doctors and $200.00 worth of medicine in vain, B. F. Ayscue, of Ingleside, N. C., at last used Dr. King's New Life Pills, and writes they wholly cured him. They cure Constipation, Billiousness, Sick Headache, Stomach Liver, Kidney and bowel troubles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son.

Young man, beware of the hammock these balmy summer evenings, or some fair fisher may gill you in its meshes.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are urinary disorders, weak back and backache, rheumatism and reumatic pains and twinges, pains in the groin, etc. There is nothing as good for kidney and bladder trouble as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. You may depend upon them to give entire satisfaction. They are antiseptic, act promptly and soothe pain. Sold by all druggists.

A man named Clover has just been married—and soon there will be several blades of grass where there was formerly but one.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have pooven its absolute merit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Rich Men's Gifts Are Poor

beside this: "I want to go on record as saying that I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest gifts that God has made to woman, writes Mrs. O. Rhinevault, of Vestal Center, N. Y. "I can never forget what it has done for me." This glorious medicine gives a woman buoyant spirits, vigor of body and jubilant health. It quickly cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Head-ache, Backache, Fainting and Dizzy Spells; soon builds up the weak, ailing and sickly. Try them. 50, at C. A. Wright & Son.

A man who slips on a banana peeling, then arises and without waste of words or ruffled temper, removes the peeling so that others may not slip on it, is a Christian.

Foley's Honey and Tar is the best and safest cough remedy for children. At the first symptoms of a cold, give as directed, and ward off danger of croup, bronchitis, sore throat, cold in the head, and stuffy breathing. It brings comfort and ease to the little ones. Contains no opiates or other harmful drugs. Keep always on hand, and refuse substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

OCTOBER LAKE SHIPMENTS.

Iron Ore Comprised More Than 50 Per Cent of Cargoes.

Washington Dec. 6.—Commercial movements on the great lakes during October, as measured by the volume of domestic shipments from various lake ports, 12,018,212 net tons, while somewhat lighter than during the preceding three months, show, however, a larger total than for the two preceding seasons. Over 50 per cent of the total monthly shipments is represented by iron ore, the movement of which exceeded even the unusually heavy October, 1907, movement.

The reports to the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, just given out, show that the shipments of coal, especially anthracite, were lighter than the shipments during the same month in the two preceding seasons. Large shipments, as compared with corresponding 1908 totals, are reported for oats, corn, wheat, lumber, pig iron, iron manufactures, copper an miscellaneous freight.

KNEW SHE WOULD DIE.

Laid Down, After Telling Her Life Story, and Passed Away.

Kalmazoo, Mich., Dec. 6.—Possessed of a presentiment that she would be dead before daylight, Mrs. Eliza Warren, the savior of a dozen lives in her lifetime, sat up in bed early in the morning and conversed with a daughter, telling her of her early life history, the names of her parents and their birthplaces and deaths.

She was in the act of telling other family history when the daughter forced her mother to sleep, telling her that she could continue the story when she awoke in the morning. The mother declared that when she awoke again it would be in another world. She died an hour later, while asleep.

Mrs. Warren was ninety years of age and had lived in Kalamazoo all her life.

Mrs. Souther went upstairs and found her husband stretched out on his bed unconscious. He had placed the muzzle of a 38 caliber revolver in his mouth and fired. He died within a few minutes.

Mr. Souther was thirty-nine years old. His home was in Erie, Pa., but usually he came to Washington for the winter. Mr. Souther had made some money out of his art, but, according to the authorities, had lost in speculation during the last year or two.

CULBERSON RESIGNS.

Does Not Care to Longer Be Minority Leader in Senate.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Senator Culberson of Texas, the Democratic leader in the upper house of congress, has resigned that position, to take effect at once. Notice that Mr. Culberson will no longer serve as minority leader in the senate has been received by Senator Money of Mississippi, who, as

A caucus of the senate Democrats will be held within the next day or so to fill the position of minority leader, which has been vacated by Senator Culberson.

A majority of the Democrats are inclined to confer the honor of minority leadership upon Senator Money. He will retire from public life on March 4, 1911. The indications are, however, that Senator Money will not accept

Professor Percy Ash, in charge of the department of architecture of the George Washington university, in Washington, has been elected associate professor of architecture at the University of Michigan.

Because she believed no one loved her and that she was in the way at home, eight-year-old Nellie Pool of Peru, Ind., made two unsuccessful attempts to commit suicide by throwing herself under a train. Each time she was rescued by a crossing tender.

Governor Campbell of Texas has been notified that the grand jury of Hill county, Tex., has indicted T. E. Durham, assistant superintendent of the state penitentiary at Rusk, for murder. It is charged that Durham killed a convict named Athens by beating him with a leather strap.

Every Protestant church in the city of El Paso, Tex., Sunday adopted resolutions of protest against the existance of race track gambling in Juarez, Mex. The resolutions call upon the secretary of state to urge the Mexican government to withdraw the gambling concessions in connection with the races.

Claude Williams, sixteen years old, of Cannelton, Ind., his mind inflamed from reading cheap literature with blood curdling climaxes, shot and killed James Hall, thirteen years old, then eluded the sheriff and escaped across the Ohio river to the Kentucky shore and is still in hiding.

One Sided Gambling.

"One need only to try his luck at any of the Riviera gambling palaces to learn how slender are the chances to win at roulette," says a German correspondent writing from Ostend. "But if he would experience the gambler's disadvantage at its best let him come to Ostend and join the baccarat players. The game as it is played gives the man who places his money against the bank no chance whatever, and if it were known how much money is sacrificed in a season in the endeavor to win by luck and by system the public would be horrified. It is nothing unusual for the bank to win twenty-four times before an outsider wins once. The people who play, if they have ever played before, know this, and still they come again, respond to the call until they depart and plant their gold in the baccarat mire in the hope that it will bear fruit. It does. But what is the harvest?"

Cures Dyspepsia; Trial Is Free

It is a popular mistake that only wealthy people who eat rich and highly-spiced foods suffer from dyspepsia, or, as it is also known, indigestion. The laborer in the street, the worker in the field also finds himself a victim of this disorder. Among the very greatest sufferers from it are women.

Dyspepsia is indicated by a constant feeling of laziness, by loss of appetite and troubled sleep, by sour stomach and distress after eating, by bad complexion and lusterless eyes.

There is no surer and speedier cure for this trouble than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which dyspeptics have been using successfully for twenty years. This great herb laxative compound cured Capt. Clark, of Buffalo, Ia., of dyspepsia and sour stomach that he had had for forty years, or until the lucky day that he heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It cured Joel Adams, of Montgomery, Ala., after suffering continuously for sixteen months. These are only a few of the many. But it is not expensive to be cured with this grand remedy, as it can be bought at any drug store in a 50-cent or $1 bottle.

Your very neighbors are probably lifelong users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but if you want to know without expense what it will do for you personally, send your name to Dr. Caldwell and he will be glad to send you a free trial bottle. He is actually anxious to have you make a test of his remedy.

Thousands of families everywhere keep it in the house against such an emergency as constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, heartburn, torpid liver, etc., which may come on a member of the family any day. It is pleasant to the taste, acts gently and does not gripe. It is the great children's laxative tonic.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 505 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

In the Old Germanic Wilderness.

Leaving Mummelsee on a misty morning, you enter a green underworld of strange dew bediamond brilliance, skirt the head of a deep southward looking valley and emerge upon a sunny open plateau beyond Eckle and look down upon Wildsee, circled by the dark pines of an untouched forest that stretches away to the blue and distant hills. It is easy here to imagine yourself back in the heart of the old Germanic wilderness, in the heroic days when Hagen slew Siegfried with a coward's blow. The morning sun glints upon bright spear tops among the trees and the wind brings snatches of rough war songs shouted by barbarian voices. Your heart swells with the lust of battle and the chase, and if you have German blood in your veins it calls back through the dark middle ages to that dim and mystic youthday of the world when heroes met at the Ravenna schlacht. Within the hour you find yourself back in the twentieth century among motorcars drawn up beside the hosteiry at Ruhestein, where the Hohenweg drops into the commonplace and crosses the government macadam before climbing the steep side of the Rothe Schlifkopf.—From "A Black Forest Pathway," by Frederick Van Beuren, Jr., in Scribner's.

Verdi and Bismarck on Titles.

The composer Verdi was offered a title of nobility by King Victor Emmanuel. It was intended that he should be created Marquis or Comte de Busseto, after the estate upon which he lived. The composer refused the offer energetically. He considered that Verdi was somebody and that the Marquis de Busseto would be nobody.

Even Bismarck was unable to parry a blow of this character. When the young emperor broke with him he conferred upon him the title of Duke of Lauenbourg. Bismarck received the parchment with this exclamation:

"A pretty name! It will be handy for traveling incognito."

Bismarck, to whom it was delivered, being then at table, arose and, offering the letter to his wife, remarked ironically:

"Duchess, enchanted to make your acquaintance!"

Faithful to His Trust.

I was waiting near the elevator in the factory building for my friend to come down when I noticed a small boy sitting in one corner of the hall holding a large, thick sandwich. He eyed the sandwich lovingly for a long time, then he carefully lifted off the top slice of bread, took out a piece of dill pickle, ate it and replaced all as before. In a few seconds he again removed the top piece, extracted a piece of pickle and a piece of meat and replaced the top. Again and again the performance was repeated until all the pickle and almost all the meat were gone, the sandwich, however, appearing intact as in the beginning.

"Why don't you eat up your sandwich and not pick at it in that way?" I asked the boy with some curiosity.

"Why," he answered, looking up with great innocence, "it ain't my sandwich."—Woman's Home Companion.

Where Women Swim Best.

"The Korean women are the best swimmers in the world," said a life guard. "The Korean pearl diving is in their hands. They swim—they don't boat—they swim out to the pearl fisheries of Quelpart, lugging baskets with them. After this swim of half an hour they dive down fifty feet and fetch up queer one shelled pearl oysters as big as babies. They dive till their baskets are full—the baskets are corked to keep them afloat—and after three or four hours' work they swim back home with their catch. The big one shelled oysters are valuable as pearl mines and as food too. A half dozen Koreans will sit down to an oyster as gayly as you or I sit down to a broiled lobster. Sometimes when the great shellfish is eaten raw it quivers and moans slightly as the knife is plunged into it."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Man and the Lion.

"When I was once in danger from a lion," said an old African explorer, "I tried sitting down and staring at him, as I had no weapons."

"How did it work?" asked his companion.

"Perfectly. The lion didn't even offer to touch me."

"Strange! How do you account for it?"

"Well, sometimes I've thought it was because I sat down on a branch of a very tall tree."

Very Queer.

"My husband has been out late every evening this week attending important club meetings."

"Yes, so has mine. They belong to the same club, you know."

"Why, how queer! My husband says he hasn't seen your husband in six months!"—Cleveland Leader.

The Way She Dressed Him.

"What do you want to be when you grow up?" was asked of a small boy by the visitor.

"Oh," said he, "I want to be a man, but I think mamma wants me to be a lady."—Ladies' Home Journal.

MEN EMPLOYED TO FAKE COOK RECORDS

Let Out Story Because Doctor Failed to Pay Them.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9.—The Free Press today publishes a special dispatch from the New York Times, giving the remarkable narratives of two men, made under oath, declaring that they were employed by Dr. Frederick A. Cook to fabricate astronomical and other observations for submission to the University of Copenhagen, which is about to pass upon Dr. Cook's assertion that he discovered the North Pole on April 21, 1908.

These men are George H. Dunkle, an insurance broker, of 31 Nassau street, New York, and Captain August Wedel Loose, a sea captain of 437 Thirteenth street, Brooklyn. For their labors they were to have received jointly from Dr. Cook $4,000, with an additional bonus of $500 to Captain Loose upon the acceptance of the records by the University of Copenhagen. They say that Dr. Cook had paid them only $260 when he disappeared on the eve of the dispatch of his "records" to Copenhagen, two weeks ago, and his failure to pay the sum remaining due them they freely acknowledge to be their motive for coming forward with the story.

Accompanying these narratives, according to the dispatch, in the Times tomorrow will appear copies of the affidavits of Captain Loose and Mr. Dunkle affirming their accuracy, a facsimile of Dr. Cook's instructions to Captain Loose, in Cook's handwriting, in possession of the Times, and the affidavit of Captain Loose, swearing to the accuracy of the same."

COOK'S REPORT IN BANK.

He Has Sent For His Eskimos and Instruments.

Copenhagen, Dec. 9.—The university authorities and Mr. Lonsdale have agreed to leave Dr. Cook's papers in the custody of a bank until the investigation opens, which will be as soon as possible.

Mr. Lonsdale told a correspondent that Dr. Cook had sent for his instruments and his Eskimos, and that they will be brought here first and will then go to America.

Boy of Eleven Stabs Schoolmate.

Rochester, Mich., Dec. 9.—In a quarrel at school during the recess, Lynn Hawkins, aged eleven, stabbed Bert Kake, aged fifteen, with a pocket knife. An artery in Yake's wrist was severed and his shoulder and hand cut. Though weakened by the loss of blood, he will recover.

Smoke Drove Guests Into Streets.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 9.—Fire started shortly before 11 o'clock last night in the Star Bargain house, occupying a part of the Burdick hotel building, and the entire building was for a time threatened with destruction. More than 200 guests in the hotel were forced into the streets by the smoke.

request to the court for a transcript of Mrs. Leavitt's testimony in support of her charge of non-support met with a rebuff, but the artist has engaged a Lincoln attorney to represent him and to secure the transcript on a formal writ to the court.

Mrs. Leavitt is on the point of leaving with her parents for a tour of the West Indies, preliminary to a longer absence in Europe while Mr. and Mrs. Bryan are traveling in South America. Her former husband's determination to revive the divorce suit now threatens to force the abandonment of her trip.

Reported Sugar Plants Will Be Sold.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 8.—Reports have been circulated that the Owosso sugar factory, located here, as well as the plant at Owosso, will soon pass into the hands of the American Milling company of Chicago. It is rumored that the local plant will be closed and beets shipped to Owosso. The average the past season was not as large as usual.

Rebel Secretary Quits.

New Orleans, Dec. 9.—A cablegram from Central America announces that Dr. Emilio Espinosa, secretary of state to the Nicaraguan Estrado, or revolutionary, government, has resigned, and Francesco Moneira has been appointed. Importance is attached to thi break in the revolutionist government, as Espinosa, who has resigned, was a man of influence in Nicaragua.

Will Vote on Strike Question.

Cincinnati, Dec. 9.—After a conference the committee of seven representing the Order of Railway Telegraphers of the Big Four railroad has decided to put the question of a strike for an increase of 20 per cent in pay and the establishment of telephone operators on a wage basis similar to the one in force for the telegraphers to a referendum vote. The ballots were mailed to the 1,000 odd members of the order working for the road.

SLEPT UNDER HOUSE.

Youngsters Had Not Been Home For Week.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9.—Leo Wiechowski, aged twelve, and his eleven-year-old brother, Steve, haven't been home in just a week. They have been sleeping under the dwelling at 316 Second avenue and might have continued indefinitely had they not overslept the other morning.

As a policeman passed the house about 8 o'clock he saw a tousled head appear at a hole in front of the house. Soon Leo emerged, yawned, and then Steve crawled out. The policeman took both boys to the central station house.

The lads said they ran away from school and were afraid to go home. They slept under the house without the knowledge of the tenants. A boy friend supplied them with food, and they kept warm by hugging the furnace pipes under the house.

TRAIN TIPS OVER.

Four Hurt In Accident on Wabash at Belleville.

Belleville, Mich., Dec. 9.—Wabash passenger train No. 52, an "accommodation," bound from Adrian to Detroit, was derailed by an open switch about a quarter of a mile west of this village. The entire train tipped over.

Those hurt were F. M. Richason, Conductor J. E. Conklin, E. Gable and B. C. Bastedo, all of Detroit. None appear to be badly injured. All the passengers aboard the train were badly shaken up and frightened.

Stole Entire Wearing Outfit.

Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 9.—Sometime between midnight and daylight a hobo entered the general store of Frank Walters, at Clarkston, and appropriated an entire new outfit of clothing, from hat and overcoat to socks. The outfit was valued at $40. He very considerately left his old clothes.

Championing the Worm.

An incident that occurred some years ago during a session of the British parliament furnished an amusing illustration of the power of satire to bring about results that sober argument often fails to accomplish.

There had been introduced a bill designed to prevent cruelty to wild animals in captivity. It was opposed on the ground that, if passed, it would endanger certain kinds of legitimate sport.

When the Earl of Kimberley arose he gravely admitted the force of this argument.

"There can be no doubt," said he, "that the bill would put an end to fishing with worms as bait. It is a bill to prevent cruelty to wild animals in captivity. The schedule states that the word 'animal' shall be held to include reptile. A worm may be held to be a reptile. A worm impaled on a hook must certainly be held to be in captivity; therefore the angler who uses a live worm for bait would be guilty of cruelty to an animal in captivity."

The laugh that followed at the expense of those against the bill robbed the opposition of whatever force it had and carried the measure to a successful issue.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

SAM FRISBIE IS NOT GUILTY

Jury Acquits Him of Killing Louis Rosenberg.

JUDGE GIVES HIM ADVICE

William Crandall of Battle Creek Convicted of Slaying Wife—Declared Wife Attacked Him and Killed Self. Story of Shooting of Morley Told at Bertha Leitzau's Trail.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 9.—Samuel Frisbie of Cleveland has been found not guilty of slaying Louis Rosenberg by a jury that deliberated on the case for eight hours.

Frisbie fainted when the verdict was announced and was caught by his father. A few minutes later he was revived, and then he thanked each one of the jurors separately.

The prisoner was given a few words of advice as to the company he should keep in the future, and then he was discharged by Judge Tappan

Frisbie, accompanied by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Frisbie of Cleveland, and his sister, Mrs. Frank Schnebly of Dayton, has returned home today.

Convicted of Murder.

Marshall, Mich., Dec. 9.—William Crandall faces a life sentence in state prison for the murder of his wife, in Battle Creek last August. The jury in the circuit court found him guilty of murder in the first degree, after being out an hour and a half. Crandall heard the verdict cooly. He will be sentenced Monday.

Crandall cut his wife's throat and then attempted to end his own life in the same manner, but failed to make a fatal wound in his neck. He took the stand in his own behalf and said that his wife had tried to kill him and then took her own life. Crandall is paralyzed in both legs. He and his wife had parted, and the tragedy occurred in a boarding house kept by his wife.

Tells of Shooting of Morley.

Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 9.—The taking of testimony in the trial of Bertha Leitzau for the murder of her lover, Samuel Morley, was commenced Wednesday. The courtroom was filled to its capacity with spectators, and many were prevented from entering.

The story of the shooting was recounted in the circuit court in the afternoon.

"Bertha asked me to marry her, and I refused. She shot me, and I fell," was Morley's statement to Mrs. Susanna Smith, who, with her son, Judson Smith, found Morley by the roadside. Bertha had demanded that Morley walk ahead of her. He refused and turned to go behind her. As he turned the girl fired. The bullet lodged in the abdomen. A few seconds later she bent over his prostrate form and fired a second shot into his neck, holding the revolver so close to him that his neck was burned. Leaving him prostrate she walked to the car line.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The Lure of the Mask

By

HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

The morning sun peeped over the hills, throwing huge shadows in the gorge below. O'Mally sniffed. As the wind veered intermittently there came to him the perfume of the locust trees, now in full bloom. Pietro rocked, his legs crossed, his face blurred in the drifting tobacco smoke.

"No more tourists, Pietro?"

"No," Pietro sighed.

"Did you ever see La Signorina before? Do you know anything about her?"

"Never! No!" answered Pietro, with the perfect candor of an accomplished liar.

"Have you ever seen"—

"Zitto! She come!" Pietro got up with alacrity.

La Signorina was as daintily fresh in her pink frock as a spring tulip. Her eyes were shining, but her color was thin.

"I have been looking for you, Mr. O'Mally," she said. "I have just received a telegram from her highness."

O'Mally accepted the yellow sheet. "I can make out a word or two," he said. "It's in Italian."

"I forgot," apologetically.

Briefly, La Principessa di Monte Bianca gave Sonia Hilda Grosvenor full authority to act as her proxy in giving the ball. As for the invitation, she knew absolutely nothing about it.

This last statement rather staggered the erstwhile concierge. If the princess hadn't issued the invitation, who the deuce had?

The dreamy, pleasurable days at the Villa Ariadne were no more. The spirit of suspicion now stalked abroad. And there were a-coming and going of the many needed extra servants, a to and froing of extra gardeners and carpenters and the sound of many hammers. The ballroom and the dining room were opened and aired and the beautiful floors polished.

In Florence there was a deal of excitement over the coming affair, for the Villa Ariadne had once been the scene of many a splendid entertainment. There had always been a mystery regarding the Principessa di Monte Bianca. Many doubted her actual existence. But the prince was known all over Europe as a handsome spendthrift. And the fact that at this precise moment he was quartered with the Eighth corps in Florence added largely to the zest of speculation.

As for Hillard, well indeed he understood now why Mrs. Sandford had warned him. He understood now what the great mistake was.

He was always at her heels now, but speaking no more of his love. She understood and was grateful. Once she plucked a young rose and gave it to him, and he was sure that her hand touched his with pity, though she would not meet his eyes.

At 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the day before the ball, now that the noise had subsided and the servants were in their quarters, La Signorina went into the gardens alone. An hour earlier she had seen Hillard mount and ride away, the last time but once. There seemed to bear down upon her that oppression which one experiences in a nightmare of being able to fly so high, to run madly and yet to move slowly, always pursued by terror. Even now there was a single avenue of escape, but she knew that she could not profit by it and leave these unfortunate derelicts to shift for themselves. Love! She laughed brokenly and struck her hands in suppressed fury. A fitting climax this! All the world was mad, and she was the maddest in it.

Some one was coming along the path. She wheeled impatiently. She wanted to be alone. And of all men Worth was not the one she cared to see. But the sight of his pale face and set jaws stayed her words. She waited restlessly.

"I have something to say to you," he said, "upon which your future welfare largely depends."

"I am listening." She showed surprise.

"There has been a tremendous wonder, as I understand, about this ball in regard to the strange manner in which the invitations were issued."

"Have you found out who did it?" she demanded.

"Yes." The light in his eyes was feverish.

"Who was it?" fiercely.

"I issued those invitations."

"You!" Her lips parted.

"Yes. I am the guilty man. The list was the main obstacle. I represented myself as secretary to her highness."

"And you have the effrontery to confess your crime to me!" her fury blazing forth.

"Call it what you please."

"What purpose had you in mind when you did this cowardly thing?"

"I had a definite purpose. An imposture like yours is a prison offense. You have seen that I love you, yet always ignore me. You must marry me."

"You are biding a threat."

"I shall hide it no longer. Marry me or I shall disclose the imposture to the police."

"Oh!" Then she laughed the laughter of one in deadly anger. "Mr. Worth, do you suppose, even had I entertained some sentiment toward you, that it would survive a circumstance like this?"

"I am waiting for your answer. Yes or no?"

"No!"

"Take care!" He advanced.

"I am perfectly capable of taking care. And, Mr. Worth, you will leave this villa at once. And if you do not go quietly I shall order the servants to put you forth."

"You speak as though you were the princess," he snarled.

"Till Thursday morning I am!" La Signorina replied proudly.

A man who loses his last throw is generally desperate. He seized her roughly in his arms. She struck him across the eyes with full strength. He gasped and released her.

"If I were a man," she said quietly, but with lightning in her eyes, "you should die for that!" She left him.

Worth burst into tears. He went to his room, got together his things and drove secretly into Florence.

On the night of the ball there was a brilliant moon. Rosy Chinese lanterns stretched from tree to tree. The orchestra was playing Strauss, the dreamy waltzes from "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief." Bright uniforms and handsome gowns flashed by the opened windows.

Leaning against the door which gave entrance to the ballroom from the hall were two officers negligently interested in the moving picture.

"Shall we go?"

"No, no! The prince himself will be here at 11. He was, singularly enough, not invited, and, knowing the story as I do, I am curious to witness the scene."

Hillard, peering gloomily over their shoulders, overheard. The prince! Oh, this must not be! There could be only one prince in a matter of this kind. He pushed by the Italians without apology for his [illegible], cured around

AMUSEMENTS.

A Representative American Play.

Now here in America can be found the types of strong individual character, combined with the remarkable power that dwells in locality, so well as on that rocky, sea-bound coast of New England, where dwell the descendants of that proud, staunch people who settled this country, and battled for the independence of the whole United States. Where live those hearty, genial sea-folk, full of warm-hearted generosity and quaint, wise ways of living, that endear them to all the rest of the world by their picturesque and strong characteristics. Agatha Renier grew up on board of an old whaler, moored at an ancient, disused wharf, and what befel her when she ventured into high life makes some very exciting scenes, that are reproduced to the very life as to locality and detail of character in this great play of "Miss Petticoats," which is booked at the Bradley Opera House on Monday, December 13, only, and will be presented by a very fine company, every one of whom was selected by his or her fitness for the characters.

The company carries its own beautiful scenery and elaborate costumes designed especially for this play, and its whole equipment is of the finest. This event has been looked forward to with great interest, for "Miss Petticoats was a great favorite as a book, and a very charming person to know, and the public have long looked forward to seeing her produced upon the stage, where she has already become a famous character. It is said to be also a very humorous play, full of that bright, pungent wit and wise satire peculiar to the section of New Bedford where the scenes are laid. One of the strongest hits is the quadrille danced by the four jolly tars who dance in the ball room of the Countess in Paris, and brings down the house in roars of laughter.

O. G.—Chas. Barry.

The officers for the T. B. A. were elected as follows;

Pres.—Della Pentecost.
Vice pres.—Celia Smith.

MICHIGAN'S FIRST PAPER.

Odd Things Seen in Rare Old Sheet Owned by Kalamazoo Man--Contained News of Napoleon.

"Fs" lookes like "Ss" and "Ss" like "Fs" in the first paper ever published in Michigan, which was on exhibition at the Bronson cabin during the recent Silver Anniversary at Kalamazoo.

"The Michigan Essay," the name of the paper, was published in Detroit by James M. Miller, and one of the first copies struck off is in the possession of Dr. W. S. Tomkinson, of Kalamazoo.

The "Michigan Essay, or the Impartial Observer" was a breezy sheet in its day, partly printed in English and partly in French. The news was divided into departments as follows:

"Foreign Intelligence," "Poetry," "Husbandry," "Humorous." Most of the news was a month or so old, and scoops were few in those days, but the Essay showed up remarkably well on the local.

The advertising rates were given as follows: "Advertisements, not exceeding a fquare, inferted three weeks for one dollar and 50 cents." Then an ominous hand pointing to this: "All advertisements muft be accompanied by the cafh."

The "Essay" was published first at a time when warfare was tearing Europe inside out, and when things were happening fast on the other side. All of these European events excited intense interest in the new republic of America. In those days news traveled slowly. There was no telegraph, telephone, nor cable. Even the railroad was undreamed of. Fulton was experimenting with the Clermont. News traveled by letter and by messenger, but it found eager readers all over the country.

Under the caption "Foreign Intelligence," such items of news as the following are found:

"From Prussia we learn that the news of the war between Russia and Austria had reached warfare—that the Austrians had left Warsaw, which they had entered, and that the duke Ferdinand had been forbidden by Prussia to violate the peace of Silesia. On the 13th of May the Russians were within two days march of Warsaw, and the duke Ferdinand was on his retreat.

"The Saxon army had reached Lintz on the 17th of May, and was marching for Vienna.

"Couriers for the French Emperor passed Leipsic on the 21st of May from Russia and from Sweden.

"The French papers contain several bulletins of the army of Germany, of a previous date to those we have mentioned, but we had not time to examine them.

"From the London Morning Chron.

"The appointment of Mr. Jackson to the American mission has excited general surprise, and much regret to those who are anxious for the removal of the misunderstanding subsisting between the government and that of the United States. The grounds of these feelings it is impossible to explain without animadverting upon the character of an individual, which is always an unpleasant task. But we are sure, that if either Mr. Liston or Mr. Garlike had been sent upon this mission, a very different result might have been expected.

"Ausburg, May 10.—One hundred and thirty wagons, crowded with wounded French, arrived at Ausburgh on the 2nd instant. Another escort equally numerous, arrived on the 5th; and it is computed that during the preceding fortnight, the wounded French, Wirtemburg and Bavarian troops conveyed thither, exceeded 14,000 men.

"A Russian army is collecting on the frontiers of Poland, which is called the western army of observation, and Prince Sergei Gofizyn has been appointed to command it.

"Jerome Bonaparte has confiscated the revenues of the chapter Wallestein at Hamburg, as also the property of the abbies and canonesses, for favoring the Wesphalian Insurgents.

"Forty thousand French troops from Spain, and the southern departments of France, were to cross the Rhine at Huningue, between the 19th and 15th inst.

"The king of Naples is forming a camp of 10,000 men near Elboli and another at Lagonegro under an apprehension of an attack from the British army in Sicily."

YOUNG COUPLE ELOPE FROM THE POORHOUSE.

Hillsdale, Mich., Dec. 3.—"Billy" Ostradder, aged 26, and Rose Davis, 26, inmates of the county poor house, slipped quietly out of their respective wards and eloped last night. Their sudden and unexpected departure was not discovered until this morning.

"No, I did'nt know that the couple had been courting quietly on the side, but it sure looks like it, doesn't it?" remarked Supt. Lovell, in discussing the unusual happening. He announced that he did not propose to find the couple unless they got to annoying people, and wished them much joy. The only thing about the affair that he does not like is that the woman took her 6-year-old son with her. The boy is a bright little fellow, and Supt. Lovell is afraid he may not receive the proper care.

NEW POSTAL CARDS

Will Soon Be Issued By The Government.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Designs for the new postal cards to be issued by the government have been approved by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The cards will be furnished to the postoffice department by the government printing office the first of next year.

On the ordinary card, the head of the late President McKinley will appear, as now, but a much better likeness of the martyred President has been selected. On the new small card, intended for Index purposes and for social correspondence, a likeness of President Lincoln will appear. The two-cent international card will bear a portrait of General Grant.

A novel and pleasing innovation has been made for the double, or reply postal card. On the first half will appear a portrait of George Washington, while the stamp on the second half for reply will be a likeness of Martha Washington.

The borders of the stamps on all of the cards will be diversified in design. On all of the cards the words "Postal Card," required by the Universal Postal Union convention, will appear on borders of the stamp, and not now as a separate inscription.

CHRISTMAS GIVING.

There is something about Christmas giving,—the thinking about others; and what they will like,—that warms the heart and makes one feel cheerful and happy and busy. That is, if the giving is done in the right way; not by bestowing useless trifles that soon degenerate into "clutter." Just for the sake of giving something, nor gets so expensive that you begrudge them, because handsome ones have been or may be given to you. Give something you believe is needed by the recipient. If too much for your single purse, the spirit of the day is "combination." How, for instance, would the mother appreciate an easy chair, or a new cloak or dress, given by ALL of her children? Or one family might unite in giving to another a good picture, or a subscription to a magazine. Pretty china and porcelain dishes, or a chafing dish, are always acceptable, and will bring many a pleasant thought of the donor if marked, "For daily use." But the main thing is for each to be bent on making every other member of the family happy and comfortable, even down to the old horse and dog and cat and the birds that winter with you; and it will thus be sure to be a happy time, full of the true spirit of Christmas.—Farm Journal.

For a mild, easy action of the bowels, a single dose of Doan's Regulets is enough. Treatment cures habitual constipation. 25 cents a box. Ask your druggist for them.

The bee sting cure for rheumatism is again coming into prominence. We should imagine that a few well directed bee stings properly applied would do wonders in limbering up stiff muscles for the time being at least.

A Policeman's Testimony.

J. N. Patterson, night policeman of Nashua, Iowa, writes: "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least half a dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world. Sold by all druggists.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Ruth Camburn was absent Monday.

Mary Scarlett was absent Monday morning.

A mass meeting of high school pupils was held Monday afternoon and it was decided to hold a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. Earle Smith Friday evening.

At a Junior class meeting Monday it was decided to postpone the class party until after the holidays because of the large number of other social functions.

Tuesday Miss Mingay's room commenced the study of spelling and pronunciation, in place of the regular morning rhetoricals.

Wednesday morning the pupils of the English III enjoyed a debate on that oft-argued subject, Resolved—that the week-day school vacation should come on Monday instead of Saturday. I am sure the pupils would erst a unanimous vote for having the vacation on both Monday and Saturday. Try them and see.

The password between T. H. S. students this year seems to be, "are you going up to the library?"

It has been announced that it is possible that the pupils standing best in the spelling contest may participate in an interscholastic spelling contest. Here's hoping they take revenge on Adrian.

Miss Mingay turned her haughty look on Frank Snell yesterday and he is now giving thanks for his miraculous escape from becoming a piece of statuary and adorning the end of the platform. Our Senior class president could not possibly be considered ornamental.

REV. DUNNING'S LETTER.

A Reply.

Editor Herald:

My attention has been called to Rev. Mr. Dunning's letter in your issue of last Friday. I appreciate his kindly words regarding our Bishop and desire to thank him for them. I fear, however, my good brother's letter was calculated, unwittingly, to convey two quite wrong impressions.

1. That Bishop Williams is not in position to speak intelligently of the problems of a small town. The Bishop was born and raised in a small town (about the size of Tecumseh) and for the last three years has been visiting up and down through the small towns of his diocese. Moreover, he could easily familiarize himself with the conditions in small towns without ever seeing one; the presumption is that in his life study of social problems he has done so, and, in particular, when undertaking to lecture upon them.

2. That the Bishop specially stressed the need of more amusements for the people of small towns. His point was rather the wisdom of providing proper amusement under proper conditions. At the same time it is doubtless true that there is always a goodly number of people in every town who do not have a fair share of legitimate amusement.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.

Bad Stomach Causes Unsightly Complexions. C. A. Wright Has a Remedy.

Why? The stomach in a healthy condition separates the nutritious matter from the food and gives it to the blood to supply the entire body with nourishment.

If the stomach is not in a healthy condition it does not separate from the food the nutritious matter and it passes off with the waste.

Thus the blood is impoverished and has not sufficient nourishment to supply the muscles, skin and body generally.

If you have belching of gas, distress after eating, nausea, biliousness, nervousness or foul breath, then your stomach is wrong and you want the best prescription for stomach troubles the world has ever known.

You want Mi-o-na tablets, the great stomach remedy which C. A. Wright & Son guarantees to cure indigestion, no matter of how long standing, or money back.

Relieves stomach distress at once.

Mi-o-na is sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son for 50c a large box. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

ONE RELATIVE AT THE GRAVE

Mrs. Ocey Snead Buried In Same Grave With Child.

PATHETIC WAS INTERMENT

No One at Funeral Service—Aunt of Dead Woman, Bowed With Sorrow, Places Bunch of Lillies on Casket and Asks That Prayer Be Said. Undertaker Recites Lord's Prayer.

New York, Dec. 9.—The body of Mrs. Ocey W. M. Snead, about whose death by drowning in the bath tub of a house in East Orange, on Nov. 28, there still exists a mystery unsolved by the police, was buried above a casket containing the body of her infant daughter, in a narrow plot of the Mt. Hope cemetery, in Westchester county, Wednesday. Mrs. Mary Snead, the aunt of the dead woman and one of the four elderly women who have figured in the unravelling of the circumstance of her mysterious death, was the only relative at the grave.

She did not attend the brief funeral services that were held in the Kunz undertaking establishment earlier in the morning—she had been told that her presence in New Jersey might lead to her being held as a witness by the authorities—and it was not until after the body of her niece had been brought to the New York side that Mrs. Snead, accompanied by F. W. Fort, attorney for the accused, Miss Virginia Wardlaw, left her room on West Twenty-second street and went by train to the cemetery. She was accompanied to the grave by two detectives from the Manhattan central office.

Relatives Not Notified.

The funeral services were held without any notification of the time set for them having been sent to him, Mr. Fort later complained, and consequently the relatives of the dead girl, who had been expecting to hear through him of the hour of the services, so that they might not allow the body to go to the grave unmourned, remained in ignorance of what was transpiring at the early morning hour until it was too late for any but Mrs. Snead to pay fitting attention to the final rites.

Mr. Fort called for Mrs. Snead in a hack shortly after the hearse had passed from the Twenty-third street ferry, and Mrs. Snead, who was heavily veiled, and whose shoulders drooped as if under a burden of grief and loneliness, sat apart with her hands folded in her lap. She asked Mr. Fort to buy her flower. He went to a florist shop and brought her back a spray of lillies. These she held until the cemetery was reached and the casket was lowered from the hearse to the supporting beams over the re-opened grave of the infant which was to receive the body of Mrs. O. Snead.

Put Lillies on Coffin.

The aunt of Mrs. Snead walked to the casket, supported on the arm of the lawyer, and laid thereon her spray of lillies. Then, in a whisper, she requested that someone pray before the casket was lowered in the grave.

Mr. Fort repeated the woman's request aloud, looking about quickly from the two detectives to the reporters, then to the undertaker. Nobody volunteered except the undertaker. He bowed his head and mumbled the Lord's prayer. After that the men got out the straps, and the casket, with the spray of lillies upon it, sank out of sight. Mrs. Snead returned with her friend, the lawyer, to her room on West Twenty-second street and made preparations to leave. Later in the day she went away with her few belongings in a bundle. Where she went is not known: Fort intimated that she would join her mother, Mrs. Wardlaw, in a home which she had found with friends who would shield them from further notoriety.

Prosecutor Nott said that the entire expense of the burial had been met by Essex county.

A Shocked Scot.

The London Chronicle says that two Englishmen recently touring in Scotland found that Sabbatarianism occasionally extends to the middle of the week. They were forced by the weather to take refuge in a small country hotel and after lunch adjourned to the billiard room to kill time until the rain stopped. The game had hardly started when the landlord entered in a very drunken condition, upbraided his visitors for their unseemly conduct and insisted on their leaving the billiard room. They received profuse apologies from the landlady. Her husband always got drunk on Sundays, she explained, but, mistaking the day, he had got drunk on Thursday instead, and from force of habit, believing it was Sunday, had been shocked at the click of the billiard balls.

Hard Luck.

"But, my dear, you are hurting your game of bridge."—Kansas City Journal.

A man is never appreciated in his home town, and he is usually not known in other places, anywhere you are.—Atchison Globe.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

First Don't Delay—Second Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache, headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John R. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York. Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

STUNG FOR 15 YEARS

by Indigestion's pangs—trying many doctors and $200.00 worth of medicine in vain, R. F. Ayscue, of Ingleside, N. C., at last used Dr. King's New Life Pills, and writes they wholly cured him. They cure Constipation, Billiousness, Sick Headache, Stomach Liver, Kidney and bowel troubles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son.

Young man, beware of the hammock these balmy summer evenings, or some fair fisher may gill you in its meshes.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are urinary disorders, weak back and backache, rheumatism and reumatic pains and twinges, pains in the groin, etc. There is nothing as good for kidney and bladder trouble as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. You may depend upon them to give entire satisfaction. They are antiseptic, act promptly and soothe pain. Sold by all druggists.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have pooven its absolute mrrit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Rich Men's Gifts Are Poor

beside this: "I want to go on record as saying that I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest gifts that God has made to woman, writes Mrs. O. Rhinevault, of Vestal Center, N. Y., "I can never forget what it has done for me." This glorious medicine gives a woman buoyant spirits, vigor of body and jubilant health. It quickly cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Head-ache, Backache, Fainting and Dizzy Spells; soon builds up the weak, ailing and sickly. Try them. 50, at C. A. Wright & Son.

USEFUL CONTRIVANCE.

Mrs. DeFlat: Can you show me anything new in folding beds?

Dealer: Only this, madam, and it really is quite a success. On arising in the morning you touch a spring and it turns into a washstand and bath tub. After your bath you touch another spring, and it becomes a dressing case with a French plate mirror. If you breakfast in your room, a slight pressure will transform it into an extension table. After breakfast you press these buttons at once, and you will have an upright piano. That is all it will do, except when you die it can be changed into a rosewood coffin.—Tit-Bits.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening powder. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been dispelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrenburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 903 Ellison St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

HAD PISTOL FOR WIFE.

Mrs. Gould Brokaw Tells on Stand of Husband's Actions.

Mineola, L. I., Dec. 9.—Mrs. Mary Blair Brokaw was an attractive and somewhat pathetic figure in the witness box Wednesday as she gave her testimony in the opening of her suit for separation against William Gould Brokaw before Justice Putnam in the supreme court.

The case was opened by Mr. Baldwin, for Mrs. Brokaw, who recited her experiences briefly from the time she was married Nov. 7, 1907, and wound up by asking $2,500 a month alimony for his client.

Mrs. Brokaw took the stand immediately after the noon recess. According to her testimony, Mr. Brokaw, soon after their marriage, accused her of flirting with other men on several occasions, and when she denied he called her a liar and had rewarded her with a string of names which Mrs. Brokaw preferred not to mention.

Mrs. Brokaw told of one occasion when they were entertaining about twelve guests. It had been Mr. Brokaw's custom to have ginger ale served in champagne bottles. On this occasion, some one, for the sake of a joke, had changed the casks to all champagne. When she lifted the glass to her lips, she said, everyone laughed.

Perceiving what had happened, Mr. Brokaw rushed from the room in anger and sent his valet for her. He said she had herself perpetrated the trick, according to her testimony, and called her a liar and an idiot when she denied his statements.

Mrs. Brokaw told of how, on one occasion when they had quarreled, Brokaw said he had a pistol in the next room for her, and for her to go in and take a look at it.

SHELDON INDICTED.

Former Phoenix President's Home Is Guarded.

New York, Dec. 9.—George P. Sheldon, who was deposed from the presidency of the Phoenix Insurance company and is now ill at his country home in Greenwich, Conn., has been indicted by the grand jury of this county on charges of grand larceny to the extent of $45,000. District Attorney Jerome's office will now wait before proceeding to further grand jury inquiry upon the offering of further evidence of irregularity by Superintendent Hotchkiss.

The work in connection with the Phoenix company's affairs has been placed by Mr. Jerome in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Nott. Mr. Jerome's office, however, is to take every precaution from now on in the matter of securing the appearance of Sheldon in answer to the indictment.

The New York district attorney has no official knowledge that Sheldon is ill. The routine of extradition is, therefore, to be gone through and afterward the degree of Sheldon's illness determined. Of course if he is dying he will not be removed to this state. In the meantime, it is stated on reasonable authorities, that Sheldon's house is being guarded.

Vessel Burning on Lake Erie.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9.—A wireless message, flashed from the steamer H. P. Bope, out in Lake Erie, reports a ship aground and afire about two miles outside the Southeast shoal lightship, Lake Erie. The identity of the vessel could not be learned.

HAS LEPROSY.

State Officials Believe They Have Found Afflicted Man at Calumet.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 9.—A former herdsman of reindeer in Alaska for the United States government, now a leper, is the brand put by the state health department upon a Finlander employed by a railroad company at Calumet.

Dr. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health, and Dr. A. S. Wertherm of the university have been investigating the case.

"It is an unmistakable case," says the latter in his report to the department. "The enlarged ears and the distorted face leave no room for doubt."

"We are in a quandry," says Dr. Shumway. "No Michigan law carries a provision for dealing with a case of this kind, though we have tried to have such a law enacted."

Surgeon General Wyman at Washington has detailed an expert to come to Calumet and investigate also.

The name of the afflicted man, as it reaches the officials here, reads like this, "Stanliaus Sqzppa." The man has a wife and seven children.

Drew is Resting Easily.

New York, Dec. 9.—At the Presbyterian hospital, it was said that John Drew, who was thrown from his horse in Central Park, is resting easily. There is no concussion of the brain, as was first thought, and his injuries, a fracture of the left collar bone and a contusion of the forehead, will probably make it necessary for the patient to remain in the hospital for two weeks.

BOAT'S FATE NOW KNOWN

Bodies Found Floating In Lifeboat.

ALL WERE FROZEN STIFF

Unfortunate Fellows Had Perished While Trying to Reach Shore—Position of Bodies Would Indicate Men Attempted to Keep Warm Smallest of Their Number—Believed Other Boats Will Be Found Near the Spot Where No. 2 Was Picked Up.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 13.—Doubt as to the fate of the Bessemer and Marquette car ferry No. 2 has been removed. The state fishing tug, Commodore Perry, has towed the car ferry's life boat No. 4, containing nine dead bodies, into the port of Erie.

Some sitting on the seats and others huddled up in the bottom of the craft, all were frozen stiff. The bodies were later identified as follows:

Thomas Steele, single, coal passer, Conneaut; John Hart, single, oiler, Conneaut; Charles Allen, single, Conneaut; George R. Smith, married, steward, Conneaut; William R. Ray, married, Conneaut; H. J. Thomas, Port Stanley, Ont.; Manuel Souars, single, Conneaut; Joseph Shenk, single, Conneaut; O'Hagen, London, Ont.

The life boat, its rail almost awash, was sighted by the tug fifteen miles north of Erie at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Captain J. T. Driscoll attached a line to the craft and towed it into port.

Joseph Shenk of Conneaut, the smallest man in the party, was the first to succumb to exposure. Others of the shipwrecked crew, evidently with the intention of keeping the spark of life in the frail body, huddled on top of and about Shenk and were found frozen in that position. The faces of some of the men were bruised and cut, apparently due to the efforts to keep up circulation.

C. J. Magill, agent of the Bessemer and Lake Erie railroad at Conneaut and manager of the car ferry, identified the men.

Captain Driscoll said he believed the other life boats would be found in the vicinity of the spot where he picked up No. 4. The search continues today.

INJURED IN NEW YORK.

Bay City Man Has Just Been Identified.

Bay City, Mich., Dec. 13.—Friends here have received word that Isaac N. Kinney, well known local attorney, is dying in Bellevue hospital, in New York city. Last Thursday, Kinne was found unconscious in the street, suffering with severe injuries, and taken to the hospital.

A card bearing the name of a New York man was found in his pocket, and through this man Kinney has just been identified. Kinney went to New York three months ago for treatment for a nervous trouble. A young Bay City woman, whom he was engaged to marry, died about a week after he went east.

Kinney is about thirty-five years old. It is not known here just how he was injured.

Will Double Its Capacity.

Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 13.—The Pontiac Light company will spend $50,000 to double the capacity of its electric lighting plant at once. The company has accepted a two-year contract to supply all the current used for power and lighting by the Oakland Motor Car company.

He Was.

"Owen Flannagan! Are you Owen Flannagan?" said the clerk of the court.

"Yes, begorra," replied the prisoner, with a merry twinkle in his eye. "I'm owin' everybody!"—London Mail.

BROWN GIRL'S SLAYER STILL AT LARGE

Detroit Police Have Not Even a Clue.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13.—Convinced that the murderer of Helen Brown, the thirteen-year-old girl who was outraged and brutally killed by some unidentified fiend, Friday evening, in Whitman's truck yard, 109 Jones street, is a man who knew the girl and knew the members of her family, detectives of Central station are bending every effort to the capture.

While Glenn G. Firestone is the only person that lived in the Brown home who is under arrest, officers have been detailed to watch others who knew Helen.

Chief of Detectives McDonnll admits the police have no case against Firestone at present. He believes Firestone has proved a complete alibi, but he is holding him because Firestone may prove valuable in other ways.

So far the case has baffled all efforts of the officers. The absence of anything definite to work on has proven a serious handicap. No person has given the officers a single clue upon which to work. One lead after another has been run down with no result.

Milwaukee Is Aroused.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 13.—Hattie Zynda of this city was accosted on the street. The result of this was her being assaulted and murdered, the worst crime of Milwaukee's history. The murder of the Zynda girl is almost identical with that of Helen Brown in Detroit. Milwaukee, however, has been aroused to a point which means the entire abolition of "mashing" in this city. The girl's murderer has not been captured.

President Lowell to Be There.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13.—Harvard men in Michigan are building great expectations on the annual banquet of the Harvard club in Michigan. This will take place in Detroit, the evening of Friday, Dec. 31. Chief interest in the event centers in the fact that President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university is to be in Detroit on that date, and is expected to be a guest at the banquet.

CONTRACTED FROM DOGS.

Is Pellagra, According to Theory of Louisiana Physician.

New Orleans, Dec. 13.—That pellagra is contracted from dogs, is the theory advanced by Dr. Rushing of Benson, president of the De Sota Parish Medical society of Louisiana. Dr. Rushing gave the reason for his belief in a paper read before the society.

Dr. Rushing, several months ago, was called to treat R. Y. Best, and he took his patient to New Orleans, where the most skillful physicians pronounced his case of pellagra and said that it was impossible to do anything for his relief.

Dr. Rushing took his patient home and continued the treatment. Shortly after his return he noticed that the dogs of the community were suffering from an ailment similar to pellagra, and upon investigation he found that just before taking sick Mr. Best had lost several valuable animals from the disease and that he had doctored the dogs. The doctor concluded that Best contracted the disease by inoculation.

TRAGEDY ON TRAIN.

Pittsburg Man, Returning From Sanitarium, Slashes His Throat.

Downingtown, Pa., Dec. 13.—On a Pennsylvania railroad express train Sunday afternoon, near Malvern, John Miller, superintendent of the Mellon National bank building, Pittsburg, slashed his throat with a razor and died in a few minutes. The tragedy occurred in the presence of his wife and a car filled with passengers.

Miller has been an inmate of a sanitarium in Atlantic City for some time. His health was somewhat improved, and he was on his way home when he killed himself.

King Leopold Apparently Has Not Long to Live.

AGED MONARCH HAS RELAPSE

Disobeyed Orders of His Doctors and Went For Drive—Suffers Violent Abdominal Pains—Heir Presumptive Is on Hand; Also Cardinal to Administer Last Rites.

Brussels, Dec. 13.—The condition of King Leopold has become seriously worse and he remains extremely ill. It would surprise nobody if his illness ends fatally, especially in view of his age. He suffered severely from rheumatism and dropsy during the past week, but the pains, having ceased considerably Saturday, his majesty, it is stated, insisted upon taking a drive. His physicians wholly opposed this, and tried their utmost to dissuade him, but they could not prevent him from going out. The weather was pleasant, but, returning to the palace, the king was seized with violent abdominal pains, which taxed the skill of the physicians to the utmost. They succeeded in alleviating them considerably at night, but they have returned even more acutely, and the patient's weakness has increased owing to his inability to eat.

The exact nature of the ailment is not stated by the doctors, whose bulletin, issued from the palace at Laeken, where the king lies, says, "The rheumatic pains have ceased, but his majesty is suffering from a disquieting affection of the bowels."

It is stated that the physicians decided that if the trouble increases there will be no alternative but an operation.

This will doubtless be a hazardous course in view of the king's weakness and age.

Prince Albert, the heir presumptive to the throne, and his wife have been summoned from Schoilnert and are now staying at the palace. The king's mind is clear. Cardinal Mercier, archbishop of Mechlin, is also staying at the palace, ready to administer the last rites of the church.

A council of the ministry was held Sunday afternoon.

THE REVOLUTIONISTS ARE CONFIDENT

Estrada Wires They Will Push Enemy to Defeat.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Officers of the state department deny the report from Managua that President Zelaya's troops had won a decisive victory over the insurgent forces. The state department has received a dispatch from Henry Caldera, American vice consul at Managua. Its contents were not disclosed.

Dr. Salvador Castrillo, the agent of the provisional government in Washington, also received a dispatch, which denied that the reported battle had taken place. This dispatch was signed by President Estrada. It was as follows:

"We are in an impregnable position at Rama. Our army is greater and more decided than ever. The enemy is two days' march from Bluefields, and they are asking for a conference with a view to a compromise. We are not disposed to make any concessions, and we shall push the enemy to defeat. We are sure of a victory. Our plan from the beginning has been to capture the enemy in Rama, and we shall yet accomplish it."

Well Known Gambler Dies.

New York, Dec. 13.—Patrick F. Sheedy, a well known gambler, is dead at his home, 161 West Thirty-fourth street. Death was caused by heart trouble. Mr. Sheedy had been ill since June and had been confined to his bed for the past two months. His family and friends had expected his death for some days.

Miss Wardlaw Is Held.

New York, Dec. 13.—In East Orange, N. J., Recorder Francis A. Nott has held for the action of the Essex county grand jury Miss Virginia Oceania Wardlaw, accused of causing the death of her niece, Mrs. Fletcher W. Ocey Snead.

Charles Justice of Grason, Ky., who is alleged to have committed murder in his town six months ago and who was captured at Mancelona, was being taken south by Sheriff Wolfert of Grason when he made a break for liberty as he was leaving a restaurant in Cadillac. One shot fired wild by the sheriff brought the prisoner to a stop.

Norman Anderson of Cadillac, found guilty several months ago of violating the local option law, will surrender himself to Sheriff Evans and begin serving a term of sixty days in addition to paying a fine of $200. The case was appealed to the supreme court, and the decision of the lower court has just been affirmed.

Old English Fine.

In the past if one Englishman called another a liar there was something to pay. The seventeenth century mayor, sheriff and city grandees generally were keen on this point of etiquette. The direct accusation cost 11s. 6d. ($2.76); the subtle hint cost 8s. ($1.92). And there was a reduction on repetitions.

Swearing, too, was promptly suppressed. In 1650 a law was passed laying down the penalty for a first offense. The fines were graduated. That for a lord was 30 shillings ($7.20), for an esquire 10 shillings ($2.40), while all "inferior persons" could have a "few words" for 3s. 4d. (80 cents).

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Fine Entertainment

GIVEN ON FRIDAY NIGHT, DECEMBER 10, ONE OF THE BEST OF THE SEASON.

Able Addresses Were Given by the Different Pastors, and a Fine Banquet which was Enjoyed by All Present.

"At dinner time I pray you have in mind where we must dine."

What more pleasurable place could there be to dine than with the Business Men's class of the M. E. church. About 125 enjoyed the flow of wit and wisdom and hospitality of this successful class, Friday evening Dec. 10.

The guests were received in the auditorium and at promptly 7 o'clock they were invited to the dining room where long tables were placed and everyone quickly seated.

Invocation was pronounced by Rev. Dunning. The Epworth League had charge of the supper and the guests were served by the members of the League. A two course supper was served and was enjoyed by all.

This was a new departure for the men's class in entertaining, inviting the ladies to be present and they certainly could not have wished for a more appreciative audience.

At eight o'clock the toast-master, Rev. Shaw, in a very happy manner gave greetings in behalf of the men's class to those present. He also remarked that he was very proud of the class. Then in a bright witty way, he told amusing stories of these faithful ones, hitting J. W. Wightman, George Tiffany, Will Waldron, H. C. Daniels and Joe Hanford, which provoked much merriment.

He introduced Dr. Hartzog whose subject was "Seed." Rev Hartzog said he was happy to meet with the Men's class and their guests, and he always mb like the Methodists, liked their free heartedness and cordial manner, and generous way of entertaining. They are always "Hail fellows well met." Then remarking to the audience on the side "you know that these Methodists do like to be patted on the back," "They reminded mm" "he said" of the story of the little boy who was patting a turtle on the back, and when he was asked by his mother why he did it he said, it looks so happy and run its head out."

Then taking up his subject for the evening, "Seed" he spoke of sowing the seed of God in foreign countries, illustrating it with many interesting stories.

The next number was "The Soil" and was given by Mr. May, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. May stated he had a great deal of hesitancy about speaking before men whose life work this was, that his work was more of—with the virgin soil which he thought more interesting, the laying of the foundation of the character of the youth.

He said his wife was a Michigan girl and when he took her to Ohio, she didn't know what soil was. He said there was one comfort in answering a toast, no one ever knew what you were going to talk about and even if you wandered it was a part of the game. In closing he said that the richness of a man's life depended on the rock on which it was founded.

Mr. May's remarks were listened to with deep interest and were thoroughly enjoyed.

Lynn Rogers, accompanied by Mrs. Ella Hodges, pianist, rendered "When the Lights are Low" in a pleasing manner.

Next on the program was a recitation by Floyd Waring, which was given with much effect.

The toast-master in introducing his brother-in-law, Rev. Idle, remarked they were chums in college and Rev. Idle visited him after they left school and a reporter fierce for news as usual, wished to know the name of his guest."

Now his name—Rev. Dunning Demosthenes, Disreli Idle, but he signs it Rev. Dunning D. D. Idle, but much to their surprise it appeared in the paper next day, Rev. Dunning, D. D., idle, pastor of——.

Mr. Idle retaliated by relating a story of him. His subject was "Sowing the Seed," and the sowing the seed in childhood produced the highest results in one's character. One must sow right thoughts, right deeds and right actions for character is destiny.

Earl Coller rendered the solo, "The Coming of the King" in a very fine manner and received a hearty applause.

Dr. Martin of Albion college, gave the last number on the program, "Reaping." He remarked that Emerson said there are only 14 stories in the world, all other stories are taken from these, and he had been treated rather unkindly as the previous speakers had told the 14 stories and there was nothing left for him to tell.

He delivered a very eloquent address on character building. It would be folly to attempt to tell the good thoughts he offered, the main point he made was to "sow the seed" in childhood in the proper soil and one need not worry about the harvest but the time to sow was in childhood.

Mr. Shaw then dismissed the guests and it was pronounced one of the best and most delightful evenings spent with the class.

The Business Men's class of the M. E. church is doing a fine work. They are now in their 5th year of organization, and have about thirty-five members, while taking up the study of the Bible as their main work all the live questions of the day are discussed. Rev. Shaw has been president for the past year and his leadership has been enjoyed by all, the coming year giving promise of being the most prosperous of any previous year.

This new innovation to have ladies for guests evidently was for a purpose, being monotonous I suppose to perpetrate the jokes about them as in previous occasions.

But the men all seemed full of joy this year as joke after joke was gotten off. The story of the little boy given where he and his papa were keeping a secret. He warned his father not to tell God for he would tell Mrs. God and then it would be all over heaven. Also the joke about women being such talkers caused a smile to spread over the faces of the ladies present, for these NON TALKERS had at that time not stopped talking for a minute from 8 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. "Gie us the gift to gie us to see ourselves as others see us."

Mr. May gave a new version of Mary's lamb:

Mary had a chicken
Its feathers white as snow.
The minister made a visit,
The chicken had to go.

It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of all the speakers that there was a connecting link between ministers and chickens.

Query—Why were the ladies not given a chance to defend themselves?

Rev. Idle scored the Toastmaster as a good Roastmaster.

Dr. Martin designated the speaker as the Ananias club.

The press came in for their share of good natured fun. How people were misquoted, etc., in when they wanted to be left out and out when they wanted to be left in, but everyone forgets the editor's business is to tell

All the things that you do,
And the things you don't do,
And the things that "they say"
that you do,
And things you have said,
Whether living or dead,
And the things that "they" think that you knew,
Just so that your capers
Get into the papers.

Battle Flags Now Sealed.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 2.—Nearly 160 battle flags, comprising those carried by Michigan soldiers during the wars of '61 and '98, are now in the air-tight steel cases in the rotunda of the capitol, and the sight is one worth going a long ways to see. If these flags could but speak, they would have some wonderful and thrilling stories to tell.

Many of the flags have seen hard service and are torn and tattered from service and bullets, and some are in such bad shape that they could not be unfurled, but are held about the flag staff. The entire rotunda, next to the wall, is taken up by the collection.

Besides handsome cases of steel and glass, with the state seal on the glass, each flag occupies a brass standard, on the front of which is a plate telling the number of the regiment which carried it. Electric lights are so placed that a close inspection can be made, and a rail protects the inspector from getting against the glass cases.

COURT NEWS.

The case of Catherine Jacobs vs. Orville Brisbek has been postponed on account of the illness of the defendant's attorney.

Alfred Lynn of Ridgway pleaded guilty in Justice Covert's court in Brooklyn last Monday on two charges one of catching and killing fish by means of spears and also of killing black bass less than 10 inches long. Deputy Warden Otto Ehon caught his man at Wampler's lake last Saturday night. Two men with Lynn escaped. The 50 lbs. of fish found in his possession were sent to the U. of M. hospital. He paid a fine of $15 on each charge and $5 costs.

Mark Miller, the young man charged with stealing bicycles, was found guilty Friday before Justice Hosmer and was sentenced to 90 days in the Detroit house of correction. Miller was but recently released from that institution where he had been sent for a similar charge from Justice Humphrey's court in Adrian. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Earl C. Michener represented the people and Attorney D. M. Wells the defendant. The latter gave notice of an appeal to circuit court. Miller was to have been taken to Detroit Saturday morning.

POOR DELUDED WOMEN.

Emma Goldman Sees No Freedom For Them In Ballot.

New York, Dec. 13.—Emma Goldman is sorry for the poor deluded women who imagine that the ballot will make them free. She said so Sunday afternoon at Lyric hall in about 10,000 words of impassioned oratory.

Over and over again she was interrupted by bursts of thunderous applause on the part of the audience of 500 persons.

The real trouble with woman, Miss Goldman explained, is that she is still a fetish worshiper and believes that her idols can cure all ills.

"Her gods have changed," she said, "but women is still on her knees. She either hates or loves, whether the object of her emotion be her doll or her candy or her new hat or her husband or her home. For her there is no middle road."

Hunting For Justice.

Justice is of course loudly demanded by every litigant in a court of law, but it is a frequent infirmity of the human mind to confuse justice with one's own cause. The late Thomas B. Reed, according to a writer in Law Notes, used to tell an amusing story to illustrate this tendency.

He was once retained by an enterprising client to prosecute an action. On talking with the plaintiff's witnesses Mr. Reed found that their stories were far from consistent, so he reported the fact to his client and advised that the suit be dropped. The client was somewhat perturbed, but told the attorney he would have a talk with the witnesses and let him know the next morning what he had decided to do. True to his word, he dropped in bright and early, wearing the cheerful look of one who has fought the good fight.

"I've seen those witnesses," he explained, "and they say they must have been mistaken when they talked with you. They all see it alike now. I've also seen some of the jurymen, and they think I'll win. Now, if there's such a thing as justice in law we can't lose."

BLERIOT TAKES FALL.

Attempts to Fly in Boisterous Weather at Constantinople.

Constantinople, Dec. 13.—Bleriot, the French aviator, attempted to make a flight in his monoplane here, but the attempt ended in a disaster. The weather was boisterous. An immense gathering of people invaded the flying ground, and this increased Bleriot's difficulties. Nevertheless, he rose well and had reached a height of sixty feet, when a squall caught him as he was turning, and, after a desperate struggle on Bleriot's part, the monoplane was driven against the roof of a house.

The machine turned over, and Bleriot fell about twenty feet. He was severely bruised and shaken, and one of his wrists was sprained. It is feared that he was hurt internally. He was escorted to the French hospital by a detachment of cavalry and a sympathetic crowd. The areoplane was much damaged.

WATER HYDRANTS FROZEN

Racine, Wis., Scene of Big Fire on That Account.

Racine, Wis., Dec. 12.—Fire has destroyed the entire plant of the Racine Manufacturing company, with one six story factory building and five four story structures, causing a loss of $600,000. Other structures adjoining, including fourteen residences and the warehouse of the Mitchell-Lewis Wagon company were destroyed or damaged, causing an additional loss of $50,000.

When the fire department arrived it was found that the water hydrants had frozen. By the time water was secured all hope of saving the factory was gone, and the department devoted its attention to neighboring buildings.

The company manufactures piano stools and automobile tops.

Bolivia.

Bolivia is famous for its silver, but also possesses considerable quantities of gold, which, however, cannot be extracted without great expense. In the seventeenth century an Indian near the town of La Paz found a mass of native gold, supposed to have been detached from the neighboring mountain by lightning. Bolivia is, on the whole, in a backward condition, political changes and internal conflicts having hindered the development of its natural wealth.

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

of all American magazines is a money-saver. You can't afford to order for next year without first seeing it. If you appreciate superior agency service, and demand maximum magazine value for the fewest dollars, write for it—today. It's free to YOU.

Let the Baking Board Become your BOARD of EDUCATION

The principle of all baking powder is simply this: Certain elements are combined which, when they come in contact with moisture and heat, undergo a chemical change or reaction.

This reaction causes a gas which makes the baking puff up or rise.

Now the very small part of the baking powder which remains in the food is entirely different from the original substance. And it is this remaining part that you eat, and not the original contents of the can.

For instance: In a Cream of Tartar Baking Powder—the Trust Brand—you do not eat Cream of Tartar in the baking, because the chemical reaction turns it into Rochelle Salts—an injurious drug.

So what concerns you most is what you really eat and not what you get in the can.

In Calumet Baking Powder the elements are such that the chemical change leaves no impurities in the food—it is chemically correct. Baking leavened with it contains no Tartaric Acid, Rochelle Salts, Alum, Lime or Ammonia.

Then you should use Calumet Baking Powder—and no other. It is not only more healthful but it is more reliable. Your baking will be lighter, sweeter and more delicious.

It does not cost as much as the Trust brands and is also more economical in use. It is a little higher in price than the cheap brands, but it is very much higher in quality.

Guaranteed under every pure food law—both State and National. Ask your Grocer—and insist on

A JOYFUL PASTIME

It's Really a Pleasure to Cure Catarrh by Breathing Hyomei.

It isn't a pleasure to saturate your stomach with vile nostrums or to shock the tender membrane of the nose and throat with disagreeable sprays and douches.

But strange to say there are a few thousands people who do not keep abreast of the times who are hoping against hope that these ancient method will rid them of catarrh.

If the readers of Tecumseh who suffer from catarrh want to banish this vile and disgusting disease forever go to C. A. Wright's to-day and get a complete Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) ousfit for $1.00.

If it doesn't cure it won't cost you a cent because C. A. Wright will give you your money back.

Hyomei is so simple and pleasant to use; pour a few drops from the bottle into the inhaler and breath it in. As it passes over the membrane and into the lungs with the air you breathe it sooths the raw membrane and kills the catarrh germs. Don't experiment longer. SENDS AN AGENT TO U. S.

Former Ambassador Creel Arrives For Conference With Knox—Mexico Hopes to Co-operate With United States in Divising Means to End Troubles Among Little Nations.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Senor Enrique C. Creel, former ambassador from Mexico to the United States and governor of the state of Chihuahua, has arrived in Washington from Mexico City to confer with Secretary of State Knox for the purpose of bringing about a peaceful solution of the present crisis in Central America. Senor Creel has credentials as a "diplomatic agent" from his government. He has an appointment to meet Secretary Knox at the state department at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He will remain in Washington about two weeks.

"My mission," Senor Creel said, "is confidential. The Mexican government desires to bring about an amicable adjustment of the present difficulties in Central America. We wish to end the present civil war in Nicaragua and desire to prevent trouble between the United States and Nicaragua. The United States and Mexico exchanged views upon the situation, but no program of joint action has been agreed on. The Mexican government was not acquainted with all the facts leading up to the present crisis, and as the Mexican ambassador, Senor Don Francisco De La Barra is absent from his post here, the foreign office thought it advisable to send a diplomatic agent to Washington to ascertain the real facts of the situation. During my visit to Washington I shall confer not only with officials of the state department, but also with the ministers from the Central American republics.

"The Mexican government hopes to co-operate with the United States in devising an amicable settlement of the difficulties in Central America. As soon as order is restored in Nicaragua, the first question that will come up for settlement will be whether or not President Zelaya shall remain in president, then some other well qualified person should be chosen. Mexico does not favor the candidacy of any person, but only desires the selection of some one capable of properly administering the affairs of Nicaragua. We desire the strict observance of the conventions of the Central American peace conference, which was held here about two years ago to prevent further conflicts between the republics of Central America.

Favors Consolidation.

"The Mexican government favors the consolidation, by peaceful means, of the five republics of Central America into one union, but we do not regard the present time as opportune for accomplishing this purpose. The people of Central America are in favor of consolidating the five republics into a United States of Central America. Of course, the existing governments of the five republics do not favor this proposition. This is an important distinction. The Mexican government hopes that such a consolidation will be ultimately accomplished. The first problem, however, is to restore peace in Central America."

Panama Supreme Court Finds No Reason to Drive Out an American.

Panama, Dec. 13.—Supreme court has rendered a lengthy opinion in the habeas corpus proceedings in the case of W. P. Spiller, an American, whom the Panama authorities ordered deported at the request of the canal zone government, which charged that Spiller was inducing employes to leave the canal zone.

The court recited the treaty with the United States and the laws of Panama touching on the case and held there was no cause for deportation. It ordered that Spillar be restored to his former civil rights and that he be protected therein.

The opinion has created considerable comment in view of the determination of the government to deport him.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John B. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have pooven its absolute mrrit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

When Man Was a Marine Animal.

It was M. Quintan, a French physiologist, who several years ago wrote a paper to show that the colorless fluid in which the red corpuscles of our blood float and which is called the "blood serum" is the same fluid as that which constituted the primeval sea. The earliest forms of life which floated in the primeval sea were such that the cells and tissues of which they were constituted were always bathed by this primeval fluid. When silica became a constituent of the sea these animals may have coated themselves with silicious coverings, but many of their cells were still bathed by the fluid, and some of them as they passed from the sea to the land may have closed up their alimentary canals, so that a distinction arose between their internal organs and their outer superficies, but still, for the good of their cells, they still bathed them in the saline fluid. To do so more effectively they took the saline fluid ashore with them in the form of a blood serum, and it is this blood serum which we carry about with us today, the most evident relic of the age when we were marine animals.

German Dialect in Wisconsin.

It is two German women who are speaking in the presence of an Irish woman.

"Th' tap o' th' moruin' t' ye, Mis' Brettschneider. 'Tis glad I am t' see th' likes av ye. Iss yer daughther Gretchen goin t' the Hill th' morrow?"

"Faith an' she is. Ven me bye Heinrich can get th' bay haarse away from th' plowin' I think I'll go mesilf, bedad."

This is not travesty. It is a report of German dialect. The manner of speech came about naturally enough. When the Germans arrived here in full force the country was already settled, largely by Yankees and Irish, and the German had to buy his farm here or there. Thus a number of them found themselves located in the town of Erin, where, of course, they learned the language of the country. And I leave it to my fellow citizens in Wisconsin whether a German cannot speak as broad and rich a brogue as any son of Erin.—Charles D. Stewart in Atlantic.

First Use of Iron.

As a result of his interesting investigations, Dr. Ridgeway concludes that the smelting of iron originated in central Europe, and especially in the region known as Noricum, equivalent to modern Austria and Bavaria.

In Egypt it can be traced back to the ninth century B. C., and in Libya to about 450 B. C. First mention of its use in China goes back to 400 B. C., while in Uganda it is said to have been in use only some five or six centuries.

The above date for the first use of iron in Egypt refers to the metal obtained by smelting. The use of native iron in the form of meteorites dates back to remote antiquity. The weapons made from these were obtained, like flint implements, by chipping. And it is interesting to remember that recent investigations have shown that the iron of many meteorites is a sort of natural steel.

A Cod Liver Oil Fiend.

"When I was anæmic," said a pale man, "I took cod liver oil. I had a careless habit of leaving the oil uncorked, and it began to disappear. Some one was drinking it. There was a cod liver oil fiend in the house. I decided to trap the thief," he went on, gazing thoughtfully at his large white feet, "and one night I purposely drank two cups of black coffee so as to keep awake. Gentlemen, you will hardly believe what happened. The thief was a rat—a big, sleek, fat rat. The oil, I guess, had agreed with him. As I watched him from the bed he leaped silently on to the bureau, dipped his tail in the bottle, lifted it out and licked it clean, and then dipped and licked it again and again till a good two inches of the oil was gone."—Exchange.

Sun Cooking.

Sun cooking—roasting and boiling by sunlight instead of by coal or gas—has been going on for 300 years. There are sun stoves that roast a sirloin or boil a soup to perfection. They are only used, however, by scientists. A sun stove consists mainly of a mirror—a spherical mirror—on a joint. There is also a reflector. The place for pot or plate is so situated that the mirror's rays can be focused on it accurately.

A German, Baron Tcherhausen, was the first sun cook. He began in 1687 to boil water, and in 1688 he had very good success in boiling eggs. Sir John Herschel and Buffon are other famous names associated with sun cooking. In California various sun cooks have boiled a gallon of water in twenty minutes, roasted meat in two hours and poached eggs in fifteen minutes, quite as good time as the ordinary fire makes.

An odd thing about meat roasted by sun rays is that it has an unpleasant taste. This is avoided by the insertion of a plate of yellow glass between the meat and mirror. In all solar stoves the sheet of yellow glass figures.—London Tit-Bits.

An Indigestion Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously.

Dyspeptics cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured take his fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn., B. F. Thompson, of Shenandoah, Ia., who actually considers that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50-cent or $1 bottle of the druggist, and, taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach, and this is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proved to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartic tablets, salts, etc., away.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

QUIT PROTESTING THEIR LOYALTY

Dickinson Believes Southerners Should Do So.

NO DOUBT EXISTS TODAY

Secretary of War Principal Speaker at Banquet of Southern Society in New York—He Challenges Idea That Civil War Was Contest Between People of South and North.

New York, Dec. 9.—William F. McAdoo, tunnel builder and president of the Southern society, presided last night at the society's twenty-fourth annual banquet in the ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria. Six hundred southerners and others were present. Secretary of War Dickinson was the principal speaker.

Secretary Dickinson arose to the toast, "The Invasion of the North by the South."

"It is an almost invariable custom at public gatherings of southerners in the north to protest their loyalty to the United States," said Mr. Dickinson. "I believe that the time has come when there is not only no good ground for, but conclusive reason against, giving special emphasis, as southerners, to such declarations. By implication, they suggest a doubt where none should exist, and one of such importance as not to be ignored. They do not reflect a true appreciation of the spirit of the day."

Taft Said Right Thing.

The true attitude of the south, he said, was described by President Taft at Columbus, Miss., when he said that their hearts and emotions were "broad enough to entertain loyalty to the issues of the past and entire loyalty to the present government."

The invasion which the secretary had in mind was a peaceable one, and he found an analogy in the incorporation of the Scot into the kingdom of Great Britain and his share in making that nation illustrious.

"Southerners were not to be blamed," said Mr. Dickinson, "for their apparent apathy following the civil war. For a long time it was a struggle for bare existence. Then many of them came north. These men had no endowments but hope, courage, the discipline of the beneficient school of poverty and the high ideals of manly bearing and personal honor that were their birthright.

Untrained in Humility.

"They may, in the early years, while things were yet warm, have impressed some as not showing becoming contrition for the part they had recently played. They had been schooled in misfortune, but were untrained in humility. But they were, helped by the people with whom they had come to live. Once started, the invasion did not stop when the causes that gave it impulse ceased to act, and they became a forceful part of the business, professional and social life in all the larger progressive cities."

The secretary challenged the idea that the civil war was a contest between people of northern and southern blood, saying that it was a war between states. He pointed out that the south owed the doctrine of secession to the north, and he cited instances of occasions when this principle had been enunciated throughout the history of the country.

FURTHER INDICTMENTS

They Are Expected Against Warriner in Big Four Case.

Cincinnati, Dec. 9.—The prosecutor has formally set the Warriner and Ford Big Four railroad shortage cases for Dec. 16. He does not expect to try the Warriner case that day.

There will be another bunch of indictments returned Friday, according to the report in the court house. This will include at least one other name than Mrs. Jeanette Ford and Warriner.

King Leopold Very Ill.

Brussels, Dec. 9.—Though official reticence concerning the exact state of King Leopold's health is maintained, information from private sources is to the effect that his condition is causing the utmost anxiety. It is reported that his rheumatism is extending and has been complicated by paralysis, of which he has experienced two strokes, as well as with pulmonary troubles.

House Blown Up in Strike District.

Struthers, O., Dec. 9.—A double frame house, occupied by the families of Harry Birney and Louis Smith, recently brought here by the American Sheet and Tin Plate company to work in the local mill, in which a strike is in progress, has been wrecked with dynamite. William Birney, father of Harry, was nearly suffocated under the debris, and six other members of the two families sustained slight injuries.

Fine Christmas Decorations

In visiting the different stores in the village we notice the merchants are putting on the Yuletide dress and every store has been beautifully decorated for the holiday season. The show windows are especially attractive and seems to out do the decorations of previous years.

One of the prettiest windows and one which attracts much attention is that of Heesen & Heesen's Clothing store. A large improvised clam shell

Another unique one is E. J. Peters show window in which he has placed a minature world showing the north pole, Had Cook and Peary waited until Yuletide they evidently would not have had so far to travel.

B. J. Puyler has filled his window with beautiful Xmas gifts such as pictures toilet articles books etc. Garlands, and Xmas bells add a touch of beauty to the decorations.

The snow window at Wm. Palman's department store is a pretty sight, Strings of cotton batting have been arranged to represent falling snow and when the window is lighted it is very pretty.

In the east window of the City bakery is a fine display of candies, fancy boxes and to make the window more attractive garlands of green and red Xmas bells complete the decorations.

J. J. Belcher's window is nicely fitted with a fire place and around this are hung the little stockings for Santa to fill.

The Tecumseh Candy Kitchen has been beautifully trimmed for the holiday with strands of red, white, green crepe paper and Xmas bells.

The Novelty store windows are attractive for the children as well as the older people. One window is filled with beautiful china and the other with toys of every description. The interior of the store is artistically decorated with garlands and Xmas bells both large and small.

Rosacrans and Son's have neat and pretty window decorations of beautiful rugs and curtains. The interior of the store is filled with beautiful gifts of every description.

Avery, Lowry & Son, Williamson Bros., Anderson Bros., and Gilbert Co. groceries have made their show windows attractive with fruits and candies.

Satterthwaite Bros. and Whitnack & Co. hardwares suggest many useful articles which could be given as Xmas gifts, their windows showing carving sets, baking dishes, knives and other articles to numerous to mention.

The decorations in the various business places add much to the attrativeness of the Chicago, St., and shows Tecumseh has some hustling business men.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sunday morning and evening Rev Stead, a former Tecumseh boy, now missionary in Persia will speak. See announcement elsewhere.

Young peoples' meeting at 6. Topic "A Christmas Thought — What if Christ Had Not Come." A study of what the world would be without Him.

The Fair given by the ladies last Friday was a great success, the proceeds being $150, after all bills were paid.

The Christmas celebration of the Bible School will be held next Friday, Christmas eve. There will be a large Christmas tree. Provisions may be brought for distribution to the poor and an offering will be taken for this purpose. Any one who so desires may put presents on the tree.

Sunday evening, Dec. 26, the Bible school will give its Christmas program. A musical program "The Christmas Star," supplemented by special music by the choir, chorus and soloists. The offerings of the day will go to Foreign Missions.

METHODIST CHURCH.

10 a. m.: Morning worship and Bible study. The pastor will preach on "Duty Set to Music."

11 a. m. Men's class. Topic "Paul's Contests in Jerusalem and Caesarea.

6 p. m. Epworth League. Topic, "Leavening the Lump," Luke 13, 20-21. Leader, Mrs. D. Stanley Shaw.

7 p. m. Preaching service by the pastor. Subject "The New Man." Another sermon on Social Reconstruction, the proposition being that a new age without new men is only a Utopia. There is but one way to each man's best and it is suggested in the poem: "There is one way for thee, but one: inform Thyself of it. Seek and ye shall find.
To each the way is plain. The way the wind
Points all the trees along: the way run down
Loud singing streams: the way the sun exacts
His travel, and the moon and all the stars
Soar: and the tides move toward it: Nothing bars
A man that goes the way that he should go.
Go thy way.
All things say.
Thou hast thy way to go: thou hast day
To live: so live thy life and go thy way.

An old fashioned Christmas tree will hold sway on Christmas Eve. Parents and friends of the children are requested to send presents to the church not later than Friday noon. We want that the Christ spirit shall prevail and to that end we ask that no expensive presents be put on the tree. Let there be as far as possible an equality in the kind of gifts if not in the number. Display is out of keeping with the Christmas spirit. Just a little judgement on the part of each will make the occasion much more democratic and pleasurable for all. To emphasize the fact that it is more blessed to give than to receive, request is made that we be liberal in our gifts to the poor. Let every child bring something. Groceries, meats, vegetables, clothing, candies, nuts, anything serviceable can be used to advantage. Don't save everything for fairs and rummage sales, but gladden the the hearts of the worthy poor by a liberal Christmas offering.

At Presbyterian Church Sunday, December 19

Next Sunday, a former Tecumseh boy and graduate of our high school, Rev. F. M. Stead, now a missionary at Kermausha, Persia, will speak both morning and evening at the Presbyterian church.

All old friends and many others will be glad to hear of his story of Persian experiences.

In the evening he will speak on Persian life, and will illustrate his talk with sterioptican pictures of his own taking. The public is invited to hear him. In the evening an offering will be taken for the mission society under whose auspices he comes.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

In these few days before the beginning of the first regular session of Congress of President Taft's administration, there is considerable wild talk of disagreement between this administration and the preceding one.

There is no historical fact better fixed in the minds of the people than that President Taft was elected on a platform to carry out the Roosevelt policies.

That the people of the country and the press are jealously and critically watchful that this contract shall be lived up to, is known by everyone interested in public affairs. There is no evidence that there is any real disagreement between the ex-President in Africa and the President in America.

There is, of course, a great deal of talk by men and writing by journalists, famous or notorious, as the case may be, but there has not yet come to surface evidence of divergence in policy or in aim.

The Pinchot-Ballinger episode is, of course conspicuous, but there is reason to believe that President Taft is sincerely determined to push the policy of forest preservation and to secure for the benefit of the whole people, the unappropriated mineral and water resources of the country. It is not unnatural that he should desire as far as possible, to stand by his recently chosen cabinet officer while he is under fire, or until the charges against him are proved.

If they shall be proved, the president will doubtless, be given an opportunity to accept his resignation.

Journalism in America is nothing, if not sensational. Sensationalism is its distinguishing characteristic over the journalism of the older countries, and it is not unnatural that Mr. Waterson, of the Louisville Courier Journal, returning from a tour in Europe, should on landing predict and wager that Taft and Roosevelt will be at dagger's point by the time of Mr. Roosevelt's return in February. Possibly, the Kentucky editor may win his wager. Stranger things have happened in the happiest of political families but, at present, the political pond is calmer than it looks.

The United States government through the Department of Justice, is carefully watching the development of the Western Union Telegraph company and the American telephone trust combination and the country will, doubtless, hear further during the coming congressional session of the plans of the government for controlling not only the railroads of the country, but also of the telegraphic and telephonic wires.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.

Bad Stomach Causes Unsightly Complexions. O. A. Wright Has a Remedy.

Why? The stomach in a healthy condition separates the nutritious matter from the food and gives it to the blood to supply the entire body with nourishment.

If the stomach is not in a healthy condition it does not separate from the food the nutritious matter and it passes off with the waste.

Thus the blood is imporvished and has not sufficient nourishment to supply the muscles, skin and body generally.

If you have belching of gas, distress after eating, nausea, billiousness, nervousness or foul breath, then your stomach is wrong and you want the best prescription for stomach troubles the world has ever known.

You want Mi-o-na tablets, the great stomach remedy which C. A. Wright & Son guarantees to cure indigestion, no matter of how long standing, or money back.

Relieves stomach distress at once.

Mi-o-na is sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son for 50c a large box. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE BURGLAR.

A Charming Comedy Drama.

A very unique niche in the history of things theatrical is filled by Augustus Thomas' pretty play of "The Burglar", which comes to the Bradley Opera House, one night, Friday, December 17.

No play ever written has a more complete sway upon the feelings that actuate the human being; no prettier story ever told; no dramatic teaching profound. The moment Editha declares her fearlessness, the burglar is in her power. Her innocent appeal in behalf of her stepfather, her willingness to have the intruder take everything belonging to herself, providing no one else is victimized, and and other evidence of uncommon solicitude, all appeal to the finer sentiments of theatre patrons.

The play will be given a splendid production with special scenic effects and is in the hands of an excellent cast, including Mr. James O'Neill and Miss Agnes Lee who theatre goers will remember in "Under Southern Skies" and Lillian Harding, the marvelous child actress, in the delightful comedy drama, "The Burglar", by Augustus Thomas, author of "The Witching Hour," "The Harvest Moon," "Arizona," etc.

The American Girl.

From an Editorial in the Century for December, "Are We Ashamed of Good Manner?"

Many others besides Mr. Henry James have remarked upon the absurd position held in American society by young women. The ruinous indulgence of children ought at least to be confined to the home circle, and be carried into a world where age, intelligence and experience should have precedence and should form the standards. The reversal of values, so as to make the debutante the point of interest in a social season instead of the accomplished matron, is as though society should have foresworn its functions. This would be true even were the manners of the debutante all that they should be in deference, suavity and tact. The experience of Washington, where society is fairly representative, goes to show that much is still to be desired in these respects in the general education of American girls.

THE MEN'S CLASS ENTERTAINMENT

At Presbyterian Church

The entertainment given by the Men's class of the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening was a success in every way. Nearly 200 were present and about $35 was cleared for the class.

The program was in three parts. The first was a musical program. Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Hodges opened it with a delightful piano duet, the audience calling for an encore. Miss Edith Wilson was at her best in her solo, and sang with fine excellent number, and Miss Edna Gaston and Floyd Slater delighted the audience with two excellent solos.

The second part of the program was a lecture by Mr. Dunning on "The Desert of Arizona, the Grand Canyon, the Pacific Coast and Canadian Rockies." It was illustrated with sterioptican photographs taken on a recent western trip, many of them beautifully colored. A study was made of the life and country of the great west, with special attention to the Grand Canyon, the forests of Oregon, and Canadian Rockies. A special feature of the lecture was the story of a trip to the timber claim of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frost, 30 miles from a railroad, in the heart of the Oregon forests. Pictures were shown of Mr. and Mrs. Frost and of their claim and cabin in the woods.

The entertainment closed with a Victrola concert. Mr. Fitzsimmons loaned his Victrola the occasion and it filled the church with music. There were 10 numbers and the features were solos by Madame Eliza Tettrazini and Eurico Caruso, the great tenor. There was also a brief address by Wm. Jennings Bryan on "The Ideal Republic." A song by Billy Murray, "Haggerty", from Geo. Cohan's "Fifty Miles From Boston," was also a feature.

Everyone voted it a fine entertainment. It was the third given by the class.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The debate in English III class on Resolved—That capital punishment should be abolished, was listened to with much interest. The judges decided in favor of the negative.

There has been a museum started in the high school. All are invited to contribute to this new addition. The first donations were made by Miss Mingay consisting of a piece of statuary in the person of Hon. Frank Snell and the largest living molly-codle. Herbert Henderson.

Only eight days more.

Cheerful thought for tomorrow—It has been announced that school will adjourn one day earlier than announced in the school catalogue. But think again; it also begins one day earlier, bad 'cess to it.

Mary Scarlet has been absent from school the last two days.

READ THE BIBLE.

Dissipated Man Than Took His Life by Strangling.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 13.—Winding up a session in high life lasting for almost a year, William H. Carson a shoe salesman, recently of Batavia, N. Y., strangled himself in his apartments here.

Worrying constantly over his domestic difficulties, Carson began a life of dissipation. Of late he has been in a despondent mood, constantly. A friend found him stone dead on his bed. He had strangled himself to death with a belt.

Lying on a table at the side of the bed was an open bible. Carson had read the book just before taking his life, it is supposed.

"May this be your guide.—Mother," was written on the cover.

A Bobolink With a Canary Song.

A friend of mine tells of a bobolink which learned to sing like a canary. He was captured when quite small and given a cage beside a fine singer, for which he soon exhibited a great attachment. He would sit perfectly still on his perch for a long time watching his friend intently, then try his best to imitate his sweet notes. He tried for three or four weeks before making any progress; then he succeeded in sounding one note almost correctly. When he realized his success his wild joy was pathetic, and the canary's pleasure was very evident. Then he redoubled his efforts until he could sing nearly the whole canary song. After that he and Dick always sang in concert. But, strangest of all, his character seemed to change with his song. Instead of singing but a short time in the spring, as bobolinks do, he sang all the time except when molting. And he imitated his friend's characteristics so perfectly that he became a canary in all but appearance.—Ella H. Stratton in Suburban Life.

Was It Worth It?

Workemer Smeargent, royal academician, was painting the portrait of Lady Anstruther Anstruthers, and Lady Anstruther Anstruthers was very plain—well, as a matter of fact, she was jolly ugly. And, though she was paying him 300 guineas merely for painting the portrait and was going to pay him 000 guineas more for the portrait itself when it was completed, Workemer Smeargent was not satisfied. He felt he might be going blind. Looking at her face so much hurt his eyes.

"Now, what I want, Mr. Smeargent," said the unfair lady, "is for you to do me plain, simple justice."

"My dear lady," replied Smeargent, "what you require is not justice, but mercy. When I tell you to look pleasant you don't look natural, and when I tell you to look natural you don't look pleasant."—London Express.

How Letters Strike Our Eyes.

Roman letters of various sizes are commonly called into request by oculists in testing vision. Recent experiments show great differences in the ease with which the various letters are recognized by the same person. T is especially difficult of recognition and is apt to be mistaken for Y. By a similar optical illusion the angle of L is rounded off, making the letter resemble a reversed J. V is the easiest of all letters to recognize, and O presents little difficulty. K is more easily recognized than H, which resembles it closely, and both N and Z are easily recognized. A is easily guessed at from its general form, but is difficult of positive recognition, including distinct perception of the horizontal line. E and F are among the most difficult of all letters.

Discouraging.

A pompous man went into a drug store early the other morning to buy a cigar. The only person he found there was the soda water dispenser. The boy was sweeping out the store.

"Sweeping out, eh?" said the man. "Well, that's how I got my start."

The boy looked him over and replied. "Aw, what do you want to discourage me like that for?"

When the man left he was frowning.—Denver Post.

Edifying.

Gentleman (looking for rooms)—Did you say a music teacher occupies the next apartment? That cannot be very pleasant. Landlady (eagerly) — Oh, that's nothing. He has eleven children, and they make so much noise you can't hear the piano.—Harper's Bazar.

Utilizing Her.

"My dear, the hired girl has quit."

"Well, that's all right. Just drop a line to your mother inviting her to visit us. She'll do the housework until we can get another maid."—New York Journal.

FORMAL OPENING OF ST. PETER'S PARISH HOUSE

About 150 Guests Entertained

The formal opening of St Peters Parish house took place Tuesday evening the ladies of the Alter Guild being charge of the affair.

One hundred and fifty guests enjoyed their hospitality and supper was served by the young ladies of the Guild.

The former rectory has been converted into a Parish house where amusements and entertainments can be given in interest of the church. The furnishings of the house have been almost entirely gifts from the people interested in St Peters Church John Hicks gave a donation of a range and heating stoves, and fuel for the winter; the dishes and silver ware the gift of Lucius Lilley, and are ample enough in number to serve a large crowd, a check from Mrs. Stanley Smith of Woonsocket, R. I. will insure the Parish house with as fine a piano as can be purchased, the shade for the windows were gifts from Mrs. Rice. There are many gifts both large and small that were needed for the furnishing of the house.

St Peters have need to be proud of this addition to their church and no doubt will be a great help to them in their church work.

Ones mind, naturally turns to those early days of St Peters, for St Peters was the first church built in Tecumseh. The early settlers of this village were interested in religion an unusal degree. On the Sabbath they asssemblen in some convenient room for devotions, but it was the wish of all them to have a church edifice in which to worship. In the summer of 1833 the Prostestant Episcopal Church knonw as St Peters first moved in an enterprise of the kind. On the 10th of October 1833, the corner stone was laid for the church Rev. Lyster delivered the address. About $2000. was subscribed by Tecumseh people and then he went east and gathered $2000 more. August 2, 1835. divine service was held in the church for the first time.

St Peters has under gone many changes since those early days and the greatest changes is the owning of the Parish house with all its furnishings. What astonishments and joy it would have brought to the heart of Rev. Lyster and the pioneers could have seen the prosperous condition of St Peters and that it may long continue is the wish of all its friends.

Your cream—all of it—from the milk. That separates you from the most work. That separates you from the least money. That separates you from all worry.

Selection of cream separators for this store was made only after a careful consideration of all lines. It was determined to have nothing but the best.

That's Why You Find the Empire Here.

Come in and See How the Empire Works.

It almost runs itself. The bowl revolves with so little friction that it runs a full half hour after you stop turning the crank. And it is just as simple as it is easy. Nothing to get out of order, and no complicated parts to wash. Come in and see it. Get also a supply of the sensible, interesting dairy literature free to you, waiting for you at this store. ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have pooven its absolute mrrit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Rich Men's Gifts Are Poor

beside this: "I want to go on record as saying that I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest gifts that God has made to woman, writes Mrs. O. Rhinevault, of Vestal Center, N. Y., "I can never forget what it has done for me." This glorious medicine gives a woman buoyant spirits, vigor of body and jubilant health. It quickly cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Head-ache, Backache, Fainting and Dizzy Spells; soon builds up the weak, ailing and sickly. Try them. 50, at C. A. Wright & Son.

People who are always harping on their troubles don't dispense a very high grade of music.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

First—Don't Delay—Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John B. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

She struck him across the eyes.

strode up and down the floor, his spurs tinkling and his saber rattling harshly. Occasionally he glanced at the group on the opposite side of the room. He laughed silently. Oh, he would enjoy himself tonight. He would extract every drop of pleasure from this unexpected moment. Had she been mad, he wondered, to give him this longed for opportunity? A month longer and this scene would have been impossible. At last he came to a stand in front of La Signorina, who was white and weary.

"So," he said, "after five years I find you, my beautiful wife! What a devil of a time you have given me—across oceans and continents! A hundred times I have passed you without knowing it till too late. And here, at the very moment when I believed it was all over, you fling yourself into the loving arms of your adoring husband! I do not understand!"

"Be brief," she replied, the chill of snows in her voice. Her hate for this man had no empty corners. "Say what you will and be gone."

"I shall telegraph the attorneys in Rome to partition the estates, my heart!" he mocked her. "The king will not add to his private purse the riches of Colonel Grosvenor and the Principi di Monte Bianca, your father and mine—old fools! To tell the truth, I am badly in need of money, and, head of Bacchus, your appearance here is life to me, my dear Sonia. Life! I am a rich man. But," with a sudden scowl, "what position in my household does this gentleman occupy?" indicating Hillard and smiling evilly.

"So it is all true, then?" Hillard exclaimed. "You are his wife!"

"Well?" cried the prince impatiently. "I inquire again, what position does he hold?"

"This villa is mine," she answered, her tone giving hint to the volcano burning in her heart. "However the estates may be partitioned, this will be mine. I command you to leave it at once. I loathe you."

The prince laughed. She was simply a sack of gold. But this was his hour of triumph, and he proposed to make the most of it.

"I could have let the carabinieri take you to prison," he said urbanely. "A night in a damp cell would have chastened your spirit."

"Is it possible?" returned Hillard. "Your highness has but to say the word and I will undertake the pleasure of relieving you of this man's presence."

"Be still," she said. "Will you go?" to the prince.

"Presently. First I wish to add that your dear friend is both thick skulled and cowardly. I offered to slap his face a few nights ago, but he discreetly declined."

"I am calm," replied Hillard, gently releasing his arm from her grasp. He approached the prince, smiling, but there were murder and despair in his heart. "Had I known you that night one of us would not be here now."

"It is not too late," suggested the prince. "Come, are you in love with my wife?"

"Yes."

The bluntness of this assertion rather staggered the prince. "You admit it, then?" his throat swelling with rage.

"There is no reason to deny it."

"She is your"—

But the word died with a cough. Hillard, a wild joy in his heart, caught the prince by the throat and jammed him back against the rose satin panel. Hillard seized his sword arm and pinned it to the panel above his head. Again and again the prince made desperate attempts to free himself. He was soon failing in a bad way. He gasped, his lips grew blue and the whites of his eyes bloodshot. This man was killing him! And so he was, for Hillard, realizing that he had lost everything in the world worth living for, was mad for killing.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made, from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or bisculit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 612 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. B. Flinchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

THIRTEEN HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

More to Be Taken Into Custody in Smuggling Scheme.

MANY INDICTMENTS RETURNED

Alleged United States Has Been Cheated Out of Millions by Means of Plan Whereby Valuable Laces and Silks Were Brought From France.

New York, Dec. 22.—The federal grand jury has returned twenty-seven indictments against dressmakers, milliners and importers of lace and silks, who are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government by smuggling trunkfuls of fine fabrics. United States Marshal Henkel's men have just arrested thirteen dressmakers or representatives of dressmaking concerns and a customs employe, who is alleged to have been instrumental in slipping trunks through without payment of duties.

It was said at the United States district attorney's office that the "sleeper trunk" conspiracy was so successful for years that it cost the government about $1,000,000 a year in stolen duties. The fraud scheme was designed in 1904 by a former customs official named Frank Fawcett, who is now dead. He lost his job in the service and went to Paris with an idea in his head. Before he quit New York he had impressed a good many importers of dresses and laces and silks and millinery with the possibilities of his scheme, and he began to work it as soon as he got on the other side.

Fawcett's Agent.

According to the United States district attorney's office, P. A. Philipsen, the customs man just arrested, was Fawcett's agent on this side. Philipsen was at work on the pier of the American and Red Star lines, where he could do the most good. Fawcett originated the idea of studying the passenger lists containing names of Americans who were returning home from France. As soon as he had picked a few names he got together trunkfuls of materials purchased by his dressmaking clients in New York, labelled them with the names of the persons he had selected from the steamship lists and got them to the French piers after the persons had sailed for New York or Boston. The trunks were then considered "left overs," that is, trunks that had been forgotten or mislaid by their owners in the confusion of sailing. They were sent here on the next steamship.

On this side, Philipsen and two employes of the American and Red Star line pier, Robert Schwartz and Thomas Murphy, according to the government prosecutors, attended to the final details of getting the trunkfuls of smuggled fabrics safely by the customs guards. Schwartz and Murphy are accused of having devised a trolley by which the trunks were shot from the steamships that brought them to the end of an adjoining pier where there were no customs inspectors on duty. It was Philipsen's business then, according to the district attorney, to hustle the trunks into wagons for delivery to the dressmakers that were expecting them.

How Discovery Was Made.

One of the trunk cases of this kind came to light when it was discovered that two trunks bearing the name of Miss Nellie Grant Sartoris were not Miss Sartoris' at all, but the property of smugglers.

The agents of the conspiracy were paid 50 per cent of what the duties would have been by the dressmakers and importers who benefitted by the scheme. The arrests just made were in connection with this kind of smuggling. Judge Holt notified all the defendants to be in court on Jan. 3, when he would set the time of their trial. On the twenty-seven indictments there are thirteen arrests yet to be made. The indictments fix the time of the fraud from 1906 to the present time because, on account of the statute of limitations, it is impossible to prosecute on the score of alleged crimes committed more than three years ago.

Appealed to His Pride.

It was the most obstinate mule in the lot and refused to enter the car of a train held up at a little wayside station. Threats, cajolery and blows were alike useless. The mule refused to budge, and the slant of his ears told those of the passengers who were familiar with mule ear talk that where he was he intended to stay. Then the aged African who was trying to load him in said in honeyed tones:

"Whuffo' yo' behave dis way befo' all dese strange people? Why, yo' fool mule, doan' yo' know dat dese people will jes' believe dat yo' neber done trabeled befo' in all yo' life?"

The long ears lost their aggressive slant, and the beast went sedately up the inclined plank with the air of a man entering a drawing room car for the first time and determined not to betray the fact.—Exchange.

NEW STATUTE DOESN'T STAND

Supreme Court Renders Decision Affecting Appeal Law.

COUNTY RIGHTS ARE INVADED

Committee, Which It Permits Being Created, Is One Which Is "Officially Irresponsible and Empowered to Review and Perform Duties of Responsible Officials" in County.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 22.—The supreme court has just handed down a decision, declaring unconstitutional the law enacted by the legislature last winter providing for appeals from the equalization between townships as fixed by the boards of supervisors.

This law, knowns as act No. 292, provided for the appointment of a committee of appeals in case a supervisor was not satisfied with the equalization as fixed by the board, one member to be selected by the supervisor making the appeal, one by the board and those two to choose a third member. The case decided was the one brought from Bay county, and two other cases from Manistee and Muskegon counties were also presented to the court.

Why Law Was Attacked.

The validity of the law was attacked on the grounds that judicial power is conferred on the committee; that it deprives counties of the right of self government; that the tribunal or agency created is not an impartial one, and that the act as amended is incomplete and defective and not a workable law.

In the opinion, the court holds:

"We are constrained to say that the legislature, in the act in question, has constructed neither a state nor a local agency of taxation, but has, inadvertently, no doubt, delegated to aggrieved parties the selection of a committee empowered to undo what the regularly elected officers of the townships and wards have done officially. A privately constituted and officially irresponsible committee is empowered to review and perform the duties of responsible officials. We are required to, and do, affirm the order of the circuit judge of Bay county."

No costs were allowed.

Veteran Lumberman Is Dead.

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 22.—Henry Colclough, for many years one of the largest lumber operators in the Georgian bay district, and well known in this city and Milwaukee, his former home, is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Whalen, Hess street, Buena Vista. He was up and about as usual Monday. Death was due to the infirmities of old age. Colclough was in his eighty-eighth year.

To Deport Eleven Chinese.

Houghton, Mich., Dec. 22.—Eleven of the thirteen cooper country Chinamen arrested Sunday and Monday are found, in Hancock justice courts, to be in this country in violation of the Chinese exclusion act and have been sentenced to be deported to China. The other two showed "choc tees," or certificates of residence.

Thirteen Christmas Paroles.

Jackson, Mich., Dec. 22.—Thirteen inmates of the prison were paroled Tuesday, following action by the board of pardons. The board heard thirty applications for parole at its last meeting and granted Christmas presents to the unlucky number.

MONEY FOR INDIANS.

Uncle Sam to Divide $120,000 Among Remaining Chippewas and Ottawas.

Washington Dec. 22.—More than 1,000 Michigan Indians, or persons of Indian descent, will get a pot of money from Uncle Sam before many weeks. Their names are registered in the Indian office in a monster new roll, upon which the finishing touches are being placed. Those who have made their title clear will receive in the aggregate about $120,000. For every man, woman and infant in Michigan who has a certain connection with the old Ottawa and Chippewa tribe the United States has approximately $15. The payment will be made not later than March; possibly a little earlier.

The treaty of 1855, concluded at Detroit, specifically provided, partially in return for the very money now about to be paid, that all tribal relations should be broken off. The Indians kept their word in spirit and letter.

Uncle Sam paid his obligations year by year until 1885. Since then the Indians have fought for their rights before congress and before the courts. It was not until March 4, 1907, that they secured a decree of claims for a balance of $69,496.40, with interest at 5 per cent since March, 9, 1885. And since that decree was made it has taken the government nearly three years to clear up the titles of the Indians to share in the money, and to get ready to pay it over.

By request of Congressman McLaughlin, the disbursing agent, when the time arrives for final payment, will spend some time in Mason and Leelanau counties, in addition to Petoskey and Traverse City.

Husband Fled; Wife Insane.

Newberry, Mich., Dec. 22.—Brooding over her husband's desertion of her and her six children, Mrs. Mary Mahrus of Bagley, hopelessly insane, has been brought to the asylum here. The poverty and suffering which she has undergone since her husband's disappearance have contributed much toward her present condition. She has been an inmate of the county house at Menominee for some time.

Odd Fellows Want Justice Removed.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 22.—Because he instructed a court officer not to place any Odd Fellows on a jury, there is a movement on foot by the members of the I. O. O. F. of Michigan which may result in a determined effort being made by them to secure the removal of Justice of the Peace William A. Fraser, at the hands of Governor Warner. Lansing Odd Fellows are quite indignant.

Orders Troops to Be Ready.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 22.—Governor Deneen has issued orders to eight companies of the Fourth infantry of Illinois national guard to be in readiness to go to East St. Louis or Belleville to protect the negro prisoner under arrest on suspicion of murdering the conductor of a street car at East St. Louis.

Lurton Takes Seat First of January.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Justice Horace D. Lurton, whose nomination to be an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States was confirmed Monday, will reach Washington on Sunday, Jan. 2. He will take the oath of office on the Monday following, when the court reconvenes.

Will Russia and Japan Clash Again?

St. Petersburg, Dec. 22.—Official statements that have been issued on the subject do not allay persistent rumors here of impending trouble with Japan. It is reported that the government will immediately move 50,000 troops from Irkutsk to the Manchurian frontier. The statement is causing alarm.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

La Signorina was first to recover. She sprang toward the combatants and grasped Hillard's hand, the one buried in the prince's throat, and pulled. She was not strong enough.

"Merrihew! O'Mally! Quick! He is killing him!" she cried wildly.

The two finally succeeded in separating the men, and none too soon. A moment more and the prince had been a dead man.

La Signorina turned upon Hillard. "And you would have done this thing before my very eyes!"

"I was mad," he panted, shamed. "I love you better than anything else in God's world, and this man means that I shall lose you."

The prince lurched toward Hillard, but fortunately Merrihew heard the slithering sound of the saber as it left its scabbard. Merrihew with a desperate lunge stopped the blow. He flung the saber at O'Mally's feet.

"You speak English," said Merrihew in an ugly temper. "You may send your orderly to the Hotel Italie tomorrow morning, and your saber will be given to him. We can get along without you nicely."

The prince tore at his mustaches. Meddlers! To return to Florence without his saber was dishonor. He cursed them all roundly and turned to La Signorina.

"I am in the way here," he cried. "But listen. You shall remain my wife so long as both of us live. I had intended, arranging your freedom once the estate and moneys were divided, but not now. You shall read my wife till the end of the book, for unless I meet you halfway the marriage contract cannot be broken. In the old days it was your conscience. The still small voice seems no longer to trouble you," turning suggestively to Hillard. "You are stopping at the Hotel Italie?"

"I am. You will find me there," returned Hillard, with good understanding.

"Good! Your highness, tomorrow night I shall have the extreme pleasure of running your lover through the throat." He picked up his cap and took his princely presence out of their immediate vicinity.

"It will do my soul good to stand before that scoundrel," said Hillard, stretching out his hands and closing them with crushing force.

La Signorina laid a protesting hand on his arm.

"I love you," he murmured as he bent to kiss her hand. "And it is not dishonorable for you to hear me say so."

"I forbid you to say that!" But the longing of the world was in her eyes as she looked down at his head.

"This is what comes of American girls marrying these blamed foreigners," growled the tender hearted O'Mally. "Why did you do it?"

"I am almost Italian, Mr. O'Mally. I had no choice in the matter. The affair was prearranged by our parents, after the continental fashion."

When Hillard and La Signorina were at length alone he asked, "When shall I see you again?"

"Who knows? Some day, perhaps, when time has softened the sharp edges of this moment. Tomorrow I shall write, or very soon."

"You will send for me?" with eagerness and hope.

"Why not? There is nothing wrong in our friendship, and I prize it. Promise."

"I promise. Goodby! For a little while I have lived in paradise. Wherever I may be, at the world's end, you have but to call me. In a month, in a year, a decade, I shall come. Goodby!" Without looking at her again he rushed away.

She remained standing there as motionless as a statue. He had not asked her if she loved him, and that was well. But there was not at that moment in all the length and breadth of Italy a lonelier woman than her highness the Principessa di Monte Blanca.

Meanwhile the prince, raging, mounted his horse. Eh, well! This time tomorrow night the American should pay dearly for it all.

And the woman—he could never understand her. But for her fool's conscience he would not have been riding the beggar's horse today. She was now too self reliant, too intelligent. She was her father over again, soldier and diplomat.

He was riding past the confines of the villa when a man darted out suddenly from the shadows and seized the bridle.

"At last, my prince!"

"Giovanni?"

Instinctively the prince reached for his saber, knowing that he had need of it, but the scabbard was empty. He cursed the folly which had made him lose it. Oddly enough, his thought ran swiftly back to the little casa in the Sabine hills. Bah! Full of courage, knowing that one or the other would not leave this spot alive, he struck his horse, with purpose this time, to run his man down. But Giovanni did not lose his hold. Hate and the nearness of revenge made him strong.

"No, no!" he laughed. "She is dead, my prince. And I—I was not going to seek you. I was going to let hell claim you in its own time. But you rode by me tonight. This is the end."

The prince unhooked his scabbard and swung it aloft. But Giovanni was fully prepared. He released the bridle, his arm went back, and his knife spun through the air. Yet in that instant in which Giovanni's arm was poised for the cast the prince lifted his horse on its haunches. The knife gashed the animal deeply in the neck. Still on its haunches, it backed, wild with the unaccustomed pain. The lip of the road, at this spot rotten and unprotected, gave way. The prince tried to urge the horse forward. The hind quarters sank, and the prince tried in vain to slip from the saddle.

This man was killing him!

over the stream and disappeared into the blackness beyond.

It was Merrihew who woke the sleeping cabby, pushed Hillard into a seat and gave the final orders which were to take them out of the Villa Ariadne forever. He was genuinely moved over the visible misery of his friend. When they arrived at the white hotel in the Borgognissanti Merrihew was glad.

At 9 in the morning Hillard heard a fist banging on the panels of the door.

"Open, Jack! Hurry!" cried Merrihew outside.

Hillard opened the door. "What's the trouble, Dan?" he asked.

Merrihew whispered, "Dead!"

"Who?" Hillard's heart contracted.

"The prince. They found him and his horse at the bottom of the gorge. The concierge says that there has been foul play—tracks in the dust, a strange cut in the neck of the horse and a scabbard minus its saber. Now, what the devil shall I do with the blamed sword?"

Dead! Hillard sat down on the edge of the bed. Dead! Then she was free, free!

"What shall I do with the sword?" demanded Merrihew a second time.

"Put it in the bottom of the trunk and leave it there till you land in New York. But the prince dead? You are sure?"

"Florence rings with the story."

And then Merrihew noticed. Hillard still wore his evening clothes and the bed was untouched.

"That's very foolish."

"Why, I couldn't have closed my eyes," replied Hillard.

"But won't she need you up there?" Merrihew was obviously troubled.

"If she needs me she'll send for me. I shall remain here and wait. She is free. Thank God!"

"Didn't Giovanni tell us that he had friends in Fiesole, near Florence, and that he was going to visit them?" asked Merrihew.

"Giovanni! I had forgotten. But what had my old valet against the prince?"

"Giovanni had a daughter," said Merrihew. "His knife left a scar on the man. The prince carried a long scar on his cheek."

Hillard began dressing in his day clothes, stopping at times and frowning at the walls.

At night the last of the American Comic Opera company straggled into the hotel. O'Mally, verbose as ever, did all the talking.

"You wouldn't know her," he said, referring to La Signorina, for they would always call her that. "When she heard of that duffer's death I swear that she believed you had a hand in it. But when she heard that the accident had occurred before you left the villa she just collapsed. The police were hunting for the missing saber. Of course we knew nothing about it," with a wink at Merrihew.

When the others were gone Hillard asked Kitty if she had any news.

"She said that she would write you and for you to remain here till you received the letter."

"Was that all?"

"Yes. Have you seen anything of that wretched man Worth, who is the cause of all this trouble?"

"No, nor do I care to."

Kitty and Merrihew went out together.

In the evening he told the story of Persian life and illustrated it with pictures. He also addretsed the men's class on the great Laymen's movement of the Protestant churches in which he is playing a prominent part. Mr. Stead is a magnetic speaker and an eloquent orator, and all who heard him declared his addresses to be the finest of the kind ever heard in Tecumseh.

CLARISSA A KINNEY

On Dec. 18, at 1 o'clock p. m., Mrs. Clarissa A. Kinney died at the home of her daughter Mrs. G. H. Tansley.

The funeral services conducted by Rev. D. Stanley Shaw were held Dec. 21st at 2 p. m., with interment at Brookside cemetery.

Clarissa A Bresle was the daughter Nicholas and Naoma Bresle, born Allegany Co., N. Y., Dec. 28, 1825 in and married to John S. Kinney Dec. 28, 1847. They continued to reside in that county until 1861 when they moved to Cleveland, O. In 1874 they came to Tecumseh where they passed the remainder of their days. Mr. Kinney's demise occurred Jan. 29, 1901. They are survived by a daughter Mrs. G. H. Tansley, a son W. L. Kinney of Cincinnati, O., four grandchildren Alma, Glenn and Charles Tansley and Earl Kinney.

The subject of our sketch was converted at an early age and joined the M E church in which she continued a faithful member until her death. Mrs. Kinney was a woman endowed with a good sound mind, sociality largely developed and agreeable, her pleasant, quiet way drew to her many warm friends; always having a good word for all and malice toward none. Long will her kindness be remembered by those who had the good fortune to form her acquaintance. She was a kind mother, an affectionate wife and an estimable citizen, being a zealous worker in the cause of temperance and missions.

The deep spirituality of her religious experience was manifested in a a marked degree during her last illness. May the memory of her kind words and acts lift us from earthly attachments and the mantle of her fidelity fall upon those left to mourn her departure.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends for kindness and sympathy in our late bereavement and for the beautiful floral offerings.

MR. AND MRS. G. H. TANSLEY AND FAMILY,
W. L. KINNEY AND SON.

In Memory of Myrtle McSeventy, who departed this life December 7, '09 At Saginaw, Michigan.

I'm sitting and deeply thinking,
Of days that have gone by;
My mind wanders upward
To that home beyond they sky,
Where dear Myrtle has departed
From this world of toil and care—
To have a home with Jesus,
In that blessed land so fair.

Her Saviour came to take her,
Where no worldly cares are known;
She has gone forever from this life,
Her spirit there has flown.
She has crossed the River Jordan,
And left us here to weep;
We think of her all thro' the day,
We dream of her in sleep.

When in pain upon her pillow,
Struggling with a feeble breath;
Praying God to keep her loved ones,
Before relieved by death.
Then, a last fond look of sadness
Upon her dear ones, with tender love—
Her spirit arose on its upward flight,
To that Heavenly home above.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

But a few days remain to Congress before the adjournment for the Christmas holidays. The Lower House is making a serious effort to pass one appropriation bill, that for the District of Columbia, before adjournment.

The bill as originally presented had been very carefully supervised and called for a smaller appropriation than that of the previous year but the Lower House of congress, in the interest of economy, is contending for a still further reduction. The city of Washington is growing very rapidly and larger sums are being collected in the way of taxes.

The National government owning and controlling the public parks, public buildings and streets has for years paid one-half the expense of up-keep and improvements and as is well known, Congress is the legislative body that decides finally with reference to such appropriations as are needed for the schools, police, and all expenses relating to municipal affairs. But in Washington, as in many other cities, there are trusts and public utilities that escape their fair appropriation of taxes. There are transportation companies and telephone companies who do not contribute their proper quota to the support of the District of Columbia.

Washington is a national city, the National Congress legislates for it, the presidents of the United States appoints the commissioners who are at the head of the district government, the residents of Washington are without the privilege of voting and have no direct influence in the affairs of the city in which they live and it is for this reason that anything that concerns the welfare of the National Capital is through congress, the concern of all the people of the United States.

An Apology.

The unhappy rural editor made this humiliating explanation in his next weekly issue:

"Owing to an unfortunate blunder on the part of Mr. Jonas Joslin, our typesetter, a sad error crept into the account of Mrs. Wingfield Johnson's pink tea on Tuesday last. Through the entirely unintentional and much regretted transposition of a single letter the pink tea became punk."—Ex.

What Worries Her.

Mrs. Scribbler (impressively)—Whatever you do, never marry a newspaper man.

School Chum—Why not?

"I married one and I know. Every night my husband brings home a big bundle of newspapers from all over the country and they almost drive me crazy."

"The newspapers?"

"Indeed, they do. They are just crammed with the most astonishing bargains in stores a thousand miles away."—Exchange.

How's Business?

"Business is poor," said the beggar.
Said the Undertaker, "It's dead."
"Falling off," said the riding school teacher.
The druggist: "O! vial," he said.
"It's all right with me," said the author.
"Picking up," said the man on the dump.
"My business is sound," quoth the bandsman.
Said the athlete, "I'm kept on the jump."
The bottler declared it was "corking."
The parson, "It's good," answered he.
"I make both ends meat," said the butcher.
The tailor replied, "It suits me."

CHRISTMAS AT WHITE HOUSE

Will Be Quiet One With Taft Family. Employes Will Each Get Turkey.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The six score or more employes of the White House are going to have just as merry a Christmas as ever if President Taft has anything to do about it.

There has been rumors that President Taft would not observe the custom of former years and provide a turkey for each employe, but it has just been made known that Mr. Taft intends to follow that practice. In addition to the turkey, many employes will be able to jingle a bit of presidential change in their pockets on Christmas morning.

The president will spend Christmas quietly at the executive mansion. Robert Taft, his older son; Miss Helen Taft, the only daughter, and Charlie Taft, the younger son, will be at home Saturday, and Christmas in the White House will be a strictly home affair.

Fred W. Carpenter, the president's secretary, left Washington today for his former home in Sauk Center, Minn., to spend Christmas.

FORCED INTO EXILE.

Wm. Upchurch of Glen Oak, Okla., was an exile from home. Mountain air, he thought, would cure a frightful lung-racking cough that had defied all remedies for two years. After six months he returned, death dogging his steps. "Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery," he writes, "and after taking six bottles I am as well as ever." BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.

Bad Stomach Causes Unsightly Complexions. C. A. Wright Has a Remedy.

Why? The stomach in a healthy condition separates the nutritious matter from the food and gives it to the blood to supply the entire body with nourishment.

If the stomach is not in a healthy condition it does not separate from the food the nutritious matter and it passes off with the waste.

Thus the blood is impoverished and has not sufficient nourishment to supply the muscles, skin and body generally.

If you have belching of gas, distress after eating, nausea, biliousness, nervousness or foul breath, then your stomach is wrong and you want the best prescription for stomach troubles the world has ever known.

You want Mi-o-na tablets, the great stomach remedy which C. A. Wright & Son guarantees to cure indigestion, no matter of how long standing, or money back.

Relieves stomach distress at once.

Mi-o-na is sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son for 50c a large box. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of, wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have proven its absolute merit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

COOK DIDN'T REACH POLE

Danes Have Reported Adversely.

HIS FRIENDS SHOCKED

Can Hardly Believe They Have Been Deceived.

BACKER BRADLEY INDIGNANT

Explorers' Club of New York Will Report That Cook Did Not Even Reach Top of Mt. McKinley—Friends on All Sides Declare Cook an Imposter. University's Committee Declares Cook's "Report" an Insult.

Copenhagen, Dec. 22.—The University of Copenhagen, the first institution of learning to recognize Dr. Frederick A. Cook as the discoverer of the North Pole, has solemnly declared that the explorer had failed to establish the claim upon which his high honors had been made.

The committee appointed by the university to examine Cook's records recently presented its report to the consistory of the university, which reviewed the deductions of the experts with the greatest care and discussed the findings from every standpoint. That both the committee and the consistory were disappointed was soon known.

The consistory has just met and adopted a written report to the effect that the alleged records submitted for examination by Dr. Cook failed to prove his claim that he had reached the North Pole.

The report of the committee, of which Professor Stromgren was chairman, as presented to the consistory states that Cook's papers are without any value; that his report to the university is practically the same as that published in the New York Herald upon his return from his Arctic expedition.

No Original Calculations.

The copies of his notebooks submitted, says the committee, contain no original calculations of observations, but only results thereof.

Accordingly, the committee concludes that he offers no proof of having reached the Pole.

Dr. Cook's private secretary, Mr. Lourdale, produced before the committee a letter from Cook postmarked Marseilles, Dec. 14. This lends color to the earlier report that Cook sailed from New York for a Mediterranean port.

Professor Stroemgren, in presenting the report to the university, said:

"It was an offense to submit such papers to scientific men. Of course, the university erred in honoring Dr. Cook, and there was no excuse for men of science erring in such a matter. They ought to be calm even amid public enthusiasm and excitement. We thought to honor the great nation to which Dr. Cook belongs, and we had the support of Mr. Egan, the American minister. Moreover, President Taft congratulated Dr. Cook, while explorers, both Danish and foreign, guaranteed his bona fides. We have been hoaxed."

The disgust of Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, is in proportion to his former championship. He says: "Cook is an impudent cheat. No school boy could make such foolish calculations as he did. He has killed himself."

The university authorities express satisfaction that Denmark, not America, had pronounced the verdict, because it showed the world that Denmark was impartial and had acted honestly, although mistakenly.

COOK'S GLORY ENDED.

New Yorkers Learn With Bitterness How They Were Imposed Upon.

New York, Dec. 22.—Everything is going to tumble in a bunch on the head of Dr. Cook, from the indications visible here.

"He has fooled us all, from the king of Denmark down," was the exclamation of John R. Bradley, Dr. Cook's backer in his North Pole trip, when appraised of the news from Copenhagen. "And he fooled me with the rest," Mr. Bradley added.

"As a matter of fact," continued the sportsman, "I long ago lost all interest in Dr. Cook, the North Pole and everything connected with it.

"As for Dr. Cook, I haven't seen him or heard from him since he left the Waldorf-Astoria to go to Bronxville to 'prepare his records' for submission to the University of Copenhagen. I wasn't in communication with him while he was at the Grammatan, and, as a matter of fact, hardly had an hour's solid conversation with him all the time he was here after his return from the Arctic."

The committee of the Explorers' club, which for more than two months has been investigating Cook's reputed ascent of Mt. McKinley in September, 1906, has completed its examination, and Professor Marshall H. Saville, the chairman, does not deny that the report will be unfavorable.

A BIT OF ADVICE

First—Don't Delay—Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John B. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

The doctor promised last October to appear before the committee whenever desired to explain points that might need clearing up. He never did appear, and when Professor Saville was asked if the doctor's action had in any way embarrassed the committee, he said:

"You may judge that for yourself. We did not expect Dr. Cook to come before us. We extended the invitation to him as a matter of fairness, and he did not avail himself of it."

The report will be made public Friday.

It is believed by members of the Explorers' club that Dr. Cook's expulsion from that body will follow as a natural consequence of the forthcoming committee report that he did not ascend Mt. McKinley, even if the findings of the Danish scientists are not taken into consideration as just cause for such action by the club.

An "Exploded Explorer."

"To the scientific world Cook must appear as an exploded explorer," said Professor Saville, "but, of course, there will be many people who will never be convinced that he did not reach the pole, whatever the scientists may decide. I do not believe that the man has any other recourse now and that the gale is up with him. It is unfortunate that the whole incident has arisen."

Dr. Roswell C. Stebbins, chairman of the executive committee of the Arctic Club of America, of which Dr. Cook is at present one of the vice presidents, said that he was stunned by the news from Copenhagen. Mr. Stebbins has been, during all the polar controversy, one of the chief Cook mouthpieces and an ardent adherent of the explorer.

"It is terrible," said Dr. Stebbins. "This news from Copenhagen has completely stunned me. This is hard for me to believe—this story that my close friend has attempted to deceive the world as no man before ever attempted to do—yet, I must accept the word of the judges, and I now believe that Dr. Cook deliberately planned the whole story and tried to doctor his observations to fit his tale. It looks to me as if he had deliberately planned to get all the money he could through his lectures and then disappear, knowing that his proofs would never wash."

Dr. Stebbins said that he believed that Mrs. Cook was with the doctor, wherever he might be.

Anthony Fiala, the Arctic explorer, who likewise had been one of the staunchest Cook supporters, has reversed his position and admits that he had been deceived.

Says Cook is in Norway.

It has been definitely stated by Roscoe C. Mitchell, a close friend and confident of Dr. Cook, that three days ago he received a telegram from Cook, sent from Christiansand, Norway. Mitchell said that he had reason to believe that Cook was still in that place and that he had been there for some time. Mitchell also said that the expedition which Cook had planned that Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, should make to Etah next summer to recover Cook's instruments, which were cached there, had been called off by Rasmussen, who acted on an understanding which he had previously made with Cook concerning the fate of the expedition in the event of an unfavorable report by the Danish scientists.

Cook told a friend of his who was in his confidence here in New York, so it is learned, that if he was not supported by the University of Copenhagen he would not appeal to any other tribunal. To this friend he confided his determination, in case of the refusal of the Danish scientists to accept his claims, to spend the rest of his life among the Eskimos of Greenland, doing work such as Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador missionary, does

ZELAYISTS WERE ROUTED.

Rebels Gain Complete Victory Over Them at Recreo.

Bluefields, Dec. 22.—(By wireless to Colon).—Generals Fornes, Dias, Matuty and Chamorro, by a fierce combined attack, and after great bloodshed, have carried the breastworks and entrenchments constructed by General Vasquez, who left his command a few days ago, and driven the Zelayists out. The victory of the revolutionists was complete. Many prisoners were taken. The Zelayists are now in full flight. There is much distress among them. The reports received here of their pitiable condition are fully confirmed.

Recreo, which is now in the hands of the provisionals, was the strongest position held by the Zelayists. The speedy surrender of the government army is now liked for.

Probably on the Team.

"Such ignorance is inexcusable!" exclaimed Aunt Hypatia. "My nephew Percival has been going to college nearly three years, and when I asked him this morning whether he knew anything about Homer he said: 'Sure! A homer is a hit that's good for four bases.'"—Chicago Tribune.

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years.

Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening powder. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or bsicuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Laxative for Women Free

There is a great difference in the purposes to which a laxative should be put. Tablets and pills, salts, etc., are usually violent purgatives or cathartics, and altogether too powerful for the average person.

A woman at all times needs only a mild laxative—in fact, none other is needed by anyone, weak or strong though they may be, for the object is simply to move the bowels, and if a gentle laxative will do it, what is the use of a violent one?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has earned a well-deserved vogue among women and children and old folks—people who must necessarily be careful of what they take.

It is a liquid laxative tonic and admittedly the greatest stomach, liver and bowel remedy before the American people. The price is only 50 cents or $1 a bottle, as it comes in both sizes, and all druggists sell it. Its pleasant taste and gentle action make it an ideal remedy for women in constipation, torpid liver, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn and such like digestive complaints. Its use for a short time will remove the trouble entirely so that future medication will be unnecessary. Its tonic properties build up the stomach and intestinal muscles so that they act naturally again. That this is so is the experience of many heads of families, like Mrs. Brannan, of Alvarado, Va., Mrs. K. L. Stout, of Louisville, Ky., and numerous others; in fact, way out in Williams, Cal., as Mrs. J. E. Blackmore, of that place, writes, the whole town seems to be using it.

If the remedy is new to you and you want to make a trial of it before buying, send your name to the doctor's address as below and a free test bottle will be sent you. Then, if results are satisfactory you can buy it of your druggist.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

TRAGEDIES ON CHRISTMAS

Man and Woman in Detroit Commit Suicide.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 27.—While the Christmas feast waited her arrival, Mrs. William J. Curry, wife of the attorney, took carbolic acide with suicidal intent at the Curry home, 80 Custer avenue, and died at Grace hospital a few hours later.

Mrs. Curry had been in poor health and suffered a nervous breakdown since the birth of her third child, now ten months old, but that she would have chosen Christmas day on which to die, when she appeared in excellent spirits, or that she would have taken her own life at any time, none of the family ever had suspected.

In the yard of his father's home, 338 Lovett street, where his parents, sisters and relatives were joyously observing Christmas with a quaint, old-fashioned feast, Rudolph Schave, twenty-three years old, ended his life by shooting himself through the heart.

A too festive observance of Christmas, which led to several quarrels with his young wife, were the elements that resulted in the tragedy.

ASK FOR RECOGNITION.

Estrada's Representative Will Call at State Department For That Purpose.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Acting under instruction from Juan J. Estrada, president of the provisional government of Nicaragua, Dr. Salvador Castrillo, his agent in Washington, will call at the state department to urge on Secretary Knox the importance of granting formal recognition to the provisional government.

Dr. Castrillo has been directed by President Estrada to use his influence to bring about the recognition of the provisional government in order that the people of Nicaragua may be made to understand what party the United States favors. It is not likely, however, that President Taft will recognize the provisional government immediately, because the provisional authorities are not in complete and undisputed control of the machinery of government in Nicaragua.

Zelaya's Friends Arrested.

Managua, Dec. 27.—Acting on orders of President Madriz, the police have arrested Ernesto Martinez, minister of finance under Zelaya; Joaquim Panos, son-in-law of Zelaya, and T. Santos Ramirez. The first two are charged with embezzlement of public funds, the circulation of unsigned paper money and with failure to register government bonds; while Ramirez is accused of forging the name of President Madriz to a dispatch ordering the Nicaraguan troops to abandon their positions. The arrest of Panos and Martinez was due to the discovery that the financial condition of the country is alarming.

KNAPPEN MAY GET JUDGSHIP

President Has Him In Mind For Lurton's Old Job.

Washington, Dec. 27.—It is expected that within the next few days President Taft will announce his choice for the vacancy on the Sixth judicial circuit created by the advancement of Judge Horace Lurton to the supreme court of the United Staes.

It can be stated on the best authority that the appointment will probably go to Judge Knappen of the western district of Michigan, although the name of Judge Andrew Cochran of the eastern district of Kentucky is also being considered in this connection. The friends of Judge Knappen, however, express confidence that he will be selected to fill the vacancy. The fact that Michigan has already a circuit judge in this district in the person of Judge Henry F. Severens of Kalamazoo will not, it is said, mitigate against the appointment of Judge Knappen.

Dickinson at San Juan.

San Juan, P. R., Dec. 27.—The naval yacht Mayflower has arrived here, having on board Secretary of War Dickinson and General Edwards, chief of the bureau of insular affairs. Governor Colton, Colonel Howze, Commander Rohrer and several prominent Porto Ricans received them at the landing. There was no ceremony in their reception, but the town was decorated in their honor.

Celebrates Her 100th Christmas.

Adrian, Mich., Dec. 27.—Mrs. Louisa Morey, of whom much has been published in the state papers regarding her pioneer life, celebrated her one-hundredth Cristmas Saturday. One of the presents she received was $100 gold dollars from a friend of her youth, said friend being now a resident of Pittsburg.

Wife Disappeared.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 27.—Dr. W. W. Bower, well known Ecorse physician, has been making a quiet search since Dec. 2 in a vain effort to locate his wife. On that day, while Dr. Bower was in the back part of his home, Mrs. Bower, with a valise and telescope, left by the front way and disappeared completely.

Auto Injuries Cause Death.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 27.—Grant H. Rouse, vice president of the Detroit Cigar Manufacturing company, who was struck by an automobile at Woodward and Grand River avenues, Dec. 18, is dead at his home, 3087 West Grand boulevard, as a result of his injuries.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Word has been received at Bad Axe of the killing of John Lange, a former resident of that place, by the cars at Langford, Pa., where he had been working as a railroad employe.

A. A. Dietz, forty-eight years old, for thirty-three years a resident of Mancelona, is dead of heart failure. In the last week, two of Mancelona's oldest citizens have passed away.

One of the most important positions of the executive staff at the big plant of the Rapid Motor Vehicle company, in Pontiac, has been assigned to C. A. Horner of Grand Rapids, who will assume his duties as factory manager Jan. 1.

Mrs. John Groff, a leading W. C. T. U. and Methodist church worker of Albion, dropped dead in the night when she arose to get a drink. She had entertained a family Christmas party and retired feeling as well as usual. Heart failure is supposed to have been the cause of her death.

When Dr. E. A. Bower of Colon drove into town the other day he left his hostler, Asa Chauncey, sitting in his cutter, holding his horse, while he entered a drug store to fill a prescription. When he came out he found Chauncey sitting as he had left him in the cutter, but dead. Heart disease was given as the cause of death. Chauncey was about fifty years old and well known in racing circuits.

Friends.

"Dear friends," said the philosopher, "are scarce items in this world. They are too few to be counted."

"What d'ye call a friend?" he was asked.

"A friend," he replied, "is one who would lend you money if you wanted it and to whom you would lend money—if you had it."—New York Times.

AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION DAMAGED

Fire Attacks Two Upper Stories of New York Office.

New York, Dec. 27.—Fire in the New York offices of The American Press Association this morning destroyed two upper floors of the building, in which were located the stereotyping and art departments. The editors were just getting out the first newspapers, but they could not be stereotyped. Water soon flooded the building, and pressmen, stereotypers, compositors and editors were driven out.

ARTIST REMINGTON DIES.

Famous Painter of the Horse Succumbs to Operation For Appendicitis.

New York, Dec. 27.—Frederick Remington, the artist, is dead at his country home at Ridgefield, Conn. He had been ill only since Thursday night, when he was seized with pains which led to an operation for appendicitis on Friday morning. The body will be taken to Canton, N. Y., for burial.

In his earlier years as an illustrator and painter, Frederic Remington used to say that when he died he wanted someone to carve on his tombstone, "He knew the horse." Probably he long ago formed other views as to a suitable synopsis of his career, yet it is as a painter of horses that most people know and first think of him. He first fixed his personality on the public mind by his representations of horses which gave rise to a considerable controversy as to whether he used a camera or whether, on the other hand, he painted horses in impossible postures. It remained for an improved camera to demonstrate that Remington had seen correctly and accurately.

Remington was known as an illustrator, a writer, a painter and a sculptor. He had been a clerk, a cowboy and a football player. He was devoted to the open air. He had fought the Indians on the plains, and when he turned to art he first drew and afterward painted the Indians and the horses and the cowboys and the soldiers that he learned to know. When he went to Europe later he painted there army officers and soldiers. In his younger days he used to hope for a war where he could go as an art correspondent, and the latest things that he has exhibited in this city have been Indians and soldiers on horseback.

Remington was born in New York state, in 1861.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

H. B. Peairs, superintendent of the Haskell institute, at Lawrence, Kas., has been appointed national supervisor in charge of the work of educating the Indians, with headquarters at Washington.

Frank McGill of Cochocton, O., while en route in an automobile to Columbus to attend the automobile show, was instantly killed. His machine skidded in the snow and turned turtle, pinning him beneath it.

Ten persons were killed and twenty-eight seriously injured, while many others suffered minor injuries in a collision between a passenger express train, bound for Vienna, and a freight train, at Uhersko station, near Chotzen, in Bohemia.

Nine persons were crushed and mangled when an interurban electric car, bound for Mount Pleasant, Pa., struck the rear end of another car on the same line while rounding a curve two miles from Mount Pleasant. The injured seven were foreigners.

Rev. John Nate, one of the oldest Methodist ministers connected with the Rock River conference, is dead at his home in Chicago, aged seventy-seven years. For forty years Rev. Mr. Nate preached in the vicinity of Chicago, retiring in 1897. He was born in England.

Whether Eric Hanson and Terspen Flyg, whose bodies were found in a lodging house in the Dorchester district of Boston, were accidentally asphyxiated or committed suicide, the police have not determined. The gas jets in the room were open. Hanson was twenty-five and Miss Flyg twenty-two years old.

TAFT'S OPINION ON WHISKY

Entiely Matter of Labeling Is His Declaration.

OTHER OPINIONS TOO NARROW

Says It Is Perversion of Pure Food Act to Attempt to Limit Meaning of Term "Whisky" to That Distilled Directly From Grain and Aged In Barrel—He Differs With Bonaparte.

Washington, Dec. 27.—In a 4,000 word opinion, on which he has been working for many weeks, President Taft has just decided the much mooted question of "What is whisky?" differing in his decision from Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the department of agriculture, Lloyd N. Bowers, solicitor general of the United States, and former Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte. From Mr. Bonaparte and Mr. Wiley the president differs radically in his findings, and from the opinion of Solicitor General Bowers, which he commends highly, he takes exception also.

Interpretations Too Narrow.

In effect, the president finds that other interpretations of the pure food act of June 30, 1906, as applied to whisky, have been too narrow. "After an examination of all the evidence," he says, "it seems to me overwhelmingly established that for a hundred years the term 'whisky' in the trade and among the customers has included all potable liquor distilled from grain; that the straight whisky is, as compared with the whisky made by rectification or redistillation and flavoring and coloring matter, a subsequent improvement and that, therefore, it is a perversion of the pure food act to attempt now to limit the meaning of the term 'whisky' to that which modern manufacture and taste have made the most desirable variety."

Both Dr. Wiley and Attorney General Bonaparte found that the brand "whisky" could be applied properly only to "straight whisky," or such liquor as was made by one distillation and by ageing in charred oak barrels, while Mr. Bowers, the president's report says, "fell into the error of making too nice a distinction in reference to the amount of congeneric substance or traces of fusel oil required to constitute whisky for practical purposes."

Trade Is Full of Frauds.

"It is undoubtedly true," says the president, "that the liquor trade has been disgracefully full of frauds on the public by false labels, but these frauds did not consist in palming off something which was not whisky, but in palming off one kind of whisky as another and better kind of whisky. Whisky made of rectified or redistilled or neutral spirits and given a color and flavor by burnt sugar, made in a few days, was often branded as bourbon or rye straight whisky. The way to remedy this evil is not to attempt to change the meaning and scope of the term whisky accorded to it for 100 years and narrow it to include only straight whisky, and there is nothing in the pure food law that warrants the inference of such an intention by congress. The way to do it is to require a branding in connection with the term 'whisky' which will indicate just what kind of whisky the package contains. Thus, straight whiskies may be branded as such and may be accompanied by the legend 'aged in the wood.' Whisky made from rectified, redistilled or neutral spirits may be branded as whisky made from rectified, redistilled or neutral spirits, as the case may be."

Whale and Elephant Meat.

There is something unpleasant about the thought of eating whale meat, but it is said that the reality is very palatable. Japan has quite a trade in canned and salted whale meat, and there is to be a campaign to educate the European peoples to like it. Some whaling companies have distributed from their headquarters samples of canned whale meat, and those who have eaten it describe it as tenderer than beef and much like it in taste.

Whale steak seems no queerer than Frankfort sausage made out of an elephant, which is what some German people have been eating. An enterprising butcher over there, hearing that an unruly elephant in the Ghent zoological gardens was to be killed, engaged the carcass. He made 3,800 pounds of sausage out of it and sold every pound at good prices.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"Poor Kitty, you are trying in vain to make a romance out of my life. You should not read so much."

They were gone to America, and Hillard was alone. He missed them all sorely—Merrihew with his cheery laugh, Kitty with her bright eyes and O'Mally with his harmless drolleries. And no letter!

Daily he searched the newspapers for news of Giovanni. But to all appearances Giovanni had vanished, as indeed he had, forever out of Hillard's sight and knowledge.

The letter came one week after the departure of his friends. It was postmarked Venice. And the riddle was solved.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE LETTER.

MY father was Colonel Grosvenor of the Confederate army during the civil war. On General Lee's staff was an Italian named the Principi di Monte Bianca. Rich, titled, a real noble, he was at heart an adventurer, a word greatly abused these inglorious days. My father was cut from the same pattern, a wild and reckless spirit in those crowded times. The two became friends such as you and Mr. Merrihew are. Their exploits became famous. My father was also rich and a man of foresight. His real wealth was in foreign securities, mines, oils, steel, steamships. When the war terminated the prince prevailed upon my father to return with him to Italy. Italy itself was in turmoil. Il Re Galantuomo, that Piedmontese hunter, Vittorio Emanuele, wished to liberate Venice from the grasp of Austria, to wrest temporal power from the Vatican and to send the French troops back to France. Well, he accomplished all these things, and both my father and the prince were with him up to the time he entered the Quirinal. After victory, peace. My father invested in villas and palaces and settled down to end his days in the Venetian palace on the Grand canal.

Then my father, still young, remember, fell in love with the daughter of a Venetian noble. It was a happy union. Shortly after the prince also married. He was, with the exception of my father, the most lovable man I ever knew—brave, kindly, impetuous, honorable, witty and wise. It does not seem possible that such a father should have such a son.

There came a great day. A young prince was born, and the rough king stood as his godfather. Later I added my feeble protest, at the cost of my mother's life. As I grew up I became my father's constant companion. We were always out of doors. By and by he sent me to America to school. I returned from America to enter a convent out of Rome and later went to Milan and studied music.

One fatal day the old prince and my father put their heads together and determined that this great friendship of theirs should be perpetuated. The young prince should marry the young signorina. They drew up the strangest of wills. Both men were in full control of their properties. There was no entailed estate such as one finds in England. They could do as they pleased. And this was before Italy had passed the law requiring that no art treasures should be sold or transported. Fortunately for me, my mother's property was considerable.

The impossible clauses in the joint will read that if we two young people declined the bargain the bulk of the estates should revert to the crown. Again, if we married and separated and were not reunited inside of five years the fortunes should become the crown's. If, having separated from my husband, either for just or unjust reasons, I should secretly or publicly occupy any villa or palace mentioned in the will it would be a tacit admission that I accepted my husband. Was there ever such an insane tangle kindly meant? We must marry; we must be happy. That our minds and hearts were totally different did not matter at all.

Time went on. The old prince died suddenly; his wife followed. And then my kind and loving father went the way. I was taken under the wing of a duchessa who was popular at court. At this period the young prince was one of the handsomest men in Europe. He was brave, clever and engaging.

On completing my education I decided to live in Rome. The old duchessa mothered the rich American girl gladly, for, though I was half Italian, they always considered me as the child of my father. I was presented at court. I was asked to dinners and receptions and balls. I was quite the rage because the dowager queen gave me singular attention.

The prince by this time seemed changed in some way. But I was blindly young. Often I noticed the long scar on his cheek. He had received it, he said, in some cavalry exercise.

Now, there was another clause in this will. It was the one thing which made the present life tolerable and possible to me. We were to be married without pomp, quietly, first at the magistrate's and then at the church. At last the day came.

We passed through the streets to the magistrate's. I did not know then that I was not in love, that I was only young and curious. I threw roses to any who asked. The prince sat beside me in full dress uniform, looking very handsome and distinguished. The prince smiled, but he was nervous and not at ease. I thought nothing of this at the time. I believed his nervousness a part of my own.

The magistrate performed his part. Legally we were man and wife. We were leaving for the church when at the very doorway a handsome woman, sad eyed, weary, shabbily dressed, touched me on the arm.

"Because I love you!"

I gave it to her, smiling proudly.

"God pray," she said, "that this man will make you happier than he made me!"

"Let us be on!" said the prince eagerly.

"Wait!" I turned to the woman. "Signora, what do you mean by those words?"

"His highness knows." She pointed to the prince, whose face I now saw, strangely enough, for the first time. It was black with rage and ugliness.

"What has he been to you?" I demanded.

She answered. I understood. In that moment I became a woman without illusions. Without looking at the prince I entered the carriage and closed the door in his face. He stormed; he lied. I was of stone. He turned upon the poor woman and struck her in the face. Even had I loved him that would have been the end of the romance. I drove home. There would be no wedding at the church that day. There was a great scandal. Every one took up the prince's cause, with the exception of the king.

The prince was almost bankrupt. He had squandered his all. He had sold to usurers half of the fortune he expected to get after marrying me. He had not the slightest affection for me. He was desperate and wanted the money. How old and wise I became during that ride home from the magistrate's! I vowed he should never have a penny. It should all go to the crown.

When at length he found that I was really serious he became base in his tactics. He was the one who was wronged. He gave life to such rumors among those I knew that soon I found doors closed to me which had always been open. No Italian woman could see the matter from my point of view. I was an American for all that my mother was a Venetian, therefore I was wrong.

There! That is all. There is no more mystery concerning Sonia Hilda Grosvenor.

And so the letter ended. There was

An Early Georgia Monster.

In the fore part of August, 1812, a party of hunters found in a mountainous region now known as Rabun county, Ga., a being nearly eight feet high covered with bluish hair and having a human face adorned with immense ears resembling those of an ass. The creature was stone deaf and on that account seemed wholly unconscious of the approach of the men. This monster seems, from all accounts, to have been seen upon several occasions during the next four years. In 1816 a number of adventurers from Virginia, most of them surveyors working up the unexplored portions of Georgia and the Carolinas, formed themselves into a party for the express purpose of capturing the uncanny being if possible. They scoured the hills and valleys for several days and at last returned unsuccessful to the starting point.

The many tales told of this extraordinary being seem to have created quite a stir all along the Atlantic coast. A printed circular issued by a land company in 1815 says, "The climate of Georgia is exceedingly mild, the soil productive, and the danger of attack from uncouth beasts which are represented as being half beast and half man are fairy tales not worthy of consideration."—Exchange.

Will Have Course In Journalism.

At a recent meeting of the faculty of the literary department of the University of Michigan a committee was raised to consider the question to establish a course in preparation for newspaper work. Such courses are now offered at the universities of Kansas, Missouri, Washington, Minnesota, Illinois, and new York. The University of Michigan was, however, the pioneer of this field, since a course for newspaper men, entitled Rapid Writing, was given by Professor Scott as early as 1890. In recent years courses in newspaper theory and practice, in book reviews, and in technical journalism, have been regularly given and many successful newspaper men have been thus started on their career.

The new course, when it is established, will probably be in the main a grouping of courses already offered, including the courses in composition in the rhetoric department and a variety of subjects essential to the equipment of a newspaper worker, such as history, economics, sociology, English literature, philosophy and law.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE

At the M. E. Church Friday night Thoroughly Enjoyed by the Children

The Christmas tree and children's exercises held at the M. E. church Friday night was a joyous and happy event. The decorations were exceedingly pretty. Instead of one tree as heretofore, three smaller trees were used. One about 15 feet tall stood in the middle of the choir loft and one about 10 feet tall on either side. All three were elaborately trimmed with ribbons, tinsels and baubles, beside the liberal supply of presents.

The platform was fringed with evergreen branches over white bunting, while nestling among the green were the boxes of candy for the children.

There was a liberal giving of provisions and Xmas comforts for those whom age or circumstance has made this form of Xmas remembrance the most cheering and helpful.

How one man fooled his wife

She had been using her "favorite" baking powder. Wouldn't think of trying anything else, because "mother always used it," or some similar excuse. Hubby said she was prejudiced. He figured if Calumet, the new baking powder, selling at a moderate price, could be so successful, there must be some good in it. So he took a hand, and bought a can of Calumet, emptied the can containing her "favorite" baking powder and filled it with Calumet.

That evening, unsuspecting the trick, Wifey prepared and served some of her famous biscuit—piping hot, temptingly browned and puffed up to airy lightness, they were even more delicious than usual. Hubby, after considerable difficulty, succeeded in convincing her that the basis of the improvement was Calumet Baking Powder. And so an everlasting friend for Calumet was made.

This truthful little incident simply proves that the housewife is oftimes prejudiced against all baking powders except the one she has been using for years. She imagines that no other kind can possibly be as good. This is a mistaken impression. A trial of Calumet will prove that it is purer, more reliable; it has a greater leavening power than any other baking powder made. And it is moderate in price.

3rd Annual Banquet

OF THE ANTHONY FENCE CO., GIVEN TO THEIR SALESMEN

The Pleasant Affair Occurred at the Hotel Barrett Monday Night.

The third annual banquet of the Anthony fence company was held at the Hotel Barrett last evening with 18 guests present.

After the address by Pres. Fitzsimmons, each man was called upon for ideas or suggestions for the up-building of the company and cheerfully responded.

The affairs of the company are in excellent condition. Sales for the past year have been larger than expected and exceed last year.

Prospects for future business are excellent and all look forward to a prosperous business year in 1910.

This third annual banquet was a complete success in every way, and cemented the kindly feeling that already existed between the officers and members of this company.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PARTY

Given by the Young Men of Tecumseh a Success.

It was one of the most delightful functions ever given in this village. The beauty of the decorations, the handsome gowns of the ladies, the fine music, the delicious dinner, all added to the enjoyment of the guests.

The hall was artistically decorated with pine boughs, Christmas bells, and the colored lights added much to the beauty of the decorations.

The committee in charge are certainly to be complimented on the beauty of the hall. The dancing began at 5 o'clock and the music was furnished by Hart's full orchestra of Ypsilanti. Many novelty dances were introduced, making the program a very enjoyable one.

At 8 o'clock the guests were ushered to the Odd Fellow's hall, where a delicious dinner was served by the Rebekahs. The tables were prettily trimmed with green and white and the dining room was decorated with Christmas greens.

Forty-eight couples enjoyed the hospitality of the young men of Tecumseh and all reported a delightful time.

The handsome gowns worn were artistically displayed in dancing the circle two step. None were more beautiful than the ones worn by Mrs. R. T. Mead, which was a silk gown, color, color old blue, trimmed with gold lace and blue chiffon en-train.

Miss Edyth Shull was attired in pale blue messaline, the yoke and sleeves of gold net and was trimmed with garlands of pink roses.

Miss Hazel Clark Bidwell was handsomely gowned in an old gold messaline, Mrs. Robert Moore wore a gown of gold ottoman, satin trimmed, with bands embroidered in light blue and gold.

Miss Edgerton was charming in a light pink satin, Miss Benner wore a pretty gown of blue and silver, Miss Vita Rude was gowned in white and gold, Miss Geraldine Heesen wore a pretty dress of light blue figured messaline, Miss Ada Denny wore a gown of Alice blue silk, in fact each and every gown worn was a dream in itself and according to the masculine opinion, the ladies never looked more charming than at the 1909 Christmas party.

Among the guests present from out of town were, Misses Edgerton and Benner of Fremont, Ohio, Hazel Clark Bidwell of Detroit, Miss Palmer, Britton, Eolah Brown of Bergland, Geraldine Heesen of Toledo, Albertine Boyce of Monroe. Messrs. George Witherall of Cheyenne Wyoming, Vern Pratt of Eaton Rapids, Donald Reid and wife of Lansing, Samuel McClure and wife of Cleveland, George Adamson of Toledo, Yates of Newaygo, Walter Briegle of Detroit, Roy Van Winkle of Lansing, Hoffan of Lansing, Finley De Spelder of Louisville, Ky., Ross Ferguson of Adrian, John Clark of Clinton, Webb Kay of Ypsilanti, and John Scarlett of Toledo.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have pooven its absolute mrrit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Plymouth Man Was Crushed to Death. Injured Number Thirty-one, Eighteen of Whom Are Detroiters—Passengers Declare Motorman Failed to Slow Up at Curve, Hence the Accident.

L. Ferguson and wife of Lawton; John Neeland of Ann Arbor.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 27.—One man was killed outright, another was probably fatally injured, a seven-year-old boy had his right hand torn off at the wrist and more than a score of other persons suffered more or less severe hurts when an interurban car on the Detroit, Plymouth & Northville division of the D.U. R. leaped the tracks at Cady's Corner, four miles north of Wayne, at 7:30 Sunday evening.

About thirty-five passengers occupied the car. Most of them were returning to their homes, following Christmas reunions with their relatives and friends. Every passenger was injured to some extent.

Car Tipped Over.

According to passengers who were able to talk about their experience after they were brought to Detroit, Motorman P. F. Collar of Ypsilanti, who has been on the road since Oct. 25, drove his car at high speed, neglecting to apply the brakes when Cady's Corner, one of the sharpest bends on the line, was approached.

Attempting to take the curve at a high rate of speed, the heavy car jumped the rails, plowed its way more than fifty feet through the crusted snow and ice and finally pitched over on the one side, throwing a panic-stricken mass of men, women and children into a pile of shrieking, struggling humanity.

There was a rending of steel and iron, a crashing of wood, a smashing of heavy window glass, and the big coach fell, a twisted pile of wood and iron.

The motorman must have escaped uninjured. He could not be found after the accident, and it is presumed that in his dazed condition he wandered off through the woods. Officials of the D. U. R. were still waiting for a statement from him.

The car was due to leave Plymouth at 6:50 o'clock. It was fifteen minutes late, however, in leaving this point, and it is thought the motorman's effort to make up the lost time may have been responsible for the speed with which he approached the curve. D. U. R. officials say there is no reason why the curve should not have been taken carefully and slowly.

Work Painful Task.

The car fell in such a way that most of the injured had to be dragged through the smoker at the front end. It was the painful task of those who had escaped with slight injuries to help their less fortunate companions.

Conductor Stockdale of Ypsilanti telephaned the news of the disaster from the little booth near the scene, and directions for the relief of the injured were given from Detroit. A passenger car was sent out from Wayne with four doctors, and other physicians were hurried out from Plymouth.

A solitary house, several hundred feet from the scene of the accident, afforded nearest shelter and relief. The owner transformed his dwelling into a temporary hospital, and it was here that physicians dressed the injuries.

Frank Kendall of Plymouth was crushed to death when the car rolled over. Kendall was about twenty-eight years old. Frank Bassett, also of Plymouth, is so badly injured that physicians who worked over him all night have little hope for his recovery.

Foresight is very wise, but foresorrow is very foolish, and castles are at any rate better than dungeons in the air.—Sir John Lubbock.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

First—Don't Delay—Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John B. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

COOK AND WIFE IN EUROPE

So Declares Charles Wake, Former Staunch Friend.

HE, TOO, HAS LOST FAITH

Says Cook Could Not Sleep Before Departure, Fearing His Records Would Be Stolen—Cook Disguised Self Before Disappearing—Mrs. Cook Took Original Records With Her.

New York, Dec. 27.—Charles Wake, the insurance man, who has been one of the staunchest backers of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, has at last concluded that his faith in the Arctic explorer was misplaced. He has issued a statement in which he tells the full story of his relations with Cook. After relating how Cook had practically been driven into seclusion by denunciation threats, Mr. Wake tells of the steps he took to assist Cook.

"The doctor and his wife evinced an increasing anxiety to have me with them to guard the original records," said Mr. Wake, "and beginning with Nov. 19 I spent every night at the Hotel Grammatan in a room adjoining theirs. The doctor was unable to get any sleep, night or day, and at the end he was practically a nervous wreck.

Was to Meet Cook in Germany.

"It was finally agreed that Mr. Lonsdale, Dr. Cook's secretary, should sail for Copenhagen with a typewritten copy of the records on board the United States of the Scandinavian-American line, sailing Nov. 25, and that the doctor and his wife, carrying the originals, should sail for Genoa, under an assumed name, one Cedric, leaving on Nov. 27. Lonsdale, after he had deposited the copy, was to go, accompanied by some trustworthy person to Stetin, Germany, to meet the doctor and his wife. Lonsdale and his companions were then to take the originals to Copenhagen, and Dr. Cook was to remain within easy distance of the university. Their passage on the Cedric was secured, but subsequently it was agreed that their departure should be deferred until it became more certain that they would not be detected and followed. When I left the Hotel Grammatan at noon on Wednesday, Nov. 24, it was understood that the doctor and Lonsdale should come to my office at 3 o'clock that afternoon to arrange some of the details of Lonsdale's departure, but they did not put in an appearance.

Shaved Off Mustache.

"At 9 o'clock Lonsdale met me and told me the story of Dr. Cook's disappearance. He said they came down from Bronxville at 2:30 o'clock that afternoon, intending to go to my office. Instead, they went to the Pennsylvania depot, and Dr. Cook took a train for Philadelphia. He had his mustache shaved off and exchanged his derby for a soft felt hat. His parting words to Lonsdale were, 'Now I shall be able to get some sleep. Tell Mr. Wake I will write him, using the name of Harper.'

"Lonsdale sailed with a copy of the records on the United States, on Thursday, Nov. 25, and on the following day Mrs. Cook, who knew nothing more about her husband's whereabouts than I did, moved to New York. On the next day, the 27th, we received our first word from Dr. Cook. It came in the form of a letter postmarked Toronto, Ont., to Mrs. Cook in it he told her to meet him in Europe at once. 'If the hounds are still pursuing you,' he said, 'put my original records in a safe deposit box and leave the key with Mr. Wake; if they are not following you bring the records with you. My life is of more importance that the polar matter, which can wait if necessary.'

Wake Didn't Like Letter.

"I did not like the tone of the letter. Therefore, I returned the papers to Mrs. Cook, who had given them to me for safe keeping when her husband disappeared. Mrs. Cook then sailed for Europe, taking the records with her. After she had sailed I received an inquiry from Dr. Cook, who was then in Europe, for his wife's whereabouts, which I communicated to him. I have not heard from him since then, and I have no idea where he is now."

Mr. Wake said that the records taken to Copenhagen by Lonsdale were, so far as he knew, exact copies of the originals left behind. The last that Mr. Wake heard from Cook was when, on Dec. 10, he received a cablegram from him from Lisbon, where Cook was staying at the Central hotel

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening powder. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.

No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purgative tablets, etc., and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen, then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not new, only we are trying to find new friends for it.

A. A. Potts, of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found his cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through neighbors or friends; others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from stomach, liver or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. If you will send your name and address he will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. If it proves itself as he claims then continue the treatment by buying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist, as all of them sell it. Old people, like children, should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouched for with the U. S. government. Also, though a free bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are also guaranteed from the regular bottles bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free test bottle today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 199 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Three men are dead in Grand Crane, La., following a battle between whites and blacks. Six others were wounded, and the whole parish is greatly excited, many of the negroes fleeing to other sections.

As Premier Bratiano of Roumania was about to enter his residence the other evening, after attending parliament, a discharged railway employe fired at him three times with a revolver. The premier was wounded, but not seriously.

Mrs. Llouellen Hargis, widow of Judge Jim Hargis, former Breathitt county (Ky.) feudal chieftain, and the mother of his murdered, has broken down in mind and body and is almost penniless. Physicians regard it only as a matter of time until the woman faces the dread asylum.

Attorney General Jackson, in Topeka, will soon institute civil suits in the Wyandotte county court, that state, against the Kansas City (Kas.) packers for alleged violation of the Kansas anti-trust law in fixing the selling price of meats and other products. "I can easily prove that the packers are in a combine to control the selling prices of their products," said he.

A hurricane at St. Petersburg the other day caused the water in the Neva and in the canals to rise nine feet, bursting the thick ice on the streams and carrying floes into the streets. The whole lower part of the city was flooded. Some people were drowned, while many others were rescued with difficulty. Great damage was also done throughout Finland and the Baltic provinces.

When the Leyland line steamship Victorian reached port, at Boston, Tuesday, from Liverpool, she brought tidings of the French schooner Louise bound from Port De Bouc to St. Malo, which was met off the Irish coast with her crew starving and in despair. Had it not been for the timely aid of the Victorian it is probable that all hands would have been lost. For nine days, with torn rigging and sails, the craft had been staggering before a fearful gale.

SOUTHERN LAWYERS

Will Defend the Three Sisters in Ocey Snead Case.

New York, Dec. 27.—Governor Fort of New Jersey today will sign the papers for the extradition to that state of Mrs. Caroline B. Martin and her sister, Mrs. Mary W. Snead, who are locked up in the Tombs. Detective Godfrey of Essex county will go to Albany at once and ask Governor Hughes to affix his signature to them.

The two women are wanted in New Jersey for the murder of Mrs. Ocey W. M. Snead, victim of the East Orange bath tub tragedy and daughter and niece, respectively, of the two women.

If the case comes up for trial in Newark it is said that the two women who will be tried with Miss Virginia Wardlaw, another sister who is under arrest in Newark, will be represented by an array of southern lawyers besides the counsel now representing the women.

Obeyed Him.

Mr. Newlwed—So you've been buying more useless truck! We have absolutely no use for those curtains. Have I not told you to stop buying things just because they were cheap?

Mrs. Newlwed—Yes, my dear, and I've obeyed you. Those curtains were not at all cheap.

Two Likes.

"I like your nerve!" gasped the beautiful girl, struggling against the inevitable.

"And I like your cheek!" chuckled the young man as he continued the osculatory exercise.—Philadelphia Record.

ACCUSED MEN ARE INDIGNANT

Object to Methods of State Pharmacy Board.

STAR CHAMBER SESSION HELD

"We Want to Protect Them" Is Explanation Offered—One of the Thirteen Druggists Summoned Before Board Declared He Knew Not For What He Had to Answer.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 29.—A special meeting of the state pharmacy board was held at the Hotel Ste. Claire on Tuesday afternoon to give a hearing to thirteen druggists from various parts of the state who are alleged to have violated the state law. It was strictly a star chamber session, the members of the board assembling in a little bedroom on the top floor.

When the question was asked why a state board, supposedly transacting public business, felt obliged to conduct its investigations with such a show of secrecy, one member answered, "Well, you know, we want to protect them."

The protective theory did not appeal to the druggists who were under investigation by the board without their knowing the nature of the charges against them. Some of them spoke their minds very plainly.

"In my case," said one druggist, "all I know about my charges against me is this letter, which is not even signed. It simply states that if I had any reasons to assign why the board should not revoke my certificate the board would hear me on such and such a date. No charge is made against me, and no bill of particulars is given. Neither do I know who made the complaint, and in my case I want to know, for I have reason to believe that there is spite work going on.

"I understand it is alleged that some druggists have been selling liquor in local option counties. If that is the case, let them go before the proper judicial authorities and make complaint. Every man is entitled to his day in court and has a right to be confronted with the witnesses against him."

DOUBLE CEREMONY.

Reception and Profession in Which Young Ladies Take Veil.

Monroe, Mich., Dec. 29.—Tuesday morning, in the convent chapel attached to St. Mary's, was held the double religious ceremony of reception and profession. Ten young ladies received the habit of a novice of the Sister Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, and eight novices who had completed their two years of probation were admitted to profession.

The ceremonies, conducted by the Rt. Rev. John S. Foley, bishop of Detroit, assisted by Rev. James Wheeler and Rev. John Hecker of Detroit, were impressive and solemn.

Five Men Hurt at Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 29.—Five men took a drop of twenty feet off a scaffold at the Seager Engine works. Four were badly injured about the head and shoulders, and the fifth was hurt internally, it is feared fatally. Machinery being hoisted into position was too heavy for the planking, which gave way, precipitating the men headlong to the ground.

Hunt Girl's Murderer Caught.

Toledo, Dec. 29.—Joseph Mackeley, who killed eighteen-year-old Caroline Hunt and shot her parents, Stephen Hunt and wife, Monday night, was captured last night by police at an obscure hotel near the business section, where he occupied a room.

Pellagra in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 29.—The Mississippi state board of health reports that 188 cases of pellagra were found in the state during the year 1909 and that there were 91 deaths from the disease. The disease was reported from 43 counties, while 26 had no case or trace of it.

WAR BEGAN OVER A GIRL

New York Chinese Clash Gruesome in Its Detail.

CHINESE LASS ELOPED

Fled From San Francisco With Member of Another Fraternity Than That Husband Belonged To—Her Death and Others Have Followed, While Others Have Been Wounded.

New York, Dec. 29.—All the trouble between the On Leong tong and the Four Brothers, the latter a Chinese fraternal society, which resulted in the shooting of two old men, Low Jung and Low Ye Fong, at 30 Pell street, Monday night, seems to have begun with the murder of the young Chinese girl, Bow Kum, last summer. Until that murder, and for a short time afterwards, most of the Four Brothers were members of the On Leongs.

Her death and subsequent differences of opinion between the Chinese criminals led up to the murder of two on Leong on Oct. 7, last, by men belonging to the Four Brothers. This shooting, it seemed, furthermore resulted in the instant killing of Low Jung late on Monday night and the death about noon Tuesday of Low Ye Fong in the Hudson street hospital.

The Chinese girl, Bow Gum, once was the wife of a San Francisco Chinaman who was a member of the Four Brothers. One day little Bow Gum met a member of the On Leongs and liked him. Together they ran away and came to New York. The deserted member of the Four Brothers in San Francisco learned after a time where his former wife lived, and with whom. On a Saturday night, last July, the girl was found by the police, disembowelled on the fourth floor of a house in Mott street.

Wouldn't Pay Price.

A group of members of the Four Brothers stepped forward and offered their services as witnesses against two members of the On Leongs who were being held by the police. But, straightway the Four Brothers went to the On Leongs and pleaded with them not to testify, for at that time most of the Four Brothers were affiliated with the On Leongs. The On Leongs agreed not to testify for $3,000. That price was too much for the Four Brothers, and as a result the On Leongs and the Four Brothers declared war.

A gang of the Four Brothers swooped down on the On Leongs on Oct. 7 and shot them. One of the wounded men, Hong Chong, a week ago was discharged cured from a hospital. As he was leaving, so his nurse told Captain Galvin, he stopped to talk to her. "There will be shooting soon, I think," he said. There was. The Four Brothers got two of the On Leongs. Monday night the On Leongs got two of the Four Brothers crowd. Now, of course, its up to the Four Brothers gang to get some more On Leongs.

POWERS MAY AGREE.

Germany and England Near to an Understanding.

London, Dec. 29.—Notwithstanding the semi-official denials, the story of an impending entente between Germany and Great Britain persists. The Standard, which is usually anti-German, has given prominence to a statement from its Berlin correspondent, in which he says: "Germany is willing for the present, at any rate, to consider the possibility of concluding a reapproachement with Great Britain on a triple basis, as follows:

First, An agreement to co-operate in certain colonial matters, chiefly in Africa, where the British and German dominions are adjacent to one another.

Second, An agreement regarding the future of the near east from the Bosphorus to the Persian gulf.

Third, An agreement concerning naval expansion.

The correspondent claims to have excellent authority for his assertion.

Actor Andrew Mack Divorced.

New York, Dec. 29.—Supreme Court Justice Davis has confirmed the report of Leopold E. Harburger as referee recommending a decree of divorce to Mrs. Alice McAloon from William A. McAloon, better known as Andrew Mack the actor. The actor was represented by counsel before the referee, but did not appear personally. Mrs. McAloon married the actor in 1887 at the "Little Church Around the Corner."

Artist Remington Buried.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Dec. 29.—The body of Frederic Remington, the artist, who died at Ridegfield Sunday, arrived at Canton Tuesday morning and was conveyed to the Universalist church, where it laid in state until 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when the funeral services were held. Rev. Almon Gunnison, president of St. Lawrence university, delivered the funeral address.

WU IMPARTS HIS LONG LIFE SECRET

Sailed For Europe Today on Homeward Journey.

New York, Dec. 29.—Dr. Wu Ting Fang left us this morning—maybe for good, as he himself said last evening. With his wife and his son's wife and his grandson, Dr. Wu sailed for Europe on the Lusitania. He won't reach China until some time next March, because he has mapped out a season of travel in England, Germany, France and Italy. Tuesday, as he sat in a big arm chair in his apartment at the Hotel Manhattan, he dictated many farewell letters to his friends all over the country and received callers.

"Dr. Wu," said one of his callers, "Do you mind telling how old you are?"

"How old are you?" he shot back quick as a flash. "You may think you know; but you do not know. Nobody knows how old he is. All we have is the word of our parents that we are of such an such an age. I think I'm over one hundred, but my family informs me that I'm only a little past sixty. But I'm getting ten years younger every year, and I will tell you how I do it.

"Once I drank whisky, just a little whisky, and some times I drank champagne; but I have quit that. A little unfermented grape juice satisfies me, and is all I ought to have. Now, about eating. I am not a vegetarian, but a sanitarian—one who eats only simple, wholesome foods. My luncheon today was composed of corn flakes, sweet potatoes, a little bread and butter, milk and apples. If you Americans would eat those things you would live lohger and be much happier."

Dr. Wu is succeeded by Chang Yin Tang as minister from China.

Schooner Was Abandoned.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 29.—Wrecked, waterlogged and abandoned by master and crew, the three-master schooner Nettie Champion, which sailed from Norfolk for New York on Dec. 22, with a cargo of lumber, was sighted Monday, thirty-five miles southeast of Cape Henry, by Captain Dunn of the British steamship Radiance. The fate of the crew of the Champion, which was composed of Captain Lloyd and perhaps five men, is yet unknown. They evidently took to the yawl boat to save themselves, as the stern davits of the schooner were turned out.

Weds Christine Roosevelt.

New York, Dec. 29.—Lieutenant J. E. Shelley, U. S. A., and Miss Christine Kean Roosevelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Emlen Roosevelt, were married at noon Tuesday at the Episcopal church of Zion and Timothy, in West Fifty-seventh street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. F. Labeck, rector of the church.

North Carolina Town Destroyed.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 29.—The town of Rose Hill, N. C., has been entirely destroyed by fire, which wiped out thirty-one business houses and practically all the dwelling houses. Although neighbors and relatives from a distance are arranging to care for the homeless, there has been much suffering already.

CRUELLY TORTURED THEM.

Robbers Extorted All Money an Old Couple Had.

Shenandoah, Pa., Dec. 29.—Jacob Gimbler, an aged farmer, was called to the door and struck on the head with a blunt instrument and felled in an insensible condition. He was quickly bound and gagged, when his aged wife, hearing the noise, ran from a back room only to be confronted by four men with revolvers, who commanded her not to make an outcry. Two of the men ransacked the house. They secured $60 in cash and then demanded more money from the old woman.

The robbers then turned their attention to Gimbler. When he protested they took his shoes off, tortured him by burning his feet with a candle dip and matches, and when he told them where $45 was the robbers got it, came back and put the old couple into a bed and threatened to burn them alive, at the same time beating them cruelly. Gimbler finally told them where his last $95 in gold was hidden, which they quickly secured, making $200 in all, and escaped.

Soldiers to Check Race Riot.

Selma, Ala., Dec. 29.—Lieutenant Colonel Carter, in command of a battalion of soldiers, has left here for Magnolia, Ala., to check a race riot. It is reported the negroes are armed and that telegraph and telephone lines are being cut. The shooting of four whites and the burning of a negro caused the outbreak. The blacks, intoxicated and armed, have had several clashes with white residents.

WANTS TO SHARE RESPONSIBILITY

Taft to Hand In Ballinger-Pinchot Inquiry.

AFFAIR TO HAVE LAW FORCE

Houses Will Name Committee of Six Each—Commission's Power of Questioning Is Complete—Taft Irritated as Result of Criticisms of His Course in the Matter.

Washington, Dec. 29.—There have been important developments in connection with the impending congress inquiry into the conduct of the land office under Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, for which Mr. Ballinger asked. It now becomes certain, as a result of the acute stage reached in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, that the inquiry will be much more comprehensive and sweeping than has been understood.

At a long conference, just held between President Taft and Representative John Dalzell of Pennsylvania, a member of the committee on rules, it was decided that the joint committee of the senate and house, to consist of six members of each body, which will inquire into the propriety of Secretary Ballinger's conduct while commissioner of the general land office as well as head of the interior department, will be created under a joint resolution. The committee will take cognizance also of the conduct of other branches of the government.

While under a simple resolution of the senate or house the investigation of Mr. Ballinger would be conducted only by the body in which such a resolution originated, and while under a concurrent resolution the inquiry would be broadened to cover both branches of the national legislature, thus making the inquiry purely congressional. Under a joint resolution the case resolves itself into one of "the federal government versus Secretary of the Interior Ballinger."

Much Power For Questioners.

It is President Taft, who not long ago came out with a sweeping endorsement of Secretary Ballinger, who now insists that he be permitted to have a share of the responsibility of passing on Mr. Ballinger's conduct. A joint resolution will accomplish this, as it must be signed by the president to become effective and when so signed has all the force and effect of regular statute law. It is pointed out that the questioning of a witness called before such a joint congressional committee would have back of it all the weight and power of the legal machinery of the United States.

Mr. Taft, according to all accounts, has been extremely irritated as a result of criticisms of his course in "putting the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy up to congress." He wants the congressional committee created in such a way that it will have every facility in the world for arriving at the whole truth.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Opposing Factions In Nicaragua to Hold Conference.

Washington, Dec. 29.—Peace in Nicaragua may be restored at a conference to be held on next Saturday between the insurgents party and representatives of the Madriz faction, now in control of the government at Managua. Both sides appear to be in a conciliatory spirit. The United States would be glad to also bring about peace, if such a result can be accomplished without yielding any of the principles insisted on by Secretary of State Knox.

While both sides to the dispute in Nicaragua are in favor of peace, General Juan J. Estrada, the president of the provisional government and the leader of the insurgent army, is not willing to recognize the Madriz government. In this position he is supported by the United States. Not only the two parties in Nicaragua but also the United States are in favor of new elections to choose a president of the republic, and it is believed some common agreement between Estrada and Madriz factions can be arranged on this basis.

While the details have not been arranged, it is probable that the United States will take some action to guarantee the impartiality of the elections in case an agreement is reached to hold them.

Bluefields, Dec. 29.—By wireless to Colon.—In an interview, Provisional President Estrada said:

"Through the columns of the American press, I desire to express my gratitude for the new indications of sympathy the Americans have demonstrated by the establishment of a local hospital. This alone convinces my followers that the Americans believe I will fulfill my obligations for perpetual peace, justice and sound government in Nicaragua. I deplore the shedding of blood, but I am determined to force the country from Zelayan domination."

Earthquake In Switzerland.

Geneva, Dec. 29.—A sharp earthquake occurred throughout Switzerland Tuesday morning. The walls of houses were cracked in some places. The abnormal warmth continues.

ROME CURE FOR ECZEMA

Oil of Wntergreen, Thymol, Glycerine, Etc., Used as a Simple Wash

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs Merrill Co

not a word regarding any future meeting. There was nothing to read between the lines. A great loneliness surged over Hillard. Was this, then, really the end? No! He would wait here in Florence till the day of doom. He would waste no time in seeking her, for he knew that if he sought he would not find.

Day after day dragged through the hours, and Florence grew thinned and torrid. Sometimes he rode past the Villa Ariadne, but he never stopped.

It was in the middle of June that one afternoon the concierge handed him a telegram. It contained but three words.

"Villa Serbelloni, Bellaggio."

The Villa Serbelloni, now a hotel, stands on a wooded promontory among the Alps and between the lakes, at Bellaggio, and all day long the warm sunshine floods its walls and terraces and glances from the polished leaves of the tropical plants.

The 6 o'clock boat from Como puffed up noisily and smokily to the quay, churning her side paddles. Hillard stepped ashore impatiently. What a long day it had been! How white the Villa Serbelloni seemed up there on the little hilltop. He gave his luggage to the porter from the Grand and followed him on foot to the hotel. He dressed quickly, and in less than an hour he stepped forth from the gardens and took the path up to the villa.

Afar he saw a table spread under the great oak. A woman sat by it. It was still daylight, and he would have known that head of hair among the ten thousand hourls of heaven. She did not rise, but she extended her hand, a grave inquiry in her slumbrous eyes. With equal gravity he clasped the hand, but held back the impulse to kiss it. He sat down opposite her and, smiling, whimsically inquired:

"Now, where did we leave off?"

At first she did not understand.

He enlightened her. "I refer to that Arabian Nights entertainment in New York. Where did we leave off that interesting discussion?"

She smiled brightly. "We shall take up the thread of that discourse with the coffee."

"Why not countermand the order for dinner? I am not hungry."

"But I am," she replied. She was wholly herself now. The tact with which he began his address disembarrassed her. For two days since she dispatched the telegram she had lived in a kind of ecstatic terror. She had even regretted the message once it was beyond recall. "I am human enough to be hungry sometimes." She summoned the waiter.

The dinner was excellent, but Hillard scarcely knew what this or that plate was. And when the waiter brought the coffee and lingered for further orders it was Hillard who dismissed him rather curtly.

He said musingly: "We had agreed that it would be best never to meet again, that to keep the memory of that night fresh in our minds, a souvenir for old age, it were wisest to part then. Well, we can keep the memory of it for our old age. It will be a little secret between us, and we shall talk it over on just such nights as this."

He reached for her hand, which lay upon the cover, but without apparent notice of his movement she drew it back. A flash of pain crossed Hillard's face.

"I have waited patiently for weeks." She faced him with an enigmatical smile, lighted a match, blew it out and drew a line across the center of the table.

He laughed. "What! Again?"

"Observe."

As a rejoinder he smoothed out the telegram she had sent to him. "Why did you send this to me?"

Her lips had no answer ready.

"There can be but one reason," he pursued.

"Friendship."

The beginning of the night was cool, but the fire of the world's desire burned in her cheeks, and she was afraid. She stepped to the railing, faced the purpling mountains and sang "Die Zauberflote." Hillard dared not touch her till the last note was gone.

"I did not come here because of friendship," he said. "Only one thing brought me—love and the hope of love."

She stared at him, her hand at her throat.

Then he took her in his arms suddenly, hungrily, even roughly. "You are mine, mine, and nothing in the world shall take you from my arms again, Sonia."

She pressed her palms against him and stood away. She looked bravely into his eyes now.

"I sent the message because I wanted you, because I am tired of lying to my heart, because I have a right to be happy, because—because I love you! Take me and, oh, be good and kind to me, for I have been very lonely and unhappy. Kiss me!" with a touch of the old imperiousness.

She clasped him fondly to herself.

"See Naples and die," she whispered, "but the spirit will come to Bellaggio."

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM.

Tecumseh, Mich., Dec. 21, 1909.

A few days ago an article appeared in the Detroit Journal under quite large head lines to the effect that "It had been recently discovered that the Star of Bethlehem, or the star which appeared to guide the wise men of the east to the place of our Saviour's nativity, was none other than Halley's Comet, which will be visible this year and has appeared at intervals of about 75 years since about 240 B. C."

Being somewhat interested in astronomy, I wrote to Prof. W. J. Hussey of the astronomical observatory of the University of Michigan asking his opinion and received the following reply:

Dear Sir:

In reply to your inquiry of December 16th, I would say that the past history of Halley's comet has been the subject of a very complete investigation by Messrs. Cowell and Crommelin, astronomers of the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, England, for the period from 240 B. C. to the present time. They obtain for the date of perihelion passage nearest the birth of Christ, October 8, B. C. 12. It is impossible that their calculations may be in error a few days, but I should say not enough to make probable the statements in the newspaper article to which you refer.

Yours very truly,
W. J. Hussey,
Professor of Astronomy.

Thus we see that we cannot always place confidence in a newspaper article even in as reliable a paper as the Detroit Journal.

I will venture the assertion that I might write an article dealing with the most absurb subject, with no truth or foundation whatever and send to the average daily paper and it would be published in 3 out of 5 of them without comment.

I might add that Halley's comet appears in the range of our vision in its perihelion passage around our sun in periods of from 74 to 76 years, its last appearance being in the year 1833. It is now approaching and will be visible as a beautiful object in the heavens in a very short time.

Let us when we gaze on this beautiful star, look upon it, not as the actual Star of Bethlehem, but as a reminder of that miraculous Star which appeared to guide the wise men of the east to the place of our Saviour's nativity.

ABNER WILSON.

Governor Warnor Prohibits Prize Fights.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 30.—Governor Warner has taken a firm stand on prize fighting in this state, and already stopped several proposed mills and proposes to see that all are stopped. With this end in view, the following circular letter has been sent to every sheriff in the state by the governor:

"I am writing for the purpose of calling your attention to the provisions of sections 11,732, 11,733, 11,734 and 17,735, of the Compiled Laws of 1897. In a number of counties of the state there have been reports in the press that arrangements were being made for prize fights, and I have deemed it my duty to send telegrams to the sheriffs of two counties recently calling attention to the provisions of the Michigan law prohibiting prize fighting, and directing them to take whatever measures were necessary to see that the law was enforced.

"It is your duty to see that our state law prohibiting prize fighting is enforced in your county. If it is generally understood that the local authorities will enforce the law, it is not probable that any attempts will be made to violate its provisions. Should any arrangements be made in your county for a prize fight, you will be expected to take whatever steps are necessary to see that the law is enforced."

A Letter From Son to Mother

IN WHICH HE GIVES A BRIEF GLIMPSE OF A LATE VISIT TO THE VALLEY OF DEATH

And Cites You to Several Other Historical Features Appertaining to the Civil War.

York, Pa., Dec. 6, 1909.

DEAR MOTHER:

Got your letter in Gettysburg, Saturday. Was so glad to get it. We spent Sunday there and came here, (York) this morning.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Miley, the Star Commedian and Miss Orth, Lida and myself, engaged a surry and drove all over the battle ground. We were driving from 1 o'clock until 5, and covered a distance of 20 or 25 square miles.

Went up onto Culp's Hill, Cemetery Hill, through the Valley of Death, Devil's Den, past Bloody Angle and up to Little and Big Round Top. Also went through the Jennie Wade house where she was shot while baking bread for Union soldiers. She was killed by a Confederate bullet which passed through two closed doors, striking her in the back, and piercing her entire body. She was the only inhabitant of the city killed in that battle.

While on Culp's Hill we met a gentleman whose father was Lieut. Phillip Lee Wilson of the 5th N. Y., 6th Corps, the Zouave brigade, nick-named by the Confederates at the battle of Big Bethel, the "Red Legged Devils." His father was in the battle and he gave us several interesting facts which I will try to tell you and the General.

First, the only living general of that battle is General Sickles, who resides in N. Y. City. He is 85 years old and is so decrepit that he is dependent on crutches and outside aid.

There are, I should guess, 500 or 600 monuments on the field, erected to different regiments and generals, not counting those in the National cemetery. You know each regiment and corps had an insignia, like a coat of arms. That of the 12th corps was a star, that of the 6th corps was the Grecian Cross, the 5th corps the Maltese Cross, another corps was the Clover Leaf, another, the Crescent, another, a Sphere, etc. The 6th corps was the only corps in the entire army of Appomatox, who were never driven off the field of battle in the entire war.

The statue to the 96th and 102nd Penn., Volunteers had a bas-relief, showing a color sergeant planting the colors. It seems that when part of the 6th corps were ordered to help repulse Pickett's charge, the Penn. 96th and 102nd were left alone in the center on Culp's Hill. Johnson's brigade chose this time to make an attack. The color staff was shot through and the color sergeant, in the face of the charge, stepped up on top of the breast works with a stump of a staff with flag attached and planted it there under fire of four or five thousand rebels—so his picture was put on the monument.

The Bloody Angle is where Pickett made his hopeless but desperate charge, and on all sides, but particularly to the south extends the wheat field, flanked by Little Round Top and Devil's Den on the extreme south. Devil's Den was occupied and held by a Penn. regiment.

I think the 55th or 155th, the only Northern regiment to hold their position throughout the battle. The whole sight now is sublime, and yet, so suggestive of horror and death incarnate, that only an actual observer can appreciate it.

Just think! 150,000 men fighting for three days like animals. 90,000 Rebels and 60,000 Union men with actual loss in killed of 2,800 union men and 5,500 rebels, the total casulties being about 20,000 union and 40,000 rebels. Just think!

The most imposing and perfect memorial on the field to me, was, the one of Gen. Greene of the artillery on Culp's Hill. But there are so many that no one can really choose a favorite in one visit. There is only one monument in the field to the rebels, and it is on Culp's hill to the 2nd Maryland, the only Southern regiment to take by storm a position inside the union lines, and they only held it for a few hours, and were almost annihilated in doing it. - - - Had to stop and go to rehearsal—so, must close with love to you and the general.

Your loving son,
ELLSWORTH ELLIS.

The Intelligent Mule.

"Some people think mules haven't much intelligence, but I know they have," was the way a commercial traveler interrupted a story teller. "Now, take the town I come from. While I was home on a visit last year the place was all wrought up over the systematic stealing of flowers from the graves in our leading cemetery. The thing had been going on some time, and the people were shocked, of course. Finally a guard was posted and the thief captured, and the thief was a mule.

"It didn't take long to get at all the facts. It seems that a certain woman living near the cemetery had held up the mule's owner, who was beating the animal, prosecuted him for cruelty, then bought the mule and turned it out to pasture. The mule was so grateful to the woman that every night it would jump the pasture fence, go into the cemetery, pick up the freshest bunch of flowers it could find, carry them to the woman's house and deposit them on the front stoop, where she would find them in the morning. Now, when you talk of intelligence in animals"—

"Good night," said the man whom the commercial traveler had interrupted.—New York Globe.

The Top Hat.

Tall hats, "pearkin up like the spire of a steeple a quarter of a yard above the crowne," as a sixteenth century writer describes them, were known in the time of Elizabeth, and the Puritans affected them until they merged into the old fashioned beavers of our great-grandfathers' days. Top hats of silk appeared first in Florence about 1800, and twenty years later silk hats with felt bodies were introduced into England. About 1840 the French silk hat was placed on the market and at once adopted in the familiar "chimney pot" shape. There were several varieties of it, such as the Wellington hat, with the yeoman crown; the Anglesea hat, bell shaped at the top, and the D'Orsay hat, with ribbed silk binding and a big bow. The color also varied. Thus the Earl of Harrington started a craze for green top hats by wearing one in his garden with the idea of not frightening the birds. He also tested his silk hats by standing upon them. The top hat, however, was never so favored by any great personage as to account for its general adoption.—London Answers.

Heard in a Restaurant.

"Say, waiter, I'm in a hurry. What can you give me for breakfast?"

"Can't give yer nothin', but yer kin git ham an' eggs for a quarter."

"Well, give me two poached eggs on toast."

Calling, "Adam and Eve on a raft."

"And, say, waiter, by the way, have the eggs turned."

Calling again, "Wreck 'em!"

"Oh, say, waiter, how long will my omelet be?"

"About eight inches, I guess."

"Waiter, why don't you put a button on that apron?"

"Asked the old woman to sew a button on last night. She couldn't find one, so she sewed up the buttonhole."

"See here, waiter, don't take that plate away with the apple peeling on. I believe the peel is just as wholesome as the fruit and, in fact, contains more nutriment. The very idea!"

"Well, why don't you live on pineapple skins?"—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Speed of Light.

Light holds the record for high speed among all moving things that have been measured. It travels at the rate of 328,028,800 yards a second. This is faster than thinking, even by the most quick witted person. Let any reader try to think the simplest thought and then with the aid of a stop watch note how long it has taken him to think it. He will then be able to understand how slow his mental operations are compared to the speed of light.

In Old Bohemia.

"I would like to meet some of the picturesque long haired knights of the pen and palette," said the unsophisticated stranger. "It is worth a dollar to meet a real bohemian."

"Don't worry about its being worth it," hastened the guide. "Just as soon as you meet a real bohemian he'll ask you to loan him one."—Chicago News.

A Bit of a Bull.

The following entry was discovered the other day in the complaint book of a Melbourne club, which numbers several Irishmen among its members:

"The hot water in the lavatory today was quite cold, and there was none of it."

It was in the handwriting of a well known doctor.

Did You Ever Get Left?

West Lake Shore train 153 which leaves Adrian at 5:30 every morning got into an amusing predicament Tuesday morning when it left Hudson without its conductor and then had to back up all the way from Pittsford to Hudson to get that official.

The conductor was in its station getting his running orders and a brakeman of the train, an industrious man by the way, thought he would utilize the time by sweeping the snow off the rear platform. The engineer gazing out of his cab noticed a pair of arms swinging back and forth on the rear platform of the last car. He thought it was the conductor "high balling," that is signaling him to start. So he did.

The conductor ran out of the station to see the smoke of his disappearing train in the distance. In the meantime the brakeman had discovered that the train was without a conductor. So he endeavored to apply the brakes. They were frozen and refused to respond. He then tried various other methods to attract the attention of the haughty engineer but without avail and until the train reached Pittsford it was conductorless. When that station hove in sight the station agent hurried out with a wild look in his eyes, told the engineer that it was up to him to go to Hudson and get the conductor. The engineer did and took the train with him, backing it the entire distance and giving the passengers an extra ride for their money, which they undoubtedly appreciated.—Adrian Times.

Concerning

THE INJUNCTION SERVED BY RAISIN TOWNSHIP VS THE VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH

Tuesday morning the case of the Board of Health of Raisin township et al. vs. the village of Tecumseh was taken up in the circuit court. Attys. Smith and Baldwin represented the complainants and Attys. Bird, Sampson and Wood the defendants.

It will be remembered that a temporary injunction was issued in the case restraining A. P. Southworth from completing the sewer.

The first witness to be called was Daniel Gratz one of the brothers who claimed the sewage emptied into the Hayden pond would damage their wheat if steamed with the pond water. The second witness was Michael Smeltzer a farmer having land adjoining on the river.

The story of the case it will be remembered is to the effect that the village of Tecumseh passed a measure to provide for a sanitary sewer. The contract for building it was let to A. P. Southworth of Adrian and he arraged to begin work on it August 9. August 3 a bill of complaint was filed by the Board of Health of Raisin township in conjunction with Daniel Gratz, Pliny Gratz, Michael Smeltzer. Albert A. Comfort, Melinda E. Comfort, Fulton McLane and John T. Adams to prevent a public nuicance as they declared in their bill the sewer if allowed to empty where it is planned to have it would resolve itself into one. The court granted a temporary order restraining the village from pouring sewerage into the river until the following morning when the village must show cause why temporary injunction should not issue restraining village until the case was heard in the January term of court. A. P. Southworth the contractor was also served with the order restraining him until the same morning.

According to the individual complaints the sewer was to empty into a pond known as the Quaker mill pond adjoining a mill owned and operated by the Gratz Bros. They claimed that the pond is a shallow affair and its waters are almost stagnant except for a channel through the center and the only motion the waters receive are caused by the raising and lowering of the Hayden mill dam, situated near there. The bottom of the pond is overgrown with weeds and the persons filing the bill of complaint affirmed that the filth and sewage emptied into the pond would settle among the weeds and would become a filthy place. Some of the parties are in the habit of cutting ice and watering their stock in the stream as well as eating fish from its waters and in the case of the Gratz Bros. of moistening their wheat from water drawn in from the river. All whose things would have to be stopped if the sewer should empty where the plans show it is intended to.

That, they affirm would cause them not only a great inconvenience and loss of money but also become a menace to their health as the foul orders arising from the water as well as the decaying matter in it would make it both unpleasant and even unhealthy to live near the river. The board of health of the township of Raisin joined in the complaint about the ill health which would probaly result and pronounced that if the village was restrained the matter would become a public nuisance.

Since that time the work of building the sewer been has progressing and six miles of it has been completed. Now the township of Raisin and the rest of the complainants are endeavoring to restrain the village from using Hayden's pond as an outlet.

The Herald, knowing its subscribers were interested in the drain case, phoned to Adrian this morning for particulars from F. B. Wood. He said the testimony was not all in yet but hoped to be finished tonight. The case will probably be carried over until next week.

Yesterday after the specialists and physicians engaged by the different parties had finished their testimony in regard to the effect the sewerage would have on the health, etc., of the people living about there, the complaintants attorneys put Thomas Harrison, William Graham and Chas. Kaynor on the stand. Those men have land adjoining on the Raisin river four or five miles south and east of Adrian. They testified that a dirty scum caused by the sewerage of that city collects on the water during the summer even at that distance from Adrian. John Smith took the stand and testified that at some periods of the summer the mill race dries up entirely at Tecumseh.

This morning Engineer Riggs of the Riggs & Sherman Co. took the stand for the defence and his testimony occupied the greater part of the morning.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.

Bad Stomach Causes Unsightly Complexions. O. A. Wright Has a Remedy.

Why? The stomach in a healthy condition separates the nutritious matter from the food and gives it to the blood to supply the entire body with nourishment.

If the stomach is not in a healthy condition it does not separate from the food the nutritious matter and it passes off with the waste.

Thus the blood is impoverished and has not sufficient nourishment to supply the muscles, skin and body generally.

If you have belching of gas, distress after eating, nausea, biliousness, nervousness or foul breath, then your stomach is wrong and you want the best prescription for stomach troubles the world has ever known.

You want Mi-o-na tablets, the great stomach remedy which C. A. Wright & Son guarantees to cure indigestion, no matter of how long standing, or money back.

Relieves stomach distress at once.

Mi-o-na is sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Tecumseh by C. A. Wright & Son for 50c a large box. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and the disease disappears. The prescription has now been used so long as to have pooven its absolute mrrit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. D. Prescription. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Rich Men's Gifts Are Poor

beside this: "I want to go on record as saying that I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest gifts that God has made to woman, writes Mrs. O. Rhinevault, of Vestal Center, N. Y., "I can never forget what it has done for me." This glorious medicine gives a woman buoyant spirits, vigor of body and jubilant health. It quickly cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Head-ache, Backache, Fainting and Dizzy Spells; soon builds up the weak, ailing and sickly. Try them. 50c at C. A. Wright & Son.

A man who slips on a banana peeling, then arises and without waste of words or ruffled temper, removes the peeling so that others may not slip on it, is a Christian.

Foley's Honey and Tar is the best and safest cough remedy for children. At the first symptoms of a cold, give as directed, and ward off danger of croup, bronchitis, sore throat, cold in the head, and stuffy breathing. It brings comfort and ease to the little ones. Contains no opiates or other harmful drugs. Keep always on hand, and refuse substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

People who are always harping on their troubles don't dispense a very high grade of music.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are urinary disorders, weak back and backache, rheumatism and reumatic pains and twinges, pains in the groin, etc. There is nothing as good for kidney and bladder trouble as DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. You may depend upon them to give entire satisfaction. They are antiseptic, act promptly and soothe pain. Sold by all druggists.

The Old Reliable

Subscribers — do not forget that your paper is due the first of the year. Please pay as promptly as possible and oblige THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

After exposure, and when you feel a cold coming on, take Foley's Honey and Tar, the great throat and lung remedy. It stops the cough, relieves the congestion, and expels the cold from your system. Is mildly laxative. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

First Don't Delay—Second Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Tecumseh residents desire more convincing proof that the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

John B. Smith, Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says. "For several years I suffered a great deal from rheumatism and backache. My kidneys were badly disordered and I knew that they caused all my trouble. About two years ago I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was relieved. I have had no serious attacks of the trouble since. Shortly after using Doan's Kidney Pills I told of my experience through the local papers and at this time I am glad to verify that statement and again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

If there were no loafers in this old world, the police courts wouldn't have much to do.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendatiph: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening powder. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lamuel Landerdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '41. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

DREAM CAME TRUE.

Woman Died Just as Dead Husband Predicted, in Dream, to Her.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 29.—Mrs. Belinda Elliston of Ashley two weeks ago had a dream in which her husband, who died many years ago, appeared before her and, after gazing at her for some time with a sad look on his face, made the strange announcement, "You will live until you are 62 years 5 months and 17 days old."

So vivid was the dream and so pronounced impression did it make that she said she was convinced it was going to come true. She remained in good health, however, and was in her usual good spirits Monday night when she retired. Soon after midnight she was stricken with apoplexy, called for help and died in a few minutes. Her death came just flev days short of the dream prophecy.

BOY DEFENDS MOTHER.

Shoots Her Companions as Latter Was About to Attack Her.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 3.—At the Menominee county jail, August Schwartz, a bright young American boy, seventeen years old, is charged with the crime of murder, having shot and killed Anton Braderski, companion of his mother, after a row at the family home in Cedar River.

Braderski had been drinking and commenced to quarrel with Mrs. Schwartz. He took down his gun and told the woman that when his bottle was finished he would clean the whole house out. Mrs. Schwartz secured the gun, took it outside the house and broke it. This so enraged Braderski that he took down the bayonet of the gun and threatened to kill the woman. At this point three shots rang out, and Anton Braderski fell dead.

August Schwartz admits he shot Braderski, but claims it was necessary for him to do it in defense of his mother.

SWALLOWS ACID.

Quarrelsome and Hard Drinking Parent Ends His Life.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 3.—His brain inflamed by the excessive use of hard cider, and following a violent quarrel with his wife, of whom he was unreasonably jealous, and with his son, August, eighteen years old, whom he attempted to shoot, Frederick Weld ended his own life by swallowing the contents of an eight-ounce bottle of carbolic acid and glycerine.

Weld had long been a hard drinker and, according to his wife, had been in the habit some days of drinking a gallon of hard cider.

Millionaire Buist May Soon Catch Runaway Ward and Waiter.

Philadelphia, Jan. 3.—The search for Miss Roberta Buist de Janon, the missing grand-daughter and ward of Robert Buist, the millionaire seed merchant, which has gone on night and day in a hundred eastern cities since the girl disappeared on Wednesday of last week in the company of Frederick Cohen, a middle aged waiter, has led to Chester county. Detectives, accompanied by the father of Miss De Janon, after a dramatic chase, have almost cornered a trio supposed to include the missing pair in a village called Vintage, about thirteen miles south of Lancaster.

The detectives are hoping to have the couple and their companion before many hours.

Detailed information received by the detectives here has left them positive that Cohen, Miss De Janon and a woman reached Atglen about 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon and departed in a hurry the next morning when newspapers told of the elopement and printed pictures of the missing girl and her companion.

Small Town Nearly Consumed.

Suffolk, Va., Jan. 3.—With half of its 220 inhabitants homeless, the Majestic theater, postoffice and all but one of its twenty-six business places in ruins, the hamlet of Holland, twelve miles from Suffolk, on the Southern railway, has been practically erased from the map by a fire which began at 10 o'clock Saturday night and raged until there was no fuel to feed it. The loss is $100,000.

DEFENDING WIFE, HE IS KILLED

Detroit Citizen Was Slain by Italian "Street Masher."

ON STREET NEAR HIS HOME

Men Had Offered Many Insults to Wife and Sister-in-law—Husband Was Giving One of Them Beating When "Masher" Pulled Pistol and Shot Him—Both Get Away.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 3.—Attempting to defend his wife and sister-in-law, who had been the protesting victims of two Italian "street mashers," William Keller, 513 West Fort street, about 7:10 o'clock last night, was shot and killed within a stone's throw of his own home. The shooting was done by one of the men who had offered insult upon insult to Mrs. Keller. He took recourse to the revolver while Mr. Keller was in the act of administering to him a beating. Both Italians escaped.

Mr. Keller was shot through the right lung by a 38 caliber bullet. He expired almost immediately. The crime was committed about fifty feet west of Tenth street, on the south side of Fort street.

The police are using every means in their power to effect the capture of the two men. Various suspects have been brought in and questioned, and one is held.

Captain McDonnell of the police department has given out this description of the two men wanted for the murder:

No. 1. Five feet two or three inches tall, twenty or twenty-one years old, wore collar and tie, long brown overcoat, brown stiff hat, beardless face, rough and pimpled.

No. 2. Five feet four or five inches tall, bushy curly hair, rather good looking, wore long light overcoat and checkered cap, cut open in the back to fit his head.

TOOK OUT INSURANCE.

Then Member of New York Firm Committed Suicide.

New York, Jan. 3.—Moses S. Nathanson, a partner in the firm of Gold & Co., clothing jobbers at 58 Walker street, took out a $10,000 policy in the New York Insurance company two weeks ago. His wife and the police have just found his body in the loft used by the firm on the second floor of the Walker street building.

Nathan had killed himself with the utmost deliberation, wrenching the tip off a long iron gas pipe, sitting in a low chair, tieing himself to a flimsy scantling which supported a table covered with piles of clothing, and waiting until death came.

It seemed that his last idea was to make it be thought that he had been bound to the table and murdered, since he had taken the pains to tie the rope around his body; but the coroner and the detectives did not entertain that idea after they had talked to Nathanson's partner, Isaac Gold. Gold told them that the man was in deep water financially and greatly worried. It was Gold who told them about the life insurance policy.

TAFT WILL HEAR RAILROAD HEADS

Conference at White House Precedes Special Message.

PREPARES FINE DOCUMENT

Deals With Interstate Commerce Law, Sherman Anti-Trust Act and Co-Related Subject of Control of Corporations—He Would Invest More Power in Commerce Commission.

Washington, Jan. 3.—President Taft has completed his special message dealing with the interstate commerce law, the Sherman anti-trust act and the co-related subject of the control of corporations. The message will be sent to congress probably on Wednesday. It is of medium length, and, according to friends of the president who have read it, it is one of the clearest documents which he has prepared. Mr. Taft, his advisers say, hopes that this message will rank high among his contributions to the state papers.

With the idea of having a full and free discussion of the amendments to the interstate commerce law to be advocated by the president in his special message, the heads of six great railway systems will have a conference with Mr. Taft at the White House today.

The explanation was made that as the president had granted a hearing to the members of the interstate commerce laws it was regarded as proper and courteous to grant a request made by six railroad heads to present their side of the case. Some big railroad men have discussed the subject of the proposed changes with the president lately, but nothing has come to light to indicate that Mr. Taft has changed his views as to what should be done in an amendatory way.

Review Freight Classification.

Among other things, it is proposed by the president to empower the interstate commerce commission to review freight classifications, to postpone the date fixed for a classification to go into effect and to suspend, modify or annul changes in rules or regulations which impose burdens on shippers.

The administration bill will propose also that the interstate commerce commission may make investigations into the methods of railroads of its own volition. It will seek, in addition, to compel competing common carriers to unite in fixing a through rate. Another provision seeks to protect railroads from the penalties of making agreements to restrain trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. Still another provision of the administration bill would give to the commission the right to grant permission to shippers to designate the route over which their shipments will be carried.

One of the most important sections of the administration measure provides that no railroad company shall acquire stock in any competing railroad company. The measure is to provide also that no interstate railroad company shall issue any additional stock or bonds or other obligations except for not more than twelve months unless it has the approval of the interstate commerce commission.

CARRIES ASSURANCE TO REBEL LEADER

Reported United States Will Support Estrada.

New Orleans, Jan. 3.—It has developed that Richard Sussman, consul general at New Orleans of the Estrada government in Nicaragua, left several days ago for Bluefields to consult with General Estrada. Mr. Sussman carried with him letters from a number of persons in high authority in Washington who gave assurance that the Estrada government will be recognized by the United States if the revolutionary army marched on the capital and captured it. Only one condition is attached: That the Estrada government as soon as it is in control give the Nicaraguan people a fair election at which they may choose a successor to Zelaya as president. Consul Sussman has therefore advised Estrada for himself and on behalf of the American sympathizers to press on to Managua at once. Sussman went to Bluefields in disguise and carried with him a large quantity of ammunition and supplies. Mr. Sussman has refused to say from whom he received assurance of recognition by the United States.

KAISER CONSENTS.

Love Triumphs in Engagement of Prince Frederick and Arch-Duchess Agatha.

Berlin, Jan. 3.—Love has triumphed. The kaiser has just granted his long withheld consent to the marriage of Prince Frederich William of Hohenzollern and Arch-Duchess Agatha of Ratibor. They had long been betrothed privately, but the kaiser, who is a rigid upholder of the Hohenzollern family traditions, could not bring himself to sanction the alliance of a member of his ancient house with the daughter of a mushroom duke. Moreover, the Ratibors are Catholics. The Ratibors are celebrating the bethrothal with great festivities.

Prince Friedrich is a brother of Prince Joachim, who was disgraced for attempting to marry Marie Sulzer, an actress. He is about thirty years old, while the bride-elect is about twenty-two.

HIS DUCKSHIP EXPLODED.

Biped in Des Moines Ate Yeast, With Fatal Results.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 3.—The strangest accident recorded in local history occurred here when Rhadammenthus, a duck which had taken prizes at the receint Iowa poultry show, exploded into several hundred pieces, one of which struck Silas Perkins in the eye, destroying the sight. The cause of the explosion was the eating of yeast which was placed in a pan upon the back porch. The dish tempted his duckship, who was taking a morning stroll.

Leading Citizen Dies.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 3.—George S. Bennett, one of the leading men of this city and one of the wealthiest, is dead, after an operation. He was a descendant of one of the earliest settlers in this part of the state, the famous Frances Slocum, stolen by the Indians, being a relative.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Wild Blizzard Raging

brings danger, suffering, often death, to thousands, who take cold, coughs and lagrippe—that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed up," nostrils, lower part of nose sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-gripping cough. A Fish Story

Two Questions the Judge Was Called Upon to Decide.

By Martha McCulloch-Williams.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

The willow tree leaned so far out over the water that all that happened in it was mirrored in the face of the stream. There was an eddy at the tree foot, with a deepish pool underneath. Trout lurked in the pool, so big and wary they were the despair of all neighborhood fishermen.

The Ennis boy, of course, had told Wilmer all about them. Wilmer, indeed, had found the lad much like a local chronicle. In the week since he had established himself at the Ennis farmhouse he had been possessed of at least half the ins and outs of Brush creek neighborhood.

Ostensibly Wilmer was a vagrant vacationer; really he was looking out for remnant tracts of hardwood timber. A new railway was mooted, not yet even in the air, but in the minds of certain men. Before building it they wanted to make certain of sure and quick returns. Walnut, white oak, cherry and ash in sufficient amount would furnish such returns.

Wilmer had been told to spend a fortnight looking for timber. Now, at the middle of the fortnight, he knew he need look no more, so he was giving his whole mind to the enjoyment of fishing; hence today's excursion begun at sunrise. So far the excursion had been fruitless. The Ennis boy was distressed. He had rather bragged of the sport they were to have. Besides, Wilmer had promised him a silver dollar if they managed to catch even one big trout.

Wilmer had his reasons aside from natural liberality. He was on the edge of falling in love with a girl, dragon guarded. The dragon was a crusty uncle whose sole enthusiasm was for fish and fishing. If Wilmer could send off in the night's mail a snapshot of even a two pounder, along with a chatty account of the place where such fish might be caught, he knew he would come near to establishing himself in the dragon's good graces. He would also do well for his immediate principals, since the dragon was among the chiefest of those depended on to finance the new line.

So he came to the willow tree with something beyond sportsman eagerness. Approach to it was not directly along the water side, but across a tiny promontory of gravelly turf. He knelt among the taut upstanding roots stretching back of it, made ready his hook, baiting it with the choicest minnow in the bucket; then, advancing covertly, still in shelter of the trunk, flung it midstream, a little way up current, so the eddy might suck it right over to the depths. Then, watching the ripples spread and turn the water mirror's picturings to grotesque caricature, he became aware that the hole was pre-empted—there was a homemade line of black flax thread, with a cork, likewise homemade, dangling from the tree, the cork bobbing and dipping in exactly the middle of the pool.

He dared not speak. The Ennis lad had warned him a word was death to his chances. The boy also had seen the intruding line. In swift pantomime, by throwing himself prone and lying at ease, he counseled Wilmer to stay. It was good counsel, Wilmer decided. He stood fast, keeping well away from the bank and so maneuvering his rod as to keep his bait properly in motion.

The eddy was big and slow, so slow it made one sleepy to watch it. The mounting May sun was warm and vital, the drone of bees in the basswood tops or over the sparse white clover blooms a lulling chant. There had been a ruffling breeze, but it had died to utter stillness. Wilmer watched his float and the homemade one until he grew drowsy. And then something happened that made him wildly awake.

The bugling cork went under with a rush. The next second there leaped to view, half his silver length above water, a monster trout, the most beautiful Wilmer had ever seen. He was fast, having bolted the hook, but that clumsy line would never hold him. Moreover, it appeared to be but lightly tied to a swaying willow branch. No doubt some rustic had left it there. There could be nobody in the tree.

However the water mirror had been shattered, it had had still moments during which Wilmer had studied it close, yet seen nothing but the gold green leafage, the netted intricacies of slender boughs, the rough and weather beaten blackness of the trunk.

What wonder that he scrambled up the slope of it, made to fling himself along it and reach for the line! That fish must be landed; it was a prize beyond hope. His fingers were almost upon the cord when he snatched them back as if from fire. Another hand had reached for the line—one small and sunburned, with strawberry stained fingers that yet were beautifully tapered. It was a girl's hand—a very pretty girl's. He saw that at a glance as he said rather breathlessly:

"Don't lose him! Give him line—as little as you can! Heavens, how he fights! You—you had better come down—or let me land him for you."

"You better look at your own hook!" the Ennis boy shouted.

Wilmer half fell from the tree. His own float was dipping, dancing, disappearing, coming up again, in the most maddening fashion. But no silver fish broke, lancelike, through the shimmering waters. Instead, tug as he might, there was a sense of something heavy, yet alive, at the other end of the line. His own battle absorbed him, yet not to the degree of making him forget the other. The girl from her perch was at an obvious disadvantage. Still she knew the game. Back and forth, up and down, weaving sidewise, she let the big fish play. Wilmer watched her almost enviously. He must himself have hooked the grandfather of all trout, but it was nothing like so game.

"Hi, thar, you, up tree! You better come down!" the Ennis boy shouted, but the fisherwoman remained invisible. "That's nobody but just that little Joe Lane. You know, I've told you she wasn't more'n half a gal," he confided in low aside to Wilmer, who nodded comprehension.

He had been hearing things about Joe, a wild piece, motherless, brought up by a mad old grandfather, to the scandal of all the overgood, for she had never been sent to school and had done exactly as she pleased all through her nineteen years of life. More than that, she had a way—a way that fetched all the fellows in the countryside, only to be sent about their business again, even Steve Batson, who had a store and three farms.

The big trout moved sluggishly. It was simply marvelous how that flax line had held him. Wilmer was wild to ask what bait had lured him even though his own quarry filled his hands. He was reeling in deftly, but slowly, making gains now of a foot, now of an inch. He had not yet got sight of his prize. Suddenly, in spite of reeling in, the line slackened. He saw at the water's surface the snaky head and neck of a big snapping turtle. An instant the creature held fast, permitting itself to be drawn toward the bank; then it severed the line and sank back to its fastness of roots and rocks.

There came a tinkling laugh from the willow tree, followed by a merry voice crying: "Please go away, you two! I want to come down before your big fish comes and eats up mine."

"Let us help you; you'll never land him alone," Wilmer called back.

"Oh, I can't—not until you go," the voice returned.

At just that moment the trout gave a wild, running leap, showing clear in the air, then sounding viciously.

The fisherwoman held fast, but in stopping his rush lost her balance and went splash into the pool. As she fell Wilmer understood—her feet were absolutely bare. He plunged in. The pool was well over his head, but it was nothing to bring the girl safe to the bank. She still held the line. The Ennis boy snatched it from her and plunged in himself, winding line as he trod water across half a dozen yards; then, with a quick dive, reached the tired trout, held him fast and scrambled in triumph to the bank.

"Confess that you envy him," the girl said, nodding toward the Ennis boy. She stood dripping, but happy, making no effort even to wring the water from her skirts. "I can't understand why you chose to pull me out instead of the fish," she went on. "I fear you are no true brother of the angle."

"Well, you see, it was your fish, and I wanted it badly," Wilmer pleaded in excuse.

The girl shook her head. "That's a question," she said. "True, I hooked the trout, with, oh, such a big worm for bait, but I didn't land him. Grandad will have to decide the point of ownership. He used to be a judge, you know, and is, I'm sure, much wiser than Solomon."

"Take me to him at once," Wilmer commanded. The girl nodded and darted along a footpath, beckoning the others to follow. Soon they came upon a red brick house with wide, hospitable piazzas and open doors.

Judge Lane sat at ease there, smoking and dipping into a big shabby volume of Izaak Walton. He did not seem shocked at Joe's plight.

"You, miss, have no sort of claim to the fish. You lost it disgracefully through Eve's sin of curiosity," he said. "As for those others, I think they can settle it between them. But, hark you, Jacky Ennis, you've made a great catch—one that ought to be worth at least $2."

Wilmer paid more, but the trout was not sent away. Instead it was cooked for dinner in the Lane kitchen. And some six months later Wilmer came asking the judge for Josephine. The old man listened in silence and at the end said with twinkling eyes:

"Humph! It seems that fish case is mighty hard to settle. What if you did pull Joe out of the water—d'ye happen to know she can swim like a mermaid?"

"What has that to do with it?" Wilmer demanded. "You admit I did pull her out. It was on that ground you gave Jacky the fish. Surely you don't mean to reverse yourself?"

"No, for if I did I might be re-reversed," the judge said, laughing softly. "Besides, I'm a stickler for precedent, and Josephine always has had her own way."

Forget your prejudice for just one baking

Lay aside your favorite baking powder for just once. Forget for a day that it is "the kind mother used." Dispense with the idea that there is "nothing else just as good." It may have served you admirably for years. But just remember, other things have improved since grandmother's time. So why not baking powder?

Get from your grocer today a can of Calumet Baking Powder. Bake a batch of biscuits, a cake or your favorite pastry. If the baking does not come out just as good, or better, than usual. If it is not as light, sweet and delicious. If it does not prove up to your high standard in every respect, providing of course you have in every other way exercised your usual methods, take the can of Calumet back to the grocer and get your money. This is our first step in making friends for Calumet. The continued good results, the purity, the economy in both cost and use will hold them.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

HIS CONUNDRUM.

Propounded In Prose, It Was Answered In Rhyme.

In the olden time before the war, the days so famous for generous hospitality in the south, a brilliant party was assembled at dinner in a beautiful country homestead. Across the table wit flashed back and forth, and the guests began to vie with one another in proposing conundrums.

Mr. Alexander H. Stephens offered one which puzzled the whole company, "What is it that we eat at breakfast and drink at dinner?"

For some time no answer came, and the bright eyes of the southern orator began to sparkle with triumph, when Colonel Johnson, taking up the "Commonplace Book" of the hostess, which lay conveniently by, wrote impromptu upon the flyleaf the following answer:

What is eaten for breakfast and drunken for dinner?
Is it coffee or eggs or butter or meats?
Sure double the stomach of obdurate sinner
Who eats what he drinks and drinks what he eats.

But let us consider. 'Tis surely not butter
Nor coffee nor meats, whether broiled or roast;
Nor boiled eggs nor poached nor fried in a batter.
It must, then, be bread. Ah, yes—when 'tis toast!

—Atlanta Constitution.

Blackburn's Eloquence.

The story is told of Senator Proctor of Vermont in reminiscences by Vice President Stevenson that when invited to go out of the senate chamber just before the day's session began he replied: "Excuse me. I am paired with Blackburn on prayers." When the Rev. Dr. Butler retired from the chaplaincy of the senate Blackburn's speech surpassed all others for ardor and felicity of expression. "The counterpart of the scene that followed his closing words had never been witnessed in legislative assembly. All were in tears. It was even said that venerable senators who had never shed a tear since the ratification of the treaty of Ghent actually sobbed aloud and refused to be comforted. At length, amid silence that could be felt, an adjournment was effected, and the senators passed out to their homes. As he passed the chair Senator Vest in an undertone remarked to the vice president, 'Joe never saw him.'"—Washington Herald.

"Window Leaves."

In South Africa Dr. R. Marloth discovered six species of plants possessing what are styled "window leaves." They are all stemless succulents, and the egg shaped leaves are imbedded in the ground, only the apexes remaining visible. This visible part of the leaves is flat or convex on the surface and colorless, so that the light can penetrate it and reach the interior of the leaf below, which is green on the inside. With the exception of the blunt apex, no part of the leaf is permeable to the light, being surrounded by the soil in which it is buried. The first of these plants discovered is a species of bulbine.—London Graphic.

The Manly Man.

"After you've been two weeks in the house with one of these terrible bandy men that ask their wives to be sure to wipe between the tines of the forks and that know just how much raising bread ought to have and how to hang out a wash so each piece will get the best sun it's a real joy to get back to the ordinary kind of man. Yes, 'tis so!" Mrs. Gregg finished with much emphasis. "I want a man who should have sense about the things he's meant to have sense about, but when it comes to keeping house I like him real helpless, the way the Lord planned to have him!"—Youth's Companion.

A Costly Funeral.

The most costly state funeral which has ever taken place was perhaps that of Alexander the Great. A round million was spent in laying Alexander to his rest. The body was placed in a coffin of gold filled with costly aromatics, and a diadem was placed on the head. The funeral car was embellished with ornaments of pure gold, and its weight was so great that it took eighty-four mules more than a year to convey it from Babylon to Syria.

SELL "JUICE" TO FARMERS.

Big Power Combine Plans to "Electrify" Entire State.

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 3.—"The electrification of Michigan" is by no means the industrial dream that the phrase may suggest upon first thought. The merger of electrical, gas and electric traction lines by the Hodenpyl-Walbridge, Clarge and Foote interests, announced last week, is the first big step toward the actual electrification of Michigan, and the now somewhat shadowy plans for the future of five or six years hence are almost amazing, and yet perfectly practicable.

They include nothing less than making hydro-electric power in such vast quantities that it can be sold so cheaply that the average farmer will use electricity for light and power, and the plans of the merger, while by no means definitely outlined, include the supplying of electrical current to thousands of farmers.

The statement made last week shows that the properties are to be rearranged that the electrical companies are separated from the gas properties, and that the hydro-electric properties are most prominent in the deal.

Salt Inspector Emery Says Railroads Are Not Treating Michigan Right.

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 3.—In his annual report to Governor Warner, just made public, State Salt Inspector Temple Emery charges that the railroads are discriminating against Michigan salt and that rates have been raised to practically all points, becoming in some cases prohibitive where formerly there was a ready market.

He declares that the rates of Buffalo, the Missouri river, Louisville and other distributing centers have advanced for Michigan salt, but not for salt from other parts of the country.

The salt manufacturers increased their output last year over 1908 by 182,500 barrels, manufacturing practically 6,300,000 barrels. Because of storage the amount inspected decreased, however, by 192,000 barrels.

Boy Escapes Death by Merest Fraction of An Inch.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 3.—Clarence Herlein, the eight-year-old son of a farmer living in Blumfield, near Reese, escaped death by the fraction of an inch at the hands of his younger brother.

The two boys were playing with a Flobert rifle, when it was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking Clarence in the face. It entered his nose, ranging upwards, and lodged; it is believed, in a thick portion of his skull. The boy was brought to St. Mary's hospital here and, by the aid of the X-ray, the surgeons will attempt to locate and remove the ball. Had its course varied by the smallest degree it would have penetrated his brain and caused instant death.

Pretty Mulatto Alleged Pickpocket.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 3.—Charged with picking pockets by the wholesale, Eva Thomas, twenty-four years old, a pretty mulatto, has been lodged in jail here to await further investigation. While the holiday shopping was at its height numerous complaints were lodged with the police by persons who had lost all the way from stickpins to pocketbooks containing a high as $100. Detectives Doyle and Gast, who made the arrest, say they can trace nearly all of the thefts to the prisoner. It is said she is also wanted by the Detroit police.

Tecumseh Grange Watch Meeting.

Say! gentle reader; I want to tell you that all the good people who were at Grange Hall last Friday had the time of their lives. It was one continual round of pleasure. Lillis Howard's recitation, the reading by the Worthy Master, the two choice selections by Tecumseh band, were all very enjoyable. But the feature of the evening was the "Old Maid's Tea Party."

The four maiden ladies who attended the party didn't need to drink tea to keep up their nerves. They had stacks of nerve and then some.

I hereby extend a cordial invitation to all of them to come often. Bring your knitting, girls, and stay all the afternoon.

The last I saw of Clem Bramble, 11:30 p. m., he was playing "Needle's Eye" and say! you don't need to hang any mistletoe over his head. He'll manage to worry along without it.

The doughnuts and sandwiches were good, the coffee was better. All the college girls and boys were there and when the little New Year peeped in at the window, the fun was so fast and furious that he jumped out of most all his clothes. See his picture!

Say! gentle reader: Save your life insurance money and join the Grange. It's much cheaper and it beats life insurance all to death. Barring accidents, grangers never die, anyway—not until their time comes. And to be a Granger, is to remain young. Members of Tecumseh Grange, remember that next Saturday is installation day.

Everybody come to dinner, and let's start the year right, and then keep right on coming to every meeting all through the glad new year, 1910.

SECRETARY.

D, T. & I. TO BE SOLD
IS THE NEWS FROM EAST.

Columbus, O., Jan. 3. — The Central Trust Co., of New York has asked the federal court to appoint receivers and sell the property of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad company, on the ground that the defendant company has defaulted in the payment of $90,000 interest on mortgages.

The Central Trust company holds mortgages for $4,500,000 on the old Ohio Southern railroad, which extends from Lima to Ironton and which is now the property of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton system. The Detroit Southern railroad, the Knickerbocker Trust company and the New York Trust company are named as co-defendants.

The defendant road is now operated by receivers apposnted on the application of the Knickerbocker Trust company of New York, when the road defaulted interest on a mortgage of $9,357,000.

Of Interest To Housekeepers.

Toledo inaugerated a new system in their grocery stores Monday, whereby they buy and sell by weight instead of measure and count. The principle articles to be thus sold are, oysters, nuts, beans, apples, potatoes and other vegetables whose bulk have lent themselves to imperfect measure.

Eggs will be sold by weight and at the present price per dozen, this may mean a gain to the purchaser, as a dozen eggs of marketable size should weigh 1 1-2, 2 lbs. oysters will equal a quart and a pound of beans at 7 cents will be equal to 10 cents a quart. To the housekeeper this may mean quite a difference in the expenses of the week.

"I'm wearing it for your first husband," replied Mike, firmly. "I'm sorry he's dead."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCann entertained the Merry-go-round last evening. The house was beautifully decorated in white and red. Master Wiley received the guests wishing each a Happy New Year. The winners of the prizes were, Mrs. Charles Williamson and Mrs. Joe Smith. Refreshments were served most daintily and a merry evening was enjoyed by all.

D. W. GRANDON'S CHRISTMAS EDITION.

Of The Hillsdale Standard Herale.

The Xmas edition of the Hillsdale Daily Standard Herald contained 36 pages and was the largest edition ever published in Hillsdale county. The paper is owned and published by D. N. Grandon who was editor of the Adrian Telegram for 20 years and is well know here.

We notice in the write ups there are several Tecumseh men interested in the business concerns in that city. In the First States Savings Bank which is capitalized at $50,000 that among the directors is the name of Edward Frensdorf who has business interests here, also Judge Stone who is a brother-in-law of Ben. Ellis.

In the write up of the Truck and Wagon Factory which is capitalized at $50,000 and employes about 20 men. Among the directors are P. W. A. Fitzsimmons and J. Q. Look of Tecumseh.

Hillsdale owns one of the best equipped municiple electric light and motor pumping plants. In 1894 the city purchased the electric light plant and now own and operate both the lighting plant and the city waterworks.

Mr. Grandon is to be congratulated on his fine edition.

An Interesting Time At G A R Hall.

First a fine oyster supper was furnished and served by the officers elect to which a happy appreciative audience did justice, following this was a short business session of Post and Auxillary. Then came the installation of the officers, first of the Post then of the Auxillary by past commander Shull this was followed by short speeches, the President the Commander and other. All seemed interested and to enjoy themselves taking no thought of the cold wind that was blowing outside. Both of these organizations are in a flourishing condition every way. H. C. Daniels Adjt.

Down On The Farm

The play given Saturday evening for the benefit of the Band boys, proved a success in every particular. There was a fine attendance and everyone seemed to enjoy the entertainment. After the play was over the boys gave a banquet to the corps of actors. Covers were laid for 42, and a good time was enjoyed by all

Of Interest to Horsemen.

We see by one of our exchanges that Kalamazoo is to have an Annual Sale of race horses. The first one to take place at Recreation Park in April. Buyers are expected from all parts of the United States and Europe and the prospects are fair for a very interesting meeting.

Married Men's Troubles

It was married men's night at the revival meeting.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles in your minds stand up!" shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasm.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the preacher, peering out at this lone sitter, who occupied a chair near the door and apart from the others: "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. "I can't get up: I'm paralyzed!"

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Wou'd they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York. Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

Rev. I. W. Williams Testifies

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., writes us as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it. Sold by all druggists.

BODIES FALL INTO MINE.

Old Diggings Near Wilkesbarre, Pa., Cave In Under Cemetery.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. —Scores of bodies in the Slavok Catholic cemetery, at Plains, have fallen in mine workings beneath the cemetery. A large area of the surface over old workings of the Pine Ridge colliery of the Delaware and Hudson Coal company has subsided, following a cave-in in the mine. In some places the surface of the cemetery sank as much as fifteen feet, headstones falling down, or were heeled over, large fissures appeared in all directions adjoining where there have been a number of subsidences and where it is feared the subsidence will soon be as great as in the Slovak cemetery.

Much damage was also done outside the cemetery.

HOW LONG IS A DAY?

Some of the World's Inhabitants Eat 315 Meals During One.

If we should meet a man and he should casually remark that he ate 315 meals yesterday we would doubtless be somewhat astonished at his appetite. Likewise we would feel sorry for the man who said that, having foolishly eaten three eggs with bacon for breakfast, he had no appetite for his Christmas dinner. But maybe the first man was from Spitzbergen, where they have a day three and a half months in length, whereas the poor chap who missed the Christmas feast lived in Finland, at Torena, where Christmas day is something less than three hours long.

On the whole, it would be rather wise if one should undertake to do certain work, to receive so much per day in payment, to understand just where the work is to be done, else one might have to labor eighteen and a half hours at Stockholm, if it happened to be the longest day of the year, or all the time from May 21 to July 22 if at Wardbury, in Norway. In St. Petersburg the longest day is nineteen hours and the shortest five hours. At Torena, Finland, there is a twenty-two hour day. At London and Bremen the longest day is sixteen and a half hours, while at Hamburg and Dantzig there are seventeen hours in the longest day. In Washington the longest day is about fifteen hours.—Exchange.

If there were no loafers in this old world, the police courts wouldn't have much to do.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but its not all baking powder: the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

CHARLES MORSE GOES TO PRISON

Begins Fifteen Years' Term In Atlanta Federal Institution.

BITTERLY RESENTS TREATMENT

His Sentence "the Most Brutal Ever Pronounced Against Citizen In Civilized Country"—Considers His Confinement Injury to Administration of Justice.

New York, Jan. 3.—Charles W. Morse started for Atlanta Sunday morning to begin his term of fifteen years in the federal prison. Mrs. Morse said good-bye to her husband at the Tombs before Marshal Henkel took him away. His two sons, Harry and Ben Morse, followed to the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City, where Marshal Henkel allowed them to enter the Pullman compartment on the Birmingham special and wish their father a safe journey. Morse kept a tight hold on his nerves until that minute. Then something snapped, and he came nearer to breaking down than at any time since his trial began.

Morse gave out a statement to the reporters before he left the Tombs in which he characterized his sentence as "the most brutal ever pronounced against a citizen in a civilized country." He spoke bitterly of "rum drinking" jurors who were left in the custody of "the private detectives of the prosecution." He declared that he saw in his conviction a "dangerous example of a government gone mad in search of a victim." These things Morse asserted over his own signature.

"I am going to Atlanta to begin penal servitude under the most brutal sentence ever pronounced against a citizen in a civilized country. I have hoped with that hope which comes from a consciousness of my innocence that I would not have to close out forever the light and liberty of this world under such an inhuman sentence.

"I had felt that the fact that I paid a fine of $7,000,000 and served a year in prison would satisfy the cry for a victim, and I have steadily believed that the courts would be compelled to give me a new trial when I learned that the private detectives of the prosecution were the keepers of the jury and that the jury drank like men upon a holiday or a jaunt, rather than citizens engaged in a serious service, and that as a result two of them were rendered unfit.

"I naturally hoped that I would be allowed another trial by another jury free from these hostile influences. It seems, however, that the courts intend to establish the practices which make rum drinking a part of jury service and private detectives as the custodian of the jury a permanent institution.

"By this sentence and judgment I may be brought to ruin, but the damage done to me is not half as important as the injury to the administration of justice."

A Pot Walloper.

The parliamentary register for 1830 showed that there was then only one pot walloper in all England. One seeing the term for the first time might easily imagine that a pot walloper was a species of ichthyosaurus or some other reptile of a past age. It will be discovered upon inquiry, however, that the term "pot walloper" is literally one who boils a pot and was applied to voters in certain boroughs of England where before the passage of the reform bill of 1832 the qualifications for suffrage was to have boiled (walloped) his own pot in the parish for six months.—London Notes and Queries.

MAY PAY BACK GOVERNMENT

President of Sugar Refining Company Talks Frankly.

BOOKS HAVE BEEN PROBED

And Federal Officials Have Made Demands of National Concern For $700,000—Denies He or Any Employes, to His Knowledge, Ever Paid to Secure Underweights.

New York, Dec. . —James H. Post, president of the National Sugar Refining company, the $20,000,000 corporation in which the sugar trust holds stock, says that his concern may have to restore to the United States treasury, in satisfaction of duties evaded by fradulent weighing, an amount of money approximating what Arbuckle Bros. have just been forced to restore.

President Post talked frankly about the mess his corporation is in with the government. He said that the government's special counsel in custom cases involving underweighing of sugar, Henry L. Stimson and W. T. Denison, have been going over the National's books since last June, and that they have made a demand upon him and his fellow officials for upwards of $700,000. Mr. Post declined to state the exact sum claimed by the government from the National, because there is to be a conference between the officials of the National and the government's special counsel, at which the figures may be modified or a more amicable understanding reached. He said that, generally speaking, Mr. Stimson was demanding what John Arbuckle and the Arbuckle concern had been made to restore.

"Mr. Stimson appears to have made out that the government weighers and our checkers have been turning in false weights on the sugar the National has been importing for eight or ten years.

Made No Offers.

"The National Sugar Refining company has made no offers to the government. It is quite possible that we have been receiving favorable weights for a good many years, but this is certain: That I, as president of the corporation, and that Frederick D. Mollenhauer, as treasurer, or any of the other officials, so far as I know, have ever paid a cent to any man, government employe or otherwise, to secure underweights in our imports.

"The executive officials of the company have no cognizance of the fraud that Mr. Stimson says has been perpetrated with enormous benefit to our concern. What subordinates may have done is another matter. I do not know anything about that. As I say, it is possible that underweighing has been going on and that duties have been evaded. If, Mr. Stimson can produce the proof that the government has a just claim against us, the government will be paid what is due it."

The National Sugar Refining company, which has been regarded as a subsidiary of the trust, is the most important refining company in the east outside of the trust itself.

ARBUCKLES SETTLE.

Pay Government $695,573 For Shortage in Sugar Duties.

New York, Dec. 16.—Special Assistant Attorney General Stimson has announced that as a result of a federal investigation as to weights on which duties were paid on sugar landed here by the Arbuckle Bros., sugar refiners, it was ascertained that there had been a shortage in duty payments by that firm amounting to $695,573.

Stimson stated that this sum had been repaid in cash to the United States treasury by the Arbuckle Bros.

Stimson said that the investigation into the Arbuckle Bros.' importations was begun last June and that the firm voluntarily turned over all its books.

MAE IN TOMBS.

Company Who Went Her Bond Takes No More Risk on Miss Wood.

New York, Dec. 16.—Mae C. Wood, who is under indictment on charges of forgery and perjury in connection with her suit for divorce against Senator Thomas C. Platt, appeared in person in court Wednesday for trial. She came on from Julesburg, Colo. She came into court with her attorneys.

As Miss Wood walked toward Judge Foster when her case was called a special officer of the surety company that has been on her bond came into court. This officer, whose name is Kelly, walked up to Miss Wood and grabbed her by the arm.

"You are under arrest," he said, "and will have to come over to the Tombs."

Kelly started from the courtroom with his prisoner, but was brought back, and after argument it was agreed to reduce the bail from $5,000 to $1,000, and Miss Wood was taken to the Tombs, as she was unable to furnish it.

Miss Wood's home was formerly in Colon, Mich.

Made It Quite Clear.

The engineers of a party in the field were continually annoyed by the curiosity of the farmer folk in the country round. Each and every day their progress was blocked by some inquiring soul who would have liked to spend the forenoon acquiring answers to questions of why and whither and how far and what for, relates the New York Sun. At last a serious faced young man took an interested bucolic graybeard one side and explained matters.

"Now," said he, "I'm telling this to you, and I don't want it to go any further. We have discovered that the earth is a parabolic hexoid, and the ordinates and co-ordinates do not quite tally by a foot or perhaps by fourteen inches. The place where the gap comes has been located in that field just ahead of us. We don't want it mentioned, but we are getting ready to blow up the spot and make an incision before beginning the operation of joining the two."

The engineers finished their labors in peace and solitude.

The Shilling Bequest.

The wealthy auctioneer who reduced the inheritance of a daughter to an annuity of £104 because she had become a Socialist reminds one of the old fashioned "cutting off with a shilling." Why a shilling rather than nothing? Blackstone explains. The Romans used to set aside wills as deficient in natural duty if they disinherited or totally passed by any child of the testator. But the smallest legacy was accepted as evidence that the testator had not lost his reason or his memory, as the law otherwise assumed he had; hence the groundless belief in England that a father could not disinherit his child without a shilling, although the English law knows no presumption of insanity or forgetfulness in such a case. Of Sheridan and his son Tom (and of other fathers and sons) the story is told: "Father—I'll cut you off with a shilling. Son—I'd rather have it now, dad."—St. James' Gazette.

Cures Dyspepsia; Trial Is Free

It is a popular mistake that only wealthy people who eat rich and highly-spiced foods suffer from dyspepsia, or, as it is also known, indigestion. The laborer in the street, the worker in the field also finds himself a victim of this disorder. Among the very greatest sufferers from it are women.

Dyspepsia is indicated by a constant feeling of laziness, by loss of appetite and troubled sleep, by sour stomach and distress after eating, by bad complexion and lusterless eyes.

There is no surer and speedier cure for this trouble than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which dyspeptics have been using successfully for twenty years. This great herb laxative compound cured Capt. Clark, of Buffalo, Ia., of dyspepsia and sour stomach that he had had for forty years, or until the lucky day that he heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It cured Joel Adams, of Montgomery, Ala., after suffering continuously for sixteen months. These are only a few of the many. But it is not expensive to be cured with this grand remedy, as it can be bought at any drug store in a 50-cent or $1 bottle.

Your very neighbors are probably lifelong users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but if you want to know without expense what it will do for you personally, send your name to Dr. Caldwell and he will be glad to send you a free trial bottle. He is actually anxious to have you make a test of his remedy.

Thousands of families everywhere keep it in the house against such an emergency as constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, heartburn, torpid liver, etc., which may come on a member of the family any day. It is pleasant to the taste, acts gently and does not gripe. It is the great children's laxative tonic.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

IS ASSASSINATED.

Principal Witness Against "Night Riders" Meets Death.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 3.—James Middleton, a wealthy farmer and stock raiser, was assassinated Saturday night at Toxley, Ala., and the home of D. I. Comstock fired into by unknown parties. Middleton was to be the principal witness in the "Night Rider" case against Roy Stapleton, Dick Pigeet and others to be tried in the United States court here on Jan. 10, and Comstock was their victim.

The sheriff of Baldwin county and a posse of deputies are at work on the case, but no arrests have been made.

Middleton was shot on a lonely road while in a buggy in company with W. H. Wade. The home of Comstock was fired into after Middleton was shot.

Match Burns and Johnson Again.

New York, Jan. 3.—Hugh D. McIntosh, the fight promoter, has cabled from Sydney, N. S. W., that he will hang up a purse of $40,000 for another battle between Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns to be decided in Australia next September, winner to take all. McIntosh, who is Burns' manager, had evidently consulted with Burns, who is still at Sidney telling folks that he would surely have beaten Johnson a year ago if the police had not interfered in the fourteenth round. McIntosh makes this $40,000 proposition without taking into consideration the probable outcome of the Jeffries-Johnson mill.

BASHFUL STANLEY.

His Response to a Speech of Eulogy at a Banquet.

William H. Rideing tells in McClure's Magazine of a dinner of the Papyrus club in Boston at which Henry M. Stanley, the explorer, was the guest of honor.

"Whether he (Stanley) sat or stood, he fidgeted and answered in monosyllables—not because he was unamiable or unappreciative, but because he—this man of iron, God's instrument, whose word in the field brooked no contradiction or evasion, he who defied obstacles and danger and pierced the heart of darkness—was bashful even in the company of fellow craftsmen.

"His embarrassment grew when after dinner the chairman eulogized him to the audience. He squirmed and averted his face as cheer after cheer confirmed the speaker's rhetorical ebullience of praise. 'Gentlemen, I introduce to you Mr. Stanley, who,' etc. The hero stood up slowly, painfully, reluctantly, and, with a gesture of deprecation, fumbled in first one and then another of his pockets without finding what he sought.

"It was supposed that he was looking for his notes, and more applause took the edge off the delay. His mouth twitched without speech for another awkward minute before, with a more erect bearing, he produced the object of his search and put it on his head. It was not paper, but a rag of a cap, and with that on he faced the company as one who by the act had done all that could be expected of him and made further acknowledgment of the honors he had received superfluous. It was a cap that Livingstone had worn and that Livingstone had given him."

Two Hundred Per Cent Loss.

He was no college bred business man. He was just the other kind. In the course of his commercial ventures he was induced by an acquaintance to become a partner in the grain and feed line. After about a year of it the firm went to pieces, leaving him with the bag to hold. A college friend met him shortly after the collapse and was asking about it.

"What per cent of the loss fell on you?" inquired the friend, who didn't know the particulars.

"Two hundred," he responded promptly.

"Two hundred?" exclaimed the friend. "Why, man, there can't be more than a hundred per cent loss."

"Come off," he countered. "There was two of us. He lost a hundred and I lost a hundred. Don't that make 200?"

"Of course not. Your loss is only 100 per cent."

"Yes, but say," he explained, "I had to settle for it all."

"Oh," said the friend.—New York Press.

ISLAND COMES AND GOES.

Rises in August and Disappears Regularly in February.

One of Michigan's unsolved mysteries is the island that every summer comes to the surface of Lake Orion and every winter goes back again to the depths from whence it arose.

Its periods of appearance and disappearance are nearly regular. It comes to the surface about the middle of August and goes down again about Feb. 15. What causes it to act thus strangely is a conundrum that none has been able to solve, but to keep it above water or compel it to remain in the depths have been alike without results.

On one occasion a number of farmers and teamsters resolved to put the island out of moving business. In their efforts to do so they hauled many loads of stone and deposited them on it during the early part of winter, believing that when it went down in February it would go down for good, weighted as it was with the stones. But the following August saw it bob up serenely from below—minus its load of stones.

At another time an effort was made to keep it on the surface, and it was chained to the surrounding country with heavy log chains. When its time for departure came it departed, and the log chains departed with it. The log chains were never recovered.

The island is composed of soft mud and rushes, and there are some skeptical souls who attribute its formation and appearance and disappearance to the gathering of vegetation in one spot by the currents of the lake and its subsequent decay.—Boston Herald.

Hammond Wants Speedy Trial.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 6.—Chauncey Hammond, accused of robbing the E. M. F. Automobile company, appeared in Judge Connolly's court Wednesday to be arraigned on the $17,000 grand larceny charge. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and asked for a speedy trial. It is expected that it will begin in about ten days.

Kills Self in Hotel.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 6.—Edward Stafford, aged forty-shot himself in the head in his room at a local hotel. When servants, who had heard the report, went to the room the man was dead on the floor. He left nothing to show a motive for the deed. Stafford had a brother in this city and came here a few days ago from Kalamazoo.

SENATE TAKES A HAND.

Also Wants to Know Why Living Expenses Are So High.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The senate has followed the example set by the house, Tuesday and is stirred to action in response to the high prices of food supplies which have been agitating the consuming public for several weeks. Two resolutions were introduced directing an investigation into the alleged increase in the prices of the necessaries of life, one by Senator Elkins (W. Va.) and the other by Senator Crawford (S. D.).

Senator Elkins' resolution authorized the appointment of a select committee to make an investigation and report to the senate. Senator Crawford's resolution directed the secretary of commerce and labor to make the inquiry and report to the senate.

INVESTIGATION SOON.

Measures Introduced into Congress Relative to Ballinger-Pinchot Case.

Washington, Jan. 6.—There will be a final meeting of the committee on rules of the house of representatives today to polish off the resolution introduced simultaneously in the house and senate Wednesday by Representative Humphrey and Senator Jones (Wash.) providing for an exhaustive investigation of the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy. The committee was in session practically all Wednesday afternoon, and, while there were no serious hitches, it was found necessary to make a number of changes in the language of the resolution.

Denies Andree's Balloon Found.

Bangor, Me., Jan. 6.—Just before he gave a lecture here, last night, Commander Peary took occasion to discredit the reports of the discovery of the remains of Andree's balloon 900 miles north of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, near Reindeer lake in the Arctic circle, which have been sent out by Catholic missionaries in that region. He is confident that the Andree expedition never reached the pole. Said Commander Peary, "In my opinion, Andree's party came to grief and their balloon dropped into the Polar ocean shortly after their start."

President Removes Alaska Official.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The president has, upon recommendation of Secretary Ballinger, removed John W. Dudley as register of the land office at Juneau, Alaska, and appointed Clyde D. Walker of Couer d'Alene, Ida., to succeed him. A statement was made at the interior department that Dudley was removed for "neglect of duty and for assisting applicants for land in a manner wholly incompatible with his duty as register." Dudley is a son of the late General W. W. Dudley of Indiana, who died here recently. He has been register at Juneau for about eight years.

TAFT REFUTES SUCH REPORTS

Is Not Using Patronage Club Over "Insurgents."

HE TELLS ROSEWATER SO

Nebraska Committeeman Calls on Chief Executive and Hears Some Straight Talk About Situation—Taft Declares He Is Simply Following Custom.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Victor Rosewater, national committeeman for Nebraska, has had an interview by appointment with the president with reference to political matters. Incidentally, the president said:

"I want you to help correct the reports that are being circulated to the effect that I am using the patronage club to whip so-called 'insurgents' in to line. There is a well founded custom that has become almost a rule that in making certain appointments, such as postoffices, the president should act on the recommendation of the members of congress in whose district they live, if represented by a member of the some political party.

"This obligation resting on the president, however, is reciprocal. The Republican congressman is under a similar obligation to support administration measures recommended by the president to carry out platform pledges on which both of us were elected.

"I have not turned down recommendations of 'insurgent' congressmen, but am simply preserving the status quo to impress them with their obligations."

This statement of the president's was provoked by the publication of reports that he contemplated withholding patronage from those Republicans who withheld their support from the regular organization of the house. The president makes it clear that the club may be used on "insurgents" who oppose administration policies, but nothing is said relative to the proposition that patronage may be denied "insurgents" who are not supporting the Cannon organization.

AS FAR AS DOOR.

President's Message Took the Journey and Was Then Called Back.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The president's special interstate commerce and anti-trust message was to have gone to congress Wednesday. Mr. Taft has made many changes of varying degrees of importance.

The message was at the executive office early, and at one time it got as far as the door, when it was brought back again and held in leash for the president's final word. It will probably go to congress today.

SAYS HE LOVED GIRL.

Canton, O., Jan. 6.—Jilted by the woman he loved, Joseph H. Sharer, aged twenty-five, traveling salesman of 56 West Franklin street, Hagerstown, Md., shot himself in the head in his room at the Courtland hotel here. He lies at the point of death at the Ingleside hospital.

"I did it because I love her. But she wouldn't have me. I love her. Wire Gladys and tell her about this."

On a bureau in the room stood the photograph of a handsome girl which he said was Gladys M. Shindle of Cedar Rapids, Mich.

BLAST FURNACE EXPLODES

Three Men Are Killed as Result, in Marquette.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 6.—As the result of an explosion of gas at the Chocolay furnace of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company, three men are dead and one is in a serious condition from partial asphyxiation. Those killed were:

Charles Dolzell, chief engineer, of Manistique.

John Trudeau, laborer, of Marquette.

George Nowak, laborer, of Marquette.

The injured man is John Dazey of this city. He will recover.

The furnace had been idle many years, but had been rebuilt and just put into blast. The accident was caused by the men passing through a gas-filled room with a lighted torch.

The damage is nominal.

BEATEN DAILY FOR MONTHS

Pretty Girl Victim of Cruel Woman.

TELLS STORY TO OFFICERS

Had Been So Cowed by Female, Whom Father Had Brought Into His Home to Live, That Humane Society Found It Difficult to Learn From Her Details of Ill-Treatment She Received.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 6.—For six months, Mabel Blay, a pretty twelve-year-old girl, has borne inhuman beating and cruelties, if the story is true that she tells to Attorney James F. Hill of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The child declares that a woman who she thought was her stepmother had her so thoroughly cowed that she feared to tell her troubles to any person.

Mabel has been transferred to the shelter home, following an investigation by the society officers.

The officers say they learned that the little girl has endured cruel treatment since last July, when her father brought a woman to the home at 362 West Fort street.

Evidences of the girl's treatment were only to plain. Neighbors declare that their questions were evaded with invented stories of falls and accidents. When, several days ago, an officer of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Children went to the house, Mabel refused to admit that she had been mistreated.

Tells Shocking Story.

On the second visit the officer convinced her that he would protect her, and she told a shocking story of the brutal abuse she declares was accorded her.

Never a day passed, she said, that she was not beaten. When these beatings disfigured her she was frightened by threats into lying to her father and friends. The officers found a chair leg, which the child asserted was used to punish her, even to the extent of hitting her across the face. The stick was lying in a neighboring yard, where the woman is said to have thrown it after the first visit of the officer.

George Blay, father of the girl, has visited Mr. Hill. He denied that he knew anything of the mistreatment accorded the girl, said he was not married to the woman who had been living at his home, and that she left him Monday night.

The girl will be retained in the care of the society until a home can be found for her.

REMOVE TONNAGE TAX.

Bill in Congress Would Favor Ships Built on Lakes.

Washington, Jan. 6.—If a bill which Representative Greene (Mass.), chairman of the committee on merchant marine and fisheries, introduced in the house Wednesday should become a law, the tonnage taxes on vessels entering the United States by way of the great lakes will be abolished. The measure has a good chance of passage, it is believed, because the proposed legislation was drawn up by the secretary of the department of commerce and labor, and it was at his request that Mr. Greene introduced the measure.

Mr. Greene's bill provides that vessels entering the United States otherwise than by sea from a foreign port at which tonnage or light house dues or other equivalent tax or taxes are not imposed on vessels of the United States shall be exempted from the tonnage duty of 20 cents a ton, not to exceed in the aggregate 10 cents a ton in any year.

"My measure is meant to apply only to the great lakes," said Mr. Green in discussing the bill.

McGurrin to Be Warden.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 6.—It is learned here from a confidential source that General W. T. McGurrin is practically certain to be elected warden of Jackson prison at the meeting of the prison board next Monday. Governor Warner some months ago presented the name of General McGurrin to the board, but could not secure the votes to confirm his appointment. The board has been in a deadlock since.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

At the End of The Summer

The Game of Golf That Richard and Marcia Played.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Marcia, in a red sweater, made a bright spot on the other side of the green.

Richard waved to her, and she waved back, dropping her bag of golf clubs and standing on tiptoe so that he might see her clearly above the bushes. When he came up to her he said:

"Such energy! It's only 7 o'clock."

"I hoped to be early enough so that I could go around the course alone." The words were severe, but her eyes twinkled.

"You know you'd rather go with me." Richard built up a tee of sand deftly and topped it with his round white ball.

"I've made my drive," Marcia said, "and my ball is lost over there somewhere in the bushes; so, if you please, I'll follow my nose and find it."

And away she went. And Richard, putting all his skill into his drive, sent his ball halfway to the first hole. Then he picked up his bag and marched in leisurely fashion after Marcia.

"Found it?" he questioned.

"No."

"That's a woman's trick—to lose a ball."

She whirled around on him. "Just as it is a man's trick to lose his heart!" she blazed.

He grew white. "I didn't think you'd say a thing like that," he said and turned and left her.

She went running after him. "Oh, Dick, Dick!" she cried. "I didn't mean it." He tramped on, unheeding, and at last she came up to him and laid her hand on his arm. "Really, I didn't mean it," she pleaded.

He stopped and looked down at her gravely. "I'll admit it wasn't very nice of me to make that remark about the ball," he said, "but there's a difference between making fun of a girl's game and making fun of a man's love."

"Yes, there is," she admitted. "And I'm sorry, Dick."

Of course he forgave her, as he had forgiven her all summer, ever since that first night when he had been presented to her in the ballroom of the big hotel and she had divided his waltz with some one else. But she had begged pardon so prettily that he had felt almost as if he were the offender.

"But this is the end," he said sternly. "Let's have it out right here, Marcia."

"Have what out?"

"All of it. We are going home tomorrow, and, try as I will, I can't get an opportunity to ask you to marry me."

"Oh!"

"You've held me off and parried and run away, but it's got to be settled here and now." And with that this very fierce young man sat down on a hillock and motioned her to another.

"Oh, my goodness!" said Marcia faintly, but she did as she was told.

"Of course I know I'm not worthy of you and all that. I haven't much money, but I've got health and strength and the will. I've got ambition, and I'm going to win out in the fight of life, and I'll make a place for you if you'll let me. And I'd do anything to save you from Doring."

Her head went up. "I like Mr. Doring," she emphasized. "He's very polite—and—and"—

"I'm not," said Richard bitterly. "Oh, you needn't rub it in! But you keep me so stirred up. I'm not half bad when I'm normal."

Her laugh had a tremble in it. "No, you're not half bad," she agreed.

He turned to her eagerly. "Marcia, you don't love—Doring?"

She arose quickly. "He is worth a million."

Richard stood up also. "As if that would make a bit of difference to you," he said. "You may have your faults, Marcia, but I don't believe you are mercenary."

She was fingering her cleek nervously. "But—but I am mercenary, Dickie, boy," she said very low.

He stared at her. "Marcia," he said sharply, "you wouldn't marry Doring for his money?"

She looked up at him suddenly. "Oh, I don't know—I don't know! I've always been poor, and I've never had pretty things, and I want them. I want to go into the ballroom all in chiffon and pearls instead of in my old white dresses and my little chain with the gold heart. Think of it, Dickie—I've never had any jewel but that, and I want jewels. Every girl wants them, and Mr. Doring could give them to me."

But Richard was not listening. He took out his watch. "Marcia," he said in a practical way, "have you had your breakfast?"

She looked up surprised. "Why this change of subject?" she faltered.

"Because you're tired and nervous, and I don't think you are capable of saying what you think," he said. "I am going to take you over to the inn. We'll breakfast on the bluff, and Cecile will make us an omelet and some perfect coffee, and we shall have a basket of white rolls. Will you go?"

"Why, of course," said Marcia uncertainly. "But it was such a funny thing for you to think of breakfast—right after you proposed to me."

"You've heard of bread and cheese and kisses," said Richard flippantly. "Well, this is a case of adoration and omelet. Come on, Marcia, mine."

"I'm not yours."

"You're going to be," said Richard, and he picked up their bags and started.

The inn was a little French place where delectable meals were served to those who tired of the regular hotel fare and where, it was whispered, certain gay souls sat somewhat late at night.

This morning Cecile, the trim landlady, met them at the door with radiant welcome. They should have the omelet and coffee—such coffee! And away she went, smiling, while they settled themselves at a table on the porch. Through the window they could see into the dining room, where there was one table not yet cleared of the half empty bottles, as well as other evidences of a midnight feast. Half sprawled across the table lay a man asleep.

Marcia, peeping through the window, said, "He evidently doesn't know it's morning."

Richard nodded. "Let's wake him up." And he began a silvery tattoo with his knife on the glasses.

The man yawned, stretched and raised a face red and sodden.

But before Richard could answer Doring stumbled out on the porch, gave one look at Marcia and fled.

Then Marcia looked at Richard. "You knew," she said, "that he was here?"

He laid his hand on hers. "I knew," he told her, "that he was no fit mate for you, Marcia. And I wanted you to see. What would his money amount to if you had to put up with that?" He pointed to the wine bottles in the other room.

She shuddered. "I—I didn't really intend to marry him—because I don't love him, Richard."

"And you didn't mean what you said about wanting money?" he questioned eagerly.

Her eyes met his bravely. "Yes, I do like money, Dick. But I wouldn't sell myself. I couldn't marry without love."

"Neither would I," said Dickie boldly. "So when are you going to marry me, Marcia?"

She laughed. "In the spring perhaps."

"As if I'd wait," said Richard masterfully. "After breakfast we'll go back to the links. And if I win the game you'll have to marry me in October, and if you win I'll wait until spring."

So back through the clear September air they went and played nine holes. And Marcia did her best. But a woman is only a woman, and Dick was famed for his good game. And so, after all, the wedding came at the end of the summer.

The Same Stock.

People who knew the Huntley family, "root and branch," always said that there could be only one other person in the world as blunt and tactless as James Huntley, and that was his cousin William. James lived in New York and William in Boston. One day James appeared at William's home just at dinner time.

"Well, this is a surprise!" said William. "You're the last person in the world I should have expected to see tonight! Got tired of home?"

"You wouldn't have seen me if I could have got through my business in time to catch the 3 o'clock train," said James. "I tried hard enough."

The cousins looked cheerfully at each other and were quite unaware of the frantic efforts made by Mrs. William to guide the conversation into a smooth channel. Seated at last at the dinner table and attacking the roast beef, the host said:

"If I'd known you were going to drop in on us this way, without warning, I'd have ordered a better dinner."

"Don't trouble about that," said James heartily. "It does well enough, and next time I'll be sure to let you know beforehand."—Youth's Companion.

Proposals in Holland.

A very nice girl made me her confidences concerning Dutch youth. She was not engaged—no, and for an excellent reason. There had been no ice for two years. The canals never once had frozen over—ergo, there had been no chance for the engagements, which in Holland are made on the ice, where suddenly no stiff conventions exist and girls and young men are free to mingle as we do. Her sister had become a young lady in a fortunate but very cold year, and her engagement had taken place at once, and she now lived in America. I saw her once. Her hair had been loosened to a brave pompadour, she wore her waist long and loose, and she had joined a woman's club. My friend, the unmarried one, had once done an awful thing. It had nearly upset the family. She had walked alone a square with a very "old man of forty" whom she had met many times at her grandmother's!—Harper's Bazar.

The Old Reason.

"I can't see how so many men stand it to eat in a cheap and noisy and untidy restaurant."

"I suppose the explanation is as old as Adam."

"What's that?"

"The craving for food."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Too Long For Her.

"When I have $10,000 in the bank I will ask you to marry me," he said.

"I belong to a long lived family," replied the sweet girl, "but I can't hope to live as long as that."—Life.

The Parthenon.

The destruction of that famous building the Parthenon took place in 1687 during the siege of Athens by the Venetians. The Turks held the city, and the Parthenon was used for a powder magazine. One day during the conflict a Venetian bombshell dropped into the building, and the explosion followed which badly shattered the structure. From that date the renowned building has stood roofless and exposed to all the inclemencies of the weather. For more than 2,000 years the temple stood entire, and in its ruins is the architectural wonder of the world.—New York American.

THE EARLY STAGE.

Boys in Female Parts and the First English Actress.

Not long since a critic, noticing the advent of a new Ophelia in London, observed that, while the actress acquitted herself very well, she could hardly be considered "Shakespeare's Ophelia," which was undoubtedly the case, inasmuch as Shakespeare's Ophelia was a boy, either a chorister or a page in the service of one of the theater's patrons.

No English actress made her appearance before the restoration. On Jan. 3 Pepys records, "To the theater, where was acted the 'Beggar's Bush,' it being very well done, and here the first time that ever I saw women come upon the stage."

But these, it is suspected, were mere "walking ladies." A few days later the diarist went to see a performance of "The Silent Woman." "Among other things here Kynaston, the boy, had the good turn to appear in three shapes—first as a poor woman in ordinary clothes to please Morose, then in fine clothes as a gallant and in them was clearly the prettiest woman in the whole house." He had a year before declared that "Kynaston as Olympia made the loveliest lady that I ever saw in my life."

The distinction of being the first English actress has been variously ascribed to Mrs. Davenport, Mrs. Knipp and Mrs. Davies. They all appeared the same year (1661). Mrs. Davies, together with the principal actresses in Sir William Davenant's company, being boarded in the manager's "own house."—London Strand Magazine.

Masquerading In the Past.

In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Venice set the fashion in all matters of amusement and was a sort of combination of our Monte Carlo and Paris. Throughout the eighteenth century the Venetians were seized with a perfect mania for masquerading and gambling. Paris and London followed suit, and the two most popular amusements, both public and private, were masquerades and gambling saloons. People not only wore their masks or visors at balls, but in the mall and the parks and the theaters. At length matters got to such a pass that when a police raid was made on a certain low dancing place in Soho and an order was given for every one to unmask what was the amazement of the police to find that at least a third of the company consisted of ladies and gentlemen of the highest aristocracy, some of whom had even brought their daughters.—London Saturday Review.

The Judges' Ride.

Customs change slowly with the lawyers, but the procession through the streets at the reopening of the law courts was not always the casual affair it now is. Until the middle of the sixteenth century the "judges' ride" to Westminster hall was quite an imposing spectacle, all the legal dignitaries being mounted on mules, like bishops and abbots on a pilgrimage. Mules presently gave place to horses, which in turn were abandoned for coaches. The last procession on horseback took place in the time of Charles II. and was then regarded as an interesting revival. It was not greatly appreciated, however, by the judges themselves, who found their efforts to remain in the saddle far from conducive to a dignified appearance, and before the journey's end one of their number, Lord Twisdon, had the misfortune to be thrown in the mud.—Westminster Gazette.

A New Excuse.

One of the men in a large pottery took two or three days' holiday now and again, and when he came back, on being asked what was wrong, he said he had been away burying his grandmother.

He did this two or three times, and then he thought he had better change his excuse, so, on being asked the next time, he replied:

"Well, my brother, the sailor, is at home just now, and he is so used to the sound of the waves that I had to lash pailfuls of water on the window all night before he could sleep, and then I had to sleep during the day."—London Mail.

A Monumental Bull.

At Kilkenny castle may be seen a "monumental" Irish bull in the form of a tombstone erected to the memory of a former retainer of the Ormonde family. The stone bears the truly Hibernian inscription, "Erected by John Toole In Memory of His Posterity."—Britannia Magazine.

Origin of the Word Canada.

On April 20, 1534, Jacques Cartier sailed from St. Malo, Brittany, with two ships and sixty-one men for Labrador, skirted Newfoundland, named Chaleur bay, crossed the eastern end of Anticosti and then headed for France again. The next year Cartier returned with three ships, thought he saw in the St. Lawrence the wished for passage to India and was only undeceived by the freshness of the water on reaching the mouth of the Saguenay. Then was revealed the majestic size of the continent, for, with the exception of the Amazon and the Orinoco, no American river gives one such a sense of power and grandeur. As the Frenchmen inquired the names of the Indian villages along the banks they were answered "Canada," a Mohawk word meaning village, but which was applied by the Frenchmen to the country.

The Planing Machine.

As to the original inventor of the planing machine there is perhaps scarcely a machine about which there has been more controversy than this, and there are many claimants to the honor. There are records, however, showing that Nicholas Forq, a French clockmaker, used a metal planer in 1751 for machining pump cylinders, apparently being under the impression that they could be made more accurately in this manner than by a revolving cutter.—Cassier's Magazine.

His College Training.

"Has Biffle's son ever made any use of his college education?"

"I should say so. He was held up a few nights ago."

"Yes?"

"And he tackled his assailant low and threw him for a loss of four ribs. He learned that trick on his college eleven."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Out of the Ordinary.

Sapleigh—Bah Jove, you know, an idea has occurred to me. Miss Pert (interrupting)—Pardon me, Mr. Sapleigh, isn't that more than a mere occurrence? I should call it an event.—Boston Transcript.

A Pertinent Question.

A little boy whose sprained wrist had been relieved by bathing in whisky surprised his mother by asking, "Did papa ever sprain his throat when he was a little boy?"

Except for about three years two of which were spent in Tecumseh, he has lived on the same farm. He was married to Comelia Pennock 50 years ago last November. Three sons were born to this union, two of whom, Jesse B., of Tecumseh and Lewis who lived with his parentr in Macon, are still living. His widow, two sons ond their families are left to mourn him.

About 14 years ago he had a severe illness and has never since regained his usual health. He has been growing more feeble from year to year until the tired nature could stand no more, and he fell asleep.

How to Make Chop Suey.

When his sister came home from cooking school and asked him if he had ever heard a recipe for chop suey he didn't like to admit there was anything on earth that he did not know. He was just at that age. So he spared for time by asking what she wanted it for.

It seems that the cooking school teacher had given them the question to investigate for themselves. It was one for which there were many answers, but the girl who produced the best recipe was to receive a little prize of some sort. Her big brother must have found out how chop suey was made, she thought, during some of his trips to Chinatown.

The brother then smiled a wicked smile and said he would write out the best and easiest recipe for chop suey in the world. Next morning he handed her an envelope containing the information. She did not open it until her name was called in the class. Then this is what she read aloud, to the amazement of all, herself included:

"Recipe For Chop Suey.—Take a bowl of rice, clean suey and then chop it."—Chicago Tribune.

A Pleasant Old Legend.

Many years ago, sailing from Constantinople to Marseilles, we passed close under the lee of Stromboli, off the north coast of Sicily. The irreconcilable old volcano was not in active eruption, but from the crater a reddish smoke was rising, while from the fissures in its sides burst now and again tongues of lurid flame. "Ah," observed a sailor—the vessel was an English one—"old Booty is at it again!" So far as I can remember there is a legend that one Captain Booty, a master mariner trading to the Mediterranean in the seventeenth century, became so notorious for drinking and swearing that he was seized upon by the fiend and carried off to the interior of Stromboli, from which he has continued ever since to utter profane language by means of tongues of fire and puffs of smoke. This, however, did not prevent the ghost of the profane skipper from frightening his widow, who resided in Lower Thames street, half out of her senses by appearing to her at supper time smelling strongly of brimstone.—London Times.

A Tame Wild Mouse.

I was waiting at the drumming log of the ruffed grouse for the bird to come and perform before me. My place of concealment was in the branches of a fallen dead spruce. I had not been waiting long before a white footed mouse appeared among the branches on the ground almost under me. It was interesting to see how freely he moved from place to place, appearing now here and now there, all the while travelling under the snow, which had many caverns formed in it by the sun, for it was early spring. Another mouse soon made his appearance, and I watched the two for some time as they searched for food. It was not long before one of the mice was nibbling at my shoe, but the slightest movement of my foot, which was resting on the trunk of the tree, sent him scurrying to the shelter of the branches below. By patient advances, however, I was able to touch the little fellow with the tips of my extended fingers, and five minutes later I was stroking his back as you might stroke a kitten.—St. Nicholas.

Peculiar Taxation in Holland.

Some of the most peculiar of taxations recorded are to be found in the archives of Holland. In 1791, for instance, there was in existence a tax imposed on all passengers traveling in Holland. In 1874 a duty of 2 shillings was levied on each person who entered a tavern before noon, on those who entered a place of entertainment, on marriages and deaths and on many other things. If a person was buried out of the district to which he belonged the tax was payable twice over.

The Usual Way.

"Do you keep servants?"

"No. We are like all other housekeepers in that respect. We hire servants, but do not succeed in keeping them."—Houston Post.

Granaries Rat and Thief Proof.

In some sections of the corn and wheat growing districts of Mexico the rodent pest is so bad that extraordinary precautions have to be taken to prevent the destruction of the crops by the little animals. Sneak thieving of the natives must also be provided against. Corn and wheat bins of ordinary construction, such as are used in the United States, would not serve the purpose of protecting the grain. Instead of wooden structures the granaries are built of stone and brick. Most of them are of conical shape and vary in capacity from 500 to 5,000 bushels. The foundations of these granaries are sunk deep into the ground. At the top of the structure is a close fitting lid which covers the hole through which the grain is emptied into the granary. The ordinary method of filling the storehouse is, to have the grain carried to the top in sacks upon the backs of laborers up steep ladders. At the bottom of the granary is a door which leads into a narrow chamber, which is separated from the grain room by a solid wall of brick or stone, containing a slatted opening, through which the grain is emptied when required.—Kansas City Star.

McKINLEY CLUB BANQUET,

February 14, 1910.

To Those Most Interested.

What a fine time is in view, with the coming of the cKinley banquet candidates for Govenor and both U. S. Senators are expected to be present. What "a feast of reason and a flow of soul" there will be.

Let there be a good attendance and a hearty greeting to one and all. We fully indorse the sentiment expressed by Hon Chas. E. Townsend when interviewed, before leaving for Washington. "If one would be supported by the people he must be in touch with the people. That is the only true democracy."

A physician found one of his patients sitting in the bath and swallowing a dose of medicine.

EVIDENTLY THAT IS WHAT ADRIAN THINKS IN FITTING OUT THEIR CLUB FOR NEXT SEASON'S WARFARE

Have Planned to buy Many Uniforms but Have Only Four Signers to Their Contract.

The directors of the B. B. Association have decided that when their team starts out in the spring it shall be the best equipped in the league. The home dress is to be white with black trimmings and the uniform for the road will be of grey trimmed in black. Everything to be of the best no extras, the A in black being the only decoration. If success depends on fine appearance Adrian may forge ahead. Those who have signed for the season are Jimmie Bartholomew, Manager Vandergrift and Pitchers Reese and Behrendt.

SOMETHING ABOUT OUR BAND

It is obvious to everyone that there is no money to be made by a band in a place so small as this, yet everyone enjoys good music and there are several musically inclined persons who with slight encouragement devote their spare time and some cash to it for the love of music.

From this class there has been recruited a band of something like 20 men who are doing all they can to become proficient in the art. They are working up to the better class of music and expect in a short time to give a concert at the Opera House, which will be sufficiently high in character of selections and rendition to please and entertain even those of some musical training, provided they will remember that it is rendered by a strictly amateur organization.

It is too early to announce the program at this time but it is perfectly safe to say that all tastes are being considered. The opening overture will be of popular selection. Among the heavier numbers will be a Religious Fantasy or medley of sacred music; also another of patriotic character. There will be plenty of ginger in lighter music, all of which will be announced in due time.

There are many difficulties connected with maintaining an organization of this sort as everyone must depend on something else for his livelihood and now and then a player having a principal part finds it to his advantage to go elsewhere, leaving a gap in the ranks that is hard to fill.

The object of this article is to arouse some general interest in the organization and it is hoped that others will join and prepare to fill vacancies when they occur, as only in this manner can a good musical organization be maintained indefinitely.

It is necessary that all aspirants should be of good moral character and habits, have some musical talent, be willing to study the part assigned, furnish their own instruments, pay their share of the expenses and attend rehearsals regularly and on time. The expense is slight at present as our room, light and heat is generously donated.

Just now there are openings for Baritone, Tuba, Alto, Clarinets, Saxophones, Bassoon and Oboe in the order named; besides there should be reserves in all parts.

To those who will consider joining us, all necessary information will be supplied by the manager or director. Any one desiring to arrange for individual instruction can do so on very reasonable terms as one member has prepared for, and is anxious to engage in this work. Anyone desiring to purchase instruments will find our local dealer willing to supply the grade of instrument desired and meet all competition in price.

There is plenty of musical talent in this city to form a good amateur band. It is only a question of getting together and organizing on a business basis. With the band on a sound footing there is no reason why an equally good orchestra cannot be developed then, why not a singing society? Any one of these properly handled, means the development of an understanding and appreciation of better music and altogether would exert an influence for good that would be felt over the whole community and elevate the moral tone of many for all time.

The writer feels that he is not mistaken as to the supply of material in this locality. The question is, can it be gotten together and shaped into a harmonious whole? If those who read this will give it serious consideration much can be accomplished.

If you have a son of suitable age and inclination, send him in.

If you are a young man of good character, habits and some musical talents, come on.

STOMACH MISERY

Get Rid of That Sourness, Gas and Indigestion.

ONE FOR TECUMSEH

"WAVEBREAKER" FORCES TO THE FRONT.

The Launch Lands Safely at the Beulah Home.

Some time since, the Beulah Home received the gift of a Launch, and the question of a name was submitted to the school children of the state. A prize of a 12 pound package of Cocoa Cereal or $1.00 in cash was offered to the lucky winner of the contest.

Names were received from all points and were written on the blackboard, and a vote of the boys was to decide the question.

Just here is where we of Tecumseh are interested. The vote was unanimous for "Wavebreaker," and Willie Matteson of the 4th grade, East Branch was the lucky winner.

When asked by his teacher, Miss Cutting, how he thought of the name he said: "Why, they said it was the fastest launch on the lake—and I thought it must break the waves.

Married Men's Troubles

It was married men's night at the revival meeting.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles in your minds stand up!" shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasm.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the preacher, peering out at this lone sitter, who occupied a chair near the door and apart from the others: "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. "I can't get up; I'm paralyzed!"

FOR SALE BY B. J. PULVER, TECUMSEH, MICH.

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

The farm is a sort of clock which reflects the time of year.

Rev. I. W. Williams Testifies

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., writes us as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it. Sold by all druggists.

A King's Old Clothes.

The posthumous sale of the wardrobe of King George IV. of England realized $75,000. Greville, who attended the sale, says that the king "hardly ever gave anything away except his linen, which was distributed every year. There are all the coats he has ever worn for fifty years, 200 whips, canes without number, every sort of uniform, the costumes of all the orders in Europe, splendid furs, pelisses, hunting coats and breeches. His profusion in these articles was unbounded because he never paid for them, and his memory was so accurate that one of his pages told me he recollected every article of dress, no matter how old, and that they were always liable to be called on to produce some particular coat or other article of apparel of years gone by."

The royal Bengal tiger is infested with one of the strangest creatures that ever lived. Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders.

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

WOMAN STOPS A LYNCHING

Discharged Ice Workers Seek Revenge on the Cook.

HAD HIM READY TO HANG

Boarding House Keeper Appears on Scene With Gun and Stays Off Execution Until Rescuers Arrive—Battle Ensues, Which Results in Sore Heads to Many.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 6.—Samuel Moore, a non-union cook in an ice camp, had a narrow escape from being lynched at Twin Lakes, twenty miles south of this city, Wednesday, being saved from death by a determined woman with a shotgun.

The union ice men, who had been laid off earlier in the day, congregated in a nearby saloon and discussed their grievances over flowing bowls. When Moore put in an appearance he was set upon by the crowd and kicked and beaten.

Finally, somebody yelled, "Let's lynch the scab," and the suggestion was received with immediate favor. A rope was procured, and one end of it was tied around Moore's neck and the other to a rafter of an ice house. The intended victim was given a short time in which to pray, but instead of praying he begged the mob piteously to spare his life. The mob, however, showed no pity, and, tiring of the victim's appeals, one of the ice men seized the rope and started to pull. At that moment Mrs. John Ansill, a keeper of an ice men's boarding house, appeared on the scene with a shotgun. She ordered the mob to release Moore and then backed them away to a safe distance. Several half-hearted attempts were made to recapture the prisoner, but the sight of the formidable looking shotgun kept the mob back.

In the meantime a rescuing party had been organized, and soon a pitched battle was in progress. The rescuers finally won, but only after more than a dozen men had been badly beaten. Moore was taken to a hospital in Milwaukee.

HERE IS THE PROOF

That the best body-building and strengthening tonic for Delicate Children is Vinol

"My 9 year old daughter was weak, pale, and had no appetite. I gave her Vinol, and she began to thrive at once. She gained rapidly in weight, color and strength." Mrs. W. H. GILMORE, Durand, Mich.

"My two children, who were puny and ailing, rapidly gained flesh and health when I began to give them Vinol. I proved that Vinol is a splendid tonic for delicate children." Mrs. C. ALLEN, New Bedford, Mass.

Vinol builds up healthy flesh and makes thin little limbs round and plump. Children love to take it.

We return people's money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it. Try it, please.

ESCAPE BY MERE CHANCE.

Wreck Near Marshall Came Near Meaning Death to Many.

Marshall, Mich., Jan. 6.—The breaking of a drawbar, and the consequent setting of the airbrakes, prevented an accident that would have resulted in the wrecking of a train and the death or serious injury of scores of passengers near here. The westbound Michigan Central passenger train, with fourteen coaches, most of which were heavily laden sleepers, was just saved from going over a twenty-foot embankment, while running fifty miles an hour. The cold weather was the cause of the accident.

When the first of the two big locomotives which were hauling the train struck the ice which had formed on and around the water pan, two miles east of this city, the tender and the second locomotive were derailed, and they started down the bank. The shock broke the drawbar between an express and baggage car, and the breaking of the air hose set the brakes and stopped the train.

The passengers were thrown from their bunks and shaken up, but no one was seriously hurt.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been dispelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 903 Elliston St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then your will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

ACCEPT ARBITRATION.

Switchmen Will Accept Aid of Federal Officials.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Switchmen, in conference in Chicago since Dec. 1 with representatives of the western roads over demands made by the union, have decided to submit the whole question of wages, pay and changes in working [illegible] to federal arbitration. The negotiations closed with the best of feeling expressed by both sides.

MARTIN A. KNAPP.

The two bodies of employes and employers had been arguing the same question which caused the strike of switchmen in the northwest upon the refusal of the union men to accept arbitration. An appeal to Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, and to C. P. Neill, commissioner of labor, at Washington, was made in a joint letter. The federal arbitrators have been asked to act under the provisions of the Erdman act. A favorable reply is expected at once.

COOK VERY ILL, SAYS WIFE'S SISTER

Knows Where He Is as Does Cook's Secretary.

New York, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Josephine Dudley, sister of Mrs. Frederick A. Cook, who lives on East Eighteenth street, has made a statement to the effect that she knew where Dr. Cook was and that his secretary, Walter Lonsdale, certainly knew where he was. She said that Dr. Cook was very ill and under the care of physicians. Mrs. Cook, she said, was constantly by his side.

When asked if it was true that Mrs. Cook contemplated divorce, Mrs. Dudley said, "Do you think she would watch by his bedside if she thought of getting a divorce?"

Mrs. Dudley denied that there was any trouble between the doctor and Mrs. Cook over certain alleged loans made by Mrs. Cook to him. As to the nature of Dr. Cook's illness she would not say, except that it was quite serious. The physicians hoped to pull him through. Mrs. Dudley's two sons, the oldest fourteen years old, said that the newspapers had been kept from Dr. Cook during his illness.

Says Cook Is Monomaniac.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—H. Wake, the big game hunter and friend of Dr. Cook, has arrived in Montreal on his way to a sanitarium at St. Agathe, where he intends to take the rest cure.

Mr. Wake said that in his opinion Dr. Cook was a monomaniac, nothing more. He had not heard from him lately, but he certainly expected to see him crop up unexpectedly somewhere not far from here soon.

Wake still sticks to Cook as a friend and says the doctor is only suffering from hallucinations from which he will soon recover.

HOUSE WILL NAME THE COMMITTEE

Cannon to Have No Hand In Ballinger-Pinchot Affair.

Washington, Jan. 10.—After full and free conference between the senate and house leaders it has been practically decided that the senate, in adopting Senator Jones' resolution for an investigation of the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, shall so amend the measure as to provide that the house personnel of the committee on inquiry shall be named by the house itself and not by the speaker. This removes to some extent the opportunity for another rock on which question between "insurgents" and regulars of the house and between the senate and the house.

Speaker Cannon and his lieutenants have informed the senate leaders that they have no desire to overturn the edict of the house as expressed in the Norris amendment and that the resolution authorizing the investigation into the Ballinger-Pinchot affair should become law substantially as it went through the house.

If present plans are carried out, the senate will pass the Jones resolution today, and the resolution will be considered in the house Thursday. The caucus of house Republicans may be held Tuesday night, but from present indications the call for Wednesday night will be adhered to.

Unless the "insurgents" in the senate or house put a stick in the spokes of the legislative wheels, the inquiry into the Ballinger-Pinchot affair ought to be under way by the latter part of the week.

Planning $1,000,000 Hotel.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Jan. 10.—A. T. Fisher and wife, owners of the Fisher farm on the edge of this city, have disposed of their property to C. W. Laukoff of Detroit for approximately $40,000. The claim is made that the property is to be used for the erection of a $1,000,000 hotel, which has long been promised to Mt. Clemens. Mr. Fisher is connected with the project.

Kills Family and Self.

Ballinger, Tex., Jan. 10.—F. B. Kimbler, a farmer living near here, has killed his wife and two young children, seriously wounded his niece, aged twenty, and ended his own life by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a pocket knife.

OPPOSED TO "INSURGENTS"

Republican Congressional Committee Out With Statement.

PARTY SOLIDARITY SOUGHT

Will Try to Aid in Bringing to Congress Republicans Who Are Regular. Maintains Right of Individual Opinion—Committee Pays No Attention to Charges Relative to Money.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The Republican congressional committee has put out a statement in response to the allegation that it was trying to prevent the nomination of "insurgent" Republican congressmen. According to the committee's explanation, it is opposed to the "insurgent" movement and in the interest of party solidarity and good legislation will seek to bring about the nomination and election to congress of Republicans who are regular. The concluding paragraph of the statement contains this exposition of the committees attitude:

"The Republican congressional committee makes no issue with any individual 'insurgent,' but it will oppose to the full extent of its power the people of insurgency and will advocate the nomination and election of regular and loyal Republicans. It concedes the right and privilege of individual opinion and its expression, but maintains with the president that there must be party solidarity if the best in legislation and administration is to be attained."

The accusation against the Republican congressional committee was made by Republican "insurgents" in the house. They claimed that through press correspondence sent out by its literary bureau the committee was trying to defeat Republican "insurgent" representatives for renomination and that money furnished from regular Republican sources was being used in the congress districts of Representatives Norris (Neb) and Cooper (Wis.), foremost "insurgents," to prevent their return to the house. It was not charged that the committee was furnishing this money, and the statement of the committee does not notice that phase of the general charge.

DARING RESCUE.

Students Bring South Boston Man to Safety From River.

Boston, Jan. 10.—A daring rescue of a man who had fallen through the ice in the Charles river was made by Kenneth Lindsey and John T. Nightingale, members of 1910 class of Harvard. Shortly after midnight they heard cries from the river and saw a man struggling in the water about fifty feet from the shore. The man proved to be Timothy Lynch of South Boston.

The students, taking a ladder, which they fastened to a post on shore by a rope, started to the rescue. The surface was full of holes, and Lindsey slipped into the water twice before he and his companion were able to make their way to the man and fetch him ashore.

'FRISCO CHINKS AT WAR.

One Society Warns Other Hostilities Will Open Next Thursday.

San Francisco, Jan. 10.—Chinatown is excited over a report that the powerful Hop Sing tong has served notice on Yee tong that hostilities would be opened next Thursday if certain conditions which the Yee's refused are not complied with. The twelve fighting tongs in Chinatown arranged a truce last Tuesday, and if the Hop Sings break this, the Yee men threaten to bring the whole quarrel into the white man's courts and have all highbinder tongs dissolved by law.

The present crisis was produced by the identification by a Yee man of a Hop Sing gunman who murdered one of the Yee highbinders at San Jose.

ANOTHER ELOPEMENT.

Cornell Student Follows Example Set by His Roommate.

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 10.—News of another matrimonial escapade of interest to the Cornell campus leaked out Sunday, when it was learned that Robert A. Fish, a student in the college of law, had been secretly married in Elmira last week to Miss Julia Park of Waverly. Fish was a roommate of Frederick P. Badger of Scranton, a student who several months ago ran off with Miss Charlotte Allen, a sixteen-year-old girl of this city.

ALL TO PLEAD GUILTY.

McCormick Will Accept Charge of Murder.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Jan. 10.—Robert McCormick will plead guilty to the murder of Henry C. Miner. Charles Harrington will plead guilty to assault with intent to murder Morgan Emmett. Carl Billings will plead guilty to burglarizing the Switzer Brothers' jewelry store.

These are the results of the arraignment of McCormick and Harrington.

"What are you going to plead?" said McCormick to Harrington.

"I'm going to plead guilty, Bob; I can't do anything. I'm going to tell the truth, and I can't help pleading guilty. I'm going to take my medicine."

McCormick stood with head in thoughtful pose a few seconds and then raised it slightly and in a dejected manner said: "Well, if you plead guilty they've got me, and I might as well plead guilty, too."

He then asked what charge had been preferred against him and was told that he was charged with murder in the first degree.

Both waived examination when arraigned and were held without bail to the circuit court for the March term.

PLAGUE IN CALIFORNIA

Disease Has Become Epidemic In That State.

INFECTED RODENTS SPREAD IT

C. Hart Merriam, Chief of Bureau of Biological Survey, Explains That Startling Condition of Affairs Exists. Rats Infected Squirrels, and Plague Is Rapidly Carried East.

Washington, Jan. 10.— Bubonic plague, which claims thousands of victims each year in the orient, is now epidemic in California the first time in the history of the United States, and, according to C. Hart Merriam, chief of the bureau of biological survey, who gave this information to the house committee on agriculture, the conditions which confronts the government is serious. Mr. Merriam appeared before the house committee to give his testimony as to the needs of the biological survey. He declared that the $25,000 which congress allowed him last year for investigating the food habits of birds and mammals would hardly be sufficient this time and gave as the principal reason the facts that his bureau is trying to devise an economical means of destroying gomphers, grounds squirrels, rabbits, field mice and other rodents which carry the plague.

"In the case of the California ground squirrel," said Mr. Merriam, "we particularly feel the need of doing extermination work on a sufficiently large scale to find out just what we can do and at approximately what cost. The California ground squirrel is carrying the plague now and is a menace to the whole country."

"Where does the ground squirrel get the plague?" asked Chairman Scott.

"From the introduced European rats about San Francisco bay," replied Mr. Merriam. "During the past year there have been nine or ten cases of human plague just east of San Francisco bay. During the past few months more than 300 ground squirrels have been found infected with the plague by the marine hospital service in the region immediately east of San Francisco bay, and very recently plague has been found in ground squirrels about Santa Cruz and even as far south as Hollister, fifty miles south of the bay. Hence the matter is more serious than at first supposed.

"The serious feature of the plague in California is that for the first time in the history of the United States we now have plague in an endemic form, propagated and continued by means of fleas on native rodents, just as is the case in India."

"Uncle Jimmie" Left Fortune.

Ann Arbor Mich., Jan. 10.—It was never supposed that "Uncle Jimmie" Ottley, the aged keeper of the cloak room in the general library, who died this week, had any amount of money laid aside, but the family, in searching through his possessions, found an old safe. On opening it out rolled silver and gold coins, which, counted up, were found to amount to between $11,000 and $12,000.

OTHER GIRLS ARE ATTACKED

Sisters Are Latest Victims on Streets of Detroit.

ASSAILANTS WERE ITALIANS

Man Attempted to Drag Fifteen-year-old Sarah Goldman Into Alley—Her Uncle, Who Happened to Be Nearby, Drove Off Assailant, but Was Later Set Upon by Other Men.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 10.—Another attack of a young girl has occurred on the streets of this city.

Second of her family to be attacked by a stranger on the streets within four days, Sarah Goldman, fifteen years old, 519 St. Antoine street, struggled several minutes with an unidentified Italian on Clinton avenue, near St. Mary's hospital, about 6:30 o'clock last evening. She was rescued by Charles Kessler, her uncle, a saloon keeper at 464 St. Antoine street.

Rae Goldman, a seventeen-year-old sister of Sarah, had remained at home, fearing to leave her home lest she should be accosted again by the brute who attacked her last Thursday evening.

Sarah Goldman was visiting the Kesler family yesterday. After supper she walked along Clinton avenue towards the hospital. From the alley the Italian appeared and walked towards her. The girl unsuspectingly continued walking towards him. When they met, the man grabbed her by the shoulders and commenced to drag her towards the alley.

Kessler, who had started downtown, was walking several yards behind. Before he reached the girl's side, she had wrenched herself free and was fleeing towards St. Antoine street. Kessler, however, continued after the Italian and overtook him as he reached the alley. He lost no time in beating the fellow unmercifully. The Italian was still shouting for mercy, and Kessler had made up his mind to hold him for the police, when four friends of the foreigner immediately attacked Kessler, in an effort to free the man who had been knocked down by him.

For fifteen minutes the saloon keeper fought to hold his prisoner, but finally he was overpowered, and the Italians departed. Kessler gave a complete description of the men to the police.

Rae Goldman, a sister of the girl who was attacked last night, was returning home from work about 8 o'clock last Thursday night, when a young man, apparently an Italian, attacked her. She succeeded in breaking away from him, and is now in a state of nervous collapse.

BOND STATE FAIR.

President Postal Would Do So For Improvements.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 10.—President Fred Postal has some rather elaborate plans for the physical betterment of the state fair. By increasing the bonded indebtedness $100,000 it will be possible, he believes, to build a suitable place for motor and horsedrawn vehicles, a manufacturers' building and an administration buildings, as well as a tunnel under the race track, which will allow the infield to be put to some use.

These matters will come up tonight at the annual winter meeting of the Michigan Agricultural society in its new offices in the Bowles building. Members of the board who have been sounded on the proposition view it with favor, realizing how much it will add to the attractiveness of the autumnal fixture.

At the same meeting the reports of the fair of 1909 will be submitted. They will show that the profits were a little over $20,000, exclusive of $10,000 in permanent improvements.

The fair of 1910 will be a six-days' affair. Instead of starting in the middle of the week, and taking three days to get ready, the fair will open on Monday with everything in its place. The dates, as tentatively fixed are Sept. 5 to 10, the first day being Labor day.

The members of the boards of the state asylums will hold a meeting in Kalamazoo Jan 20

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Second Best

Henry Took Ann at Her Word, but Little Jimmy Rebelled.

By LOUISE OLNEY.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Ann Mark's eye flashed. Direct as her name, she refused to marry Henry Jasper. He stood before her a little awkwardly, but yet a man that most women would have considered kindly. He was not forty, well off for the simple community, highly respected, and his wife, Caroline, had been dead three years. Being a mere man, how could he know that Ann, his old schoolmate, had suffered agonies when as a young man he had courted and married her cousin?

No one knew why Ann had not married. She never wore her heart on her sleeve. Now, in spite of herself, her heart softened to him, noting how his hand ruffled his hair as it always did when he was puzzled and unhappy.

"I never did think I could be second best in any man's life," she went on rather cruelly. "And I don't see how at my age, thirty-five, and I don't care who knows it—I don't see how I can begin playing mother to another woman's child. The boy will hate me, as all children do a stepmother. No; ask some other woman." The man flushed angrily.

"Don't insult me, Ann. You know I don't want any other woman. I've always—you know I can't tell you what I always thought of you. It wouldn't seem fair to Caroline, who did her best by me."

"The world knew she had been a weak, fretful, untidy woman, jealous, thriftless, her baby beauty gone in a few years. And it knew of his loyalty. He could not tell this woman how in the years she had been about his house helping Caroline his heart had gone out to Ann's cheery strength, her wholesome, healthy kindness. He cried one word more.

"Ann, if you knew how I needed you in every way you would come. Do you think I have forgotten how to love?" Still she shook her head. He turned slowly away, climbed into his buggy and drove to his own farm. Ann sat thinking, for she remembered many things. She finally rose and went into her sister's house, where she was visiting. Molly looked at her curiously as she entered, waiting to be told something, for she had guessed Henry's errand. But she was forced to respect Ann's silence.

In the crisp September morning Ann started out for a walk. She went over the hill where she used to play with Molly and with Henry and Caroline. How strangely things had worked out! She thought of her busy life as forewoman in a big shop, her practical, busy, useful, lonely life. How soon her visit to the old place would be over! Reaching the top of the hill, she sat down in the falling leaves, pushing the heavy dark hair back from her face. Her big eyes were soft and kind and dark, like an animal's eyes. She was tall and vigorous.

Down in the valley she could see Henry Jasper's house and barnyard. He was hitching the bays to the buggy, and presently he drove away. A sudden temptation assailed her. She had heard Molly say his most recent housekeeper had left. Should she go and have a look at things? She did not see the boy about. Probably Jimmy was at his grandmother's. She rose and walked across the stubble.

The door was locked, but she found the key under the mat and entered. She could have groaned at sight of the kitchen—dishes unwashed, floor ditto, disorder rampant. The sitting room, the bedroom, everything was a sorry sight to her housewifely eye, for she was first and always a housekeeper. Things had been bad enough in Caroline's time, but now they were impossible.

She had no compunction about entering. She had always been in and out before she went to the city. He would not care. She looked at the clock and calculated that he could not get back from town under two hours. Then she rolled up her sleeves and skirt and went to work—dishes first, then the floor, then sweeping, dusting and making beds. Before she knew it three hours had gone and it was noon. She found a bite to eat and decided to go on even if he caught her at it. She did not care.

Knowing it would take weeks to get everything as it should be, she chose those points to put to rights that would make for sheer comfort. She made some pies and ginger cookies and doughnuts and boiled some corned beef from the barrel, trying not to see the condition the cellar was in. The afternoon wore on, and still Henry did not return. She mended some of Jimmy's clothes, poor child!

She had decided that she would keep at work as long as possible and then slide out the back way when she saw him coming, but it was not to be. About 4 she suddenly was aware of a wailing in the yard and from the door beheld Jimmy, fish pole in hand, limping along and crying at every step. He was a boy of ten, like his father as one pea to another. She ran to meet him and saw that his foot was cut and bleeding. She picked him up and carried him in, washed his foot, dressed it and put him on the sofa, where she fed him. As she came to take away the plate he suddenly, in the most unboylike fashion, snatched her about the neck and kissed her. Then he fell asleep.

By this time she had no thought of going back till the child's father came. She moved about the kitchen and dining room in her orderly, effective way—a way businesslike, eminently womanly and good. The waste apparent everywhere annoyed her thrifty soul. She saw forty ways to better and save. She set the table with a fresh cloth and put a good supper to cook on the stove she had blackened at the cost of her pretty, plump hands, her one beauty save her eyes. It was nearing 6 o'clock.

After a little Jimmy awoke and without warning began to cry, refusing to tell what troubled him, but denying that it was his foot. Finally Ann got a low rocker, took the child in her arms and began to rock him. Great boy that he was, he snuggled to her, his unloved little heart accepting the comfort, trusting this soft voiced, smiling, mother armed woman who called herself Aunt Ann.

As she sat thus, her attention quite absorbed, Henry Jasper came wearily to the kitchen door, his arms loaded with groceries, his face hopeless. He had been wondering where to look for Jimmy, who had been allowed that morning to go to a neighbor's.

Then with unbelieving joy he saw the clean room, the spread table, the new air of comfort, and, best of all, in Ann Mark's kind arms he saw his sleeping motherless child—a child nearly as unmothered before his own mother's death as after it. She looked up at him and smiled.

"He cut his foot and came home crying. I came over, and when I saw so much to do I went to work. I knew you wouldn't mind, Henry."

Mind! The hard thing was that she should come just to go again; that she should give him a taste of this calm comfort, let him see her like this and deny him a continuance of it. He was very miserable in his gratitude.

"Put your packages on the sink," she commanded, "and when I have laid Jimmy down I will put them away. Will you open the oven door and look at the biscuit?" He obeyed her, then stood looking while she deftly put everything in its place. The milk pail shiningly waited for him to take it and go out to milk, but he lingered. And Jimmy awoke and wanted to tell his father about the enormous fish that nibbled at his hook, and got almost caught and how he had cut his foot on the broken bottle and found Aunt Ann to bind it up.

"Supper is ready, and you had better eat before you do the rest of the chores, Henry," she said, helping the boy to limp to his place.

They ate joyfully, talking, laughing, the man wondering how many minutes would pass before she rose to go. The future yawned emptily. She was asking him about his housekeepers, what he paid them, advising him what he should do. Finally when she rose he rose too. They stood facing each other, and her clear eyes smiled.

"You are— Oh, Ann, you have been good!" he said awkwardly. "Shall I hitch up and drive you home, or will you walk?" So he had taken her at her word. It was evident that he had no thought of anything permanent in all this. But the woman had. She saw here her place, her opportunity. The old hurt and anger had passed, and she was again at heart the simple girl who had loved in secret this man who was at last hers. She paused a moment, still looking at him. There was now no thought of being "second best." She would make herself all to them.

"I'll wash the dishes up first, and then after you have done the chores you can walk back with me." Jimmy set up a sudden wail from his chair, where he still sat at the table.

"I don't want you to go away," he cried, "and I won't stay alone while papa goes with you!" Ann went behind his chair and put her arms around him. She did not look at the child's father.

"Listen, Jimmy. Auntie must go tonight, but if you will be good till papa comes back I will come again."

"When will you? How long will you stay?" he demanded, with the definiteness of childhood. No uncertainty for Jimmy! She did not hesitate.

"I will come back—in the morning—and I will stay always—if papa says that I may!"

Jimmy, forgetting his foot, jumped at her neck like a little boa constrictor. But his father set him down, wanting her himself just then.

"Are you going to let her stay, papa?" Then Henry Jasper laughed, and the burden of unhappy years rolled from his shoulders. Ann was presently forced to hand him the milk pail as a hint to let her get at the dishes.

Pantomime Performances.

Most pantomime characters were originally borrowed from the Italians. The first real English pantomime was produced at a theater in Lincoln's Inn Fields in 1720. It was called "Harlequin Executed," and its subtitle was "A New Italian Comic Scene Between a Scaramouche, a Harlequin, a Country Farmer, His Wife and Others." The performance was very successful. About the middle of the eighteenth century the character of pantomime performances was completely altered, chiefly because of the genius of the famous Grimaldi, who made the clown the first figure in the pantomime. Grimaldi first appeared at Sadler's Wells theater, where he played the part of a monkey. He was actively engaged on the stage for forty-nine years, and at the close of his career he took a benefit at Drury Lane theater which realized nearly £900. He also received £100 from the Drury Lane fund. This was in June, 1828. He died in 1837 and was buried in the churchyard of St. James' chapel, Pentonville Hill.

Genius.

"Why is it," asks a writer in Fliegende Blatter, "that when a man discovers that he is a genius he allows his hair to grow long and that when a woman becomes similarly conscious she has her hair cut short?"

Stevenson's Cup of Misery.

R. L. Stevenson, writing in 1893 to George Meredith, in an epistle quoted in his "Letters," says, with heart touching pathos:

"For fourteen years I have not had a day's real health. I have wakened sick and gone to bed weary, and I have done my work unflinchingly. I have written in bed and written out of it, written in hemorrhages, written in sickness, written torn by coughing, written when my head swam for weakness, and for so long, it seems to me, I have won my wager and recovered my glove. I am better now—have been, rightly speaking, since first I came to the Pacific—and still few are the days when I am not in some physical distress. And the battle goes on—ill or well is a trifle so that it goes. I was made for a contest, and the powers have so willed that my battlefield should be this dingy, inglorious one of the bed and the physic bottle. At least I have not failed, but I would have preferred a place of trumpetings and the open air over my head."

How to Know the Twins.

The Beverly twins, Fred and Frank, were such exact counterparts of each other that none of the neighbors could tell them apart, and even their mother sometimes had her doubts. The resemblance is accentuated by the fact that they are dressed exactly alike.

"How in the world can you yourself tell which is which, Mrs. Beverly?" asked a caller one day.

"To tell the truth," she answered, "I can't always. But if I hear a noise in the pantry and I call out, 'Fred, is that you?' and he says, 'Yes, mamma,' I know it's Frank and that he's in some kind of mischief."—Exchange.

PLUCKING LIVE GEESE

An Operation Necessary to Procure Good Feathers.

LOCKING THE BIRDS' WINGS.

This Trick Performed and Their Legs Bandaged Together, the Helpless Geese Are Ready, if Not Willing, Victims For the Expert Pickers.

"Yes," said a manufacturer and dealer in bed furnishings, "it is necessary that goose feathers should be taken from the live goose if we are to study the health and comfort of people who think they must have feather beds and pillows. Dead goose feathers are not much better than husks to lie on and have not that great virtue of husks—wholesomeness.

"They say it doesn't hurt a goose to pluck it, but it seems to me that one might as well say that it wouldn't hurt a man to have his whiskers yanked out by the handful. The reason they give for believing a goose doesn't suffer when its feathers are being plucked out of it is that it never squawks or squeaks or makes a fuss while the plucking is going on.

"Now, I believe it hurts a goose like the mischief to have its feathers pulled out, coming as they do from the tenderest spots on its body, and the reason the fowl doesn't utter any protest prompted by pain is, according to the way I have sized geese up, because it is such a blame fool. A goose will squawk and clatter and cackle as if it were suffering more agony than a horse with the colic just at the mere sight of you, but if you corner it up and pelt it with stones it seems to forget that it has a voice and will take all the punishment you give it without a further word.

"The Pennsylvania Dutch farmers pluck geese today just the same as their forbears did time out of mind, and I don't know as there is any other way. It certainly couldn't be made any pleasanter for the goose unless the plucker held chloroform or something like that to its nose while the plucking was going on. The geese to be bereft of their feathers are first got together in an inclosure used for the purpose. The perspicacity of geese may be strikingly made known to you when they are being rounded up in such an inclosure if there should happen to be a knothole in one end of it, the door being at the other. That door may be six feet high and three broad, but goose after goose will ignore it and try its best to get through the knothole. Induced, though, to try the door, every goose will bob its head down as it passes through for fear of knocking it against the top of the door jamb, six feet above.

"There is a man or a boy in every neighborhood where geese are plucked who is an expert in getting the goose ready for the process. Not every one can do that. The wings of the goose have to be locked together by a peculiar arrangement of the two near the shoulder, and, while they are not tied or fastened in any other way, the lock is such that no goose can unlock it. The goose's feet are tied together with a broad band of soft muslin. Then it is ready for the plucker.

"The pluckers, who are almost always women, go among the geese with their heads and faces entirely covered with hoods fastened around the neck with a shirr string. There are holes in the hoods for the eyes and also at the nose to supply fresh air for breathing. From the neck down the pickers are covered with a glazed muslin garment to which no feather or down will cling. The pluckers will sit on low stools around a large and perfectly dry tub. Each takes in her lap a goose made helpless by its interlocked wings and bound legs and with rapid plying of her fingers separates the feathers from it. This is done with such skill, though, that the plucker rarely breaks the goose's skin or causes blood to follow the plucking out of a feather. The air is constantly filled with the light feathers during the plucking, but they settle into the tub at last.

"But there isn't as much call for the goose to undergo this raping of its feathers as there used to be. Not one pound of goose feathers is used today where there were fifty pounds twenty five years ago. Odd as it may seem, asthma and hay fever long ago began to have a good deal to do with decreasing the demand for feather beds and pillows. It was discovered that asthma and hay fever had an affinity for such couches and head rests; that nothing would start an asthmatic off for a cheerful night's wheezing so quickly as a feather bed. This discovery spread, and the goose owes a great deal of its later day comfort to the asthma."—Detroit Free Press.

She Had Enough.

As Mrs. May of Birchdale Corners was leaving the exhibition hall of the county fair a man stepped out of a booth and accosted her.

"Won't you enter," said he, "and see the startling spentharioscopic scintillations of radium?"

Mrs. May shook her head—with a smile, however, for she is courteous if not scientific.

"I'm obliged to you," she said, "but my bag is chock full of samples now."—Youth's Companion.

Launched on the Sea of Matrimony

OUR FORMER REPORTER MISS AGNES M. RILEY, OUT ON THE OCEAN OF LIFE.

May her Future be Full of the Good Things is the Sincere Wish of The Herald Force

Miss Agnes M Riley of Tecumseh and Andrew Hiler of Defiance, Ohio, were united in marriage in Detroit, Saturday morning, Jan. 8, by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Foley. They were attended by Miss Josephine Hiler of Defiance, Ohio, niece of the groom, and Thomas Riley of Muskegon, brother of the bride.

The bride wore a traveling suit of cloth, color, old blue.

They returned to Tecumseh, Saturday evening and left on a short wedding trip, Monday morning, after which they will make their home in Defiance.

The bride has been connected with the Herald force for sometime, and has won a warm place in our hearts by her unfailing good humor, and faithfulness. It was with regret that we bade her good bye. She has our best wishes for a happy married life and we are sure she will endear herself to those among whom she will make her new home.

The groom is in the employ of the Brookville Bridge Co., and will be remembered as having charge of the building of the long bridge in Brownsville.

A Letter From Abner Wilson To His Brother

New York City, Dec. 6, 1910.

Dear Bro. Andy:

Well, we arrived in New York about 1:30 today, found Joe all right and plenty of celery on hand.

Started from New Port News Tues- afternoon about five and from old Point Comfort at seven on the steamer Norfolk. Arrived at Washington about 7 30 a. m. and found Clarence Hurry waiting for us at the dock. We went to his house and took breakfast, found them nicely situated and glad to see us.

Clarence then went to his work in the census office and we went to the post office and found Allen Merritt. He detailed a man to show us around which he did in great shape.

First we went to the White House and looked it over, pretty sharp. Think they must have thought we wanted to buy it, as Silas Ferguson used to say. Taft agreed to have the tariff bill fixed over to suit all parties, also, other matters of importance.

Went to the National Museum and Smithsonian institute, the bureau of printing and engraving and then to the Capitol. The senate had just adjourned at 2 p. m. I suppose they wanted to get their chores done before dark.

Went into the house gallery and were quite fortunate to hear some quite spirited speeches from the Gentlemen from Ill., Texas, Tenn., Mich., (Wash Gardner) on certain amendments to a bill introduced by Rep. Mann of Ill., doing away with the Panama Canal committee and having the president appoint a competent civil engineer to carry on the work etc. etc. The "Genlium" from Texas said the time had gone by when we should call a spayde an instrument for excavation. That the bill was for the sole purpose of furnishing a job for Ex. Pres. Roosevelt etc. etc.

Went to the Congressional library in the evening with Clarence and his wife, it was quite cold in the morning but about 11, a mist came down and froze on and the streets were very slippery and icy about one-fourth to one-half in. of ice. Today it has been foggy all way up to N. Y., but is thawing and the streets are very, very sloppy. We expect to sail Saturday at 1 p. m. With kind regards to all I remain,

Yours Truly
Abner Wilson.

Allen of west Chicago St., Tecumseh.

The Man Behind the Gun.

The late Admiral Erben had the good fortune or the merit to originate a world circling phrase, "the man behind the gun." He used it in a speech on the factors of success in naval warfare to emphasize the necessity of having efficiency, preparedness, run through the entire personnel. It was also a reminder that the enlisted men have a good deal more to do with bringing about victory than always appears in history or official reports. The expression was employed in supplementing the views of Captain Mahan and attained circulation at once as epitomizing a whole library of instruction.—Boston Transcript.

The Waters Under the Earth.

Below a depth of six miles under the surface of the earth's crust it is believed that no water can exist in the rock formations, because the tremendous pressure probably closes all pores. But above that level the quantity of underground water is estimated to be equal to one-third of all the water contained in the oceans. If poured over the land surface of the globe the underground water would, it is averred, be sufficient to cover it to a uniform depth of from 8,000 to 8,500 feet.

Rapid Transit.

In response to a growing demand in his home a certain author once went to his father's house, borrowed the family high chair and started taking it home by hand. He had to wait long for his car, and when it finally came its conductor was a humorist.

"Aren't you pretty big for that chair?" that official ventured.

Wonderful Cactuses.

The largest cactuses in the world are those to be found in parts of Mexico. The curious bristling plants common in greenhouses and even in botanical collections give but a poor idea of the size and beauty of this variety. It is common, for example, to find a single plant growing to a height of eight or ten feet which will weigh several hundred pounds. The cactuses grow in a bewildering variety of forms and colors. Their blossoms are correspondingly large and varied.

A Cynical Citizen.

"Is your town improving?"

"Yep," answered Broncho Bob. "The figures show that the tone of Crimson Gulch is improving. The population has decreased 30 per cent in the last year, and I don't know of anybody whose absence wouldn't be a benefit."—Washington Star.

A bond of union is soon formed between brethren in misfortune.—Le Sage.

Wonderful Musical Memory.

Sir John Stainer had a wonderful musical memory. It was put to the test once at the Crystal palace when he had to play the organ in the "Messiah" and a folio copy, on which alone he could see the score, was not forthcoming. The conductor was in despair. Sir John cut the knot by a wonderful tour de force, playing the part faultlessly right through and entirely from memory, probably the only time the "Messiah" has been so rendered.—London Standard.

Make your life your monument.—Ben Jonson.

Well He Knew.

Emperor Francis of Austria and his empress once attended the performance of a play which abounded in political allusions. On leaving the theater he remarked good naturedly, "We may congratulate ourselves on having seen the piece at all, for I am sure that it will be speedily forbidden."

His Time Wasn't.

"Time is money."

Forget your prejudice for just one baking

Lay aside your favorite baking powder for just once. Forget for a day that it is "the kind mother used." Dispense with the idea that there is "nothing else just as good." It may have served you admirably for years. But just remember, other things have improved since grandmother's time. So why not baking powder?

Get from your grocer today a can of Calumet Baking Powder. Bake a batch of biscuits, a cake or your favorite pastry. If the baking does not come out just as good, or better, than usual. If it is not as light, sweet and delicious, If it does not prove up to your high standard in every respect, providing of course you have in every other way exercised your usual methods, take the can of Calumet back to the grocer and get your money. This is our first step in making friends for Calumet. The continued good results, the purity, the economy in both cost and use will hold them.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A very painful accident occurred to Ben Ellis on Saturday afternoon, while he was on his way to Brownville to take in the ice racing.

Owing to the icy condition of the sidewalks he, like many others, was walking on the side of the road. Some drunken roisterers driving at great speed, and passing by others who were driving in the same direction, run him down, striking him in the back and throwing him violently to the frozen ground. He was picked up by Will Eccles and carried to his home.

Dr. Hendershott was called, who made him as comfortable as possible. No bones were broken, but he was found badly bruised, and unable to move himself. It is hoped that when the soreness incident to such an accident is removed, he will be all right again.

The men who ran him down came from Clinton, and are known. They never stopped to see what injuries he had received.

Dr. LOREE, DEAD

Dr. Loree of Ridgeway, died at his home Sunday afternoon, after an illness of a few days. He was born in Canada near Niagara Falls, and came to the states in his early manhood.

He graduated from the U. of M., about 50 years ago, and settled in Ridgeway, where he has followed his profession up to the present time.

He was twice married. Dr. Loree of Ann Arbor and Mrs. Martin Palmer, Lincoln, Leb., being his children by his first wife. Mrs. Alfred Lucking of Detroit, was a stepdaughter, but was always known by his name, and esteemed as his own child.

Mr, Loree and Mrs. Lucking, with his loving wife, were with him in his last moments, Mrs. Palmer being on her way home in answer to the tidings of his critical condition.

The Dr. was 76 years old at the time of his death, and has been a faithful doctor and friend to all. Ridgeway will mourn him, and the surrounding country will miss his kindly presence.

He has been a visitor at the Herald office for a number of years and it was a pleasure to chat with him on the various topics of the day. We extend to the widow and family our sincere sympathy.

Thoughts For The New Year

We sleep, but the loom of life never stops, and the pattern which was weaving when the sun went down is weaving when it comes up in the morning.—H. W. Beecher.

We are not in this world to do what we wish, but to be willing to do that which it is our duty to do.—Gounod.

It is the every days that count. They must be made to tell, or the years have failed.—W. C. Gannett.

Soberly and with clear eyes believe in your own time and place. There is not, there never has been, a better time or a better place to live. Only with this belief can you believe in hope.—Phillips Brooks.

We may make the best of life, or we may make the worst of it, and it depends very much upon ourselves whether we extract joy or misery from it.—Smiles.

The darkest shadows of life are those which a man himself makes when he stands in his own light.—Lord Avebury.

Our life is short, but to expand that span to vast eternity is virtue's work. —Shakespeare.

The hour that is gone I cannot recall, but tomorrow I will do better than yesterday; and all tomorrows shall be better than the yesterdays. Let us "leave behind our low-vaulted past."—Dyer.

Life is fruitful in the ratio in which it is laid out in noble action or patient perseverance.—Liddon.

RAILROAD NEWS.

An intervening petition and cross-bill arrived to prevent the sale of the D. T. & I., similar to that filed in Columbus several days ago, was filed in the U. S. circuit court in Toledo Wednesday by Doyle and Lewis, representing the firm of F. J. Linsman & Co., and Willard Y. King, Evans R. Dick and Edward L. Openheim.

The case is styled the Knickerbocker Trust Co., and Wm. J Courtney, and the Citizens National bank, of Springfield, Ohio, against the D. T. & I., railroad.

The bill asks the federal court to declare illegal the $5,000,000 bonds, now in the hands of the U. S. Trust Co. Also asking that the U. S. Trust Co., H. B. Hollins & Co, and the note Holders Co., be declared as having no interest in the bands.

Also, that the order of the sale be deferred until the court has made a full and complete examination of all the facts.

The trust to foreclose the mortgage was filed simultaneously a week ago, in Toledo, Columbus and Detroit.

SALE POSTPONED.

The sale of the Defiance division of the Wabash has been postponed until Jan. 19. This sale was by order of the Federal court, to satisfy the Compton claim.

The reason given by Judge Doyle for the postponement was that the Wabash Co., needed more time to arrange for the payment of the claim in cash instead of permitting the sale.

AN AFTERNOON

AMONG THE INTERESTING CURIOS, GATHERED BY DR AND MRS. HARDY ON RECENT TRIP.

Unique Pappoose Carrier, Quaint Pottery, and Dainty Work in Filigree.

It was our very delightful privilege to be favored with a glimpse at the many fine trophies secured by Dr. and Mrs. Hardy, on their recent trip through Oklahoma and Texas.

It requires a more fluent pen than ours to mention one-half of the many quaint and curious articles of Indian workmanship, of Mexican handiwork, and that of many another hand.

A pappoose carrier of the Kiowa tribe, captivated our hearts at once—with its solid beadwork in various colors, and designs. It bears a strong resemblance to the overgrown shoe, It is lashed to a frame-work of highly polished wood, with thongs of buckskin, and all of its trappings are of the best. Any baby in the land, might be proud of such a royal resting place.

A buckskin jacket elaborately decorated in numerous designs, in many colored beads, is very interesting, and if one could only know the significance of each, it might be full of history. This was from the Sioux tribe of Indians.

A saddle of Cheyenne Indian construction, was noticeable for its peculiar workmanship and the buckskin saddlecloth was also wrought in beads. A huge pair of moccasins and those of a little child wrought in white beads with the emblems in black, were next in interest—these belonged to the Eagle tribe of the Cheyenne Indians.

Various pieces of pottery, each bearing the peculiar mark of its own tribe, were very interesting. One a water jug, adjusted on straps to sling over the shoulders, was of particular interest. The strap was woven by the same tribe, the Acoma, on their hand loom.

In Mexican work, there was a beautiful Zebra about a yard and a half in length. the stripes were in the brightest colors, but harmonized so completely that it was a thing of beauty. The pieces of drawn work was also fine.

And then the pieces of beaten brass—who can tell all their beauties. The many dainty figures on each piece, and the thought that they were all beaten by hand, almost passed belief. There were specimens from Damascus, from Russia and Banares, and each had its own peculiar charm.

Some dainty Mexican filigree work in silver, captivated the eye by its extreme beauty. This work is only done in silver, but sometimes parts of it are gilded over.

A Japanese sword was of interest, and then the Indian pipe of peace, with its bowl of stone, its stem of polished wood, was a fine feature.

We will hope that it has been handed about the circle for the last time, and that we may be at peace with every tribe forever.

It was a pleast hour we spent, and our host and hostess were most gracious and kind.

Married Men's Troubles

It was married men's night at the revival meeting.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles in your minds stand up!" shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasm.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the preacher, peering out at this lone sitter, who occupied a chair near the door and apart from the others: "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. "I can't get up; I'm paralyzed!"

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York. Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

The farm is a sort of clock which reflects the time of year.

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., writes us as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it. Sold by all druggists.

Switchmen Seek Settlement.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—S. E. Heberling and James J. Connors, vice presidents of the Switchmen's Union of North America, left Chicago last evening for Buffalo, where they will confer with other officials of the union, the organization relative to the wage dispute in the Chicago district. Both will confer with Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission and Labor Commissioner Nell, in Washington, on Wednesday.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

J. J. Rappley, aged seventy-six, for many years a prominent resident of Vassar, dropped dead while chopping wood.

President Harry Dean of the Owosso Gas company and H. A. Smith, a stockholder in the Shiawassee Lighting & Power company, deny that their concerns are in the recent big power and light merger.

The bringing of a divorce suit against her husband by Mrs. Henry Green of Saginaw got a deputy sheriff into a lot of trouble, because, in serving the papers in the case, he found the wrong Henry Green twice.

About 150 men of the Eureka mine of the Castile Mining company, at Bessemer, are out on what promises to be a strike, over a question of wages for last month. The men say they had a contract with the company that assured them $2.75 each per shift, but that the December pay allows them only $2.55 each.

There is a big postoffice squabble on at Imlay City that promises to become interesting. Dr. George W. Jones, who was postmaster eight years, wants to succeed Postmaster Willard Harwood, who has also been in office eight years. While Jones is favored by the county committee, there is a strong sentiment in favor of the reappointment of Harwood.

The board of supervisors of Flint is in a jangle over the payment of the bills amounting to between $12,000 and $15,000 which were sent in for services and supplies during the recent smallpox epidemic there. While some of the supervisors claim that physicians have in bills for six calls per week on some of the patients, which they declare were unnecessary, others say the bills are correct and should be paid.

If there were no loafers in this old world, the police courts wouldn't have much to do.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

THE HORSE WON.

A Race With a Locomotive When Railroads Were New.

In 1822 the first charter was obtained for a railroad in the United States. It was for a line from Philadelphia to a point on the Susquehanna river, but was never built. On the announcement of the project some one asked one of the Baltimore newspapers, "What is a railroad, anyhow?" The editor was forced to reply that he did not know, but that "perhaps some other correspondent can tell."

Seven years later on the little wooden track along the Lackawanna creek the first locomotive had its trial. The experiment was far from successful, and for a number of years afterward the trains on most of the railroads continued to be drawn by horses. The first locomotive on the Baltimore and Ohio had sails attached. So did the cars. These sails were hoisted when the wind was in the right direction so as to help the locomotive.

The rivalry between the railroads using locomotives and those using horses was very bitter. In August, 1830, an actual trial of speed was held between a horse and one of the pioneer locomotives which did not result in favor of the locomotive. The race was on the Baltimore and Ohio, the locomotive being one built by Peter Cooper, who also acted as engine driver.

The horse, a gallant gray, was in the habit of pulling a car on a track parallel to that used by the locomotive. At first the gray had the better of the race, but when he was a quarter of a mile ahead Mr. Cooper succeeded in getting up enough steam to pass the horse amid terrific applause.

At that moment a band slipped from a pulley, and "though Mr. Cooper lacerated his hands trying to replace it the engine stopped, the horse passed it and came in the winner."

As there were no brakes on the early trains, they used to stop and to start with jolts which threw the passengers across the car. The coupling was with chains, having two or three feet of slack, which the engine in starting took up with a series of fierce jerks. The shock on stopping was even worse and "never failed to send the passengers flying."

There were no whistles in the old days. Signals were given by pushing up the valve on the dome by hand and letting the steam escape with a loud hissing noise. On the New Castle and Frenchtown railroad when the signal was heard the slaves around the station would rush to the arriving train, seize hold of it and pull back with all their might while the agent stuck a piece of wood through a wheel.

There were so many collisions and explosions that some southern railroads introduced what they called a barrier car between the locomotive and the passenger coaches of the train. This barrier car consisted of a platform on wheels upon which were piled six bales of cotton, and it was claimed it would safeguard the passengers in two ways—it would protect them from the blowing up of the locomotive and would form a soft cushion upon which the passengers could land in the event of a collision. There is no record of how this experiment worked out.—American Cultivator.

When Matches Were Introduced.

The Atlas, a London newspaper, published on Jan. 10, 1830, the following paragraph under the head of "Instantaneous Light:" "Among the different methods invented for obtaining light instantaneously ought certainly to be recorded that of Mr. Walker, chemist, Stockton-on-Tees. He supplies the purchaser with prepared matches, which are put into boxes, but are not liable to change in the atmosphere, and also with a piece of fine glass paper folded in two. Even a strong blow will not inflame the matches, because of the softness of the wood underneath, or does rubbing upon wood or any common substance produce any effect except that of spoiling the match. But when one is pinched between the folds of the glass paper and suddenly drawn out it is instantly inflamed. Mr. Walker does not make them for extensive sale, but only to supply the small demand in his own neighborhood."

A VINDICTIVE KNIFE.

The Weapon That Tried Several Times to Kill Kipling.

My mind has flown back down the years to London and into the large corner room on the second floor, Villiers street, Embankment Gardens. On the wall fronting the Thames hangs the most vicious looking knife I have ever seen. It is serpentine in shape, and its downward point is as sharp as a needle.

"What a villainous weapon!" I said.

"Yes," replied Kipling, and I forgot the name he gave it or the section of India from which it came. "That knife has tried to kill me several times. It's always on the watch. When I got it there was affixed to it, like a button on a foil, one joint of a man's backbone. The knife had been run into the vertebrae, given a savage twist and brought away with it a piece of human framework."

As he spoke he approached the glittering, snakelike knife.

"Don't touch it!" I cried. "You ought to keep it in a locked box."

He didn't touch it, so far as I saw, but as he raised his hand the knife dropped like a plummet and stood quivering in the floor within an inch of his boot.

"Look at that!" he said and stood there without moving a muscle until I saw how nearly the sinister blade had come to impaling his foot. — Robert Barr in London World.

A CONVERT.

He Is Now a Firm Believer in Psychic Phenomena.

"Do I believe in the occult? Sure, I do," said the suburbanite as he settled down into his seat in the smoking car and filled his pipe. "I was just as great a skeptic as you are until a week ago. I was firmly convinced that table manipulation was a fake, that mind reading was pure guesswork and that all alleged psychic phenomena could be attributed to natural causes. But now I'm willing to accept the entire propaganda. Nothing is too obscure for me to accept on blind faith. I've experienced a complete change of heart, as they used to say in the old camp meetings.

"You see, it was this way. My friend Buggins, who is really a bug on the occult, induced me to go to a seance with him the other afternoon and prevailed upon me to have a sitting. In spite of my nonbelief he said I was a good subject, and I guess I was. The lady who was delivering the soul fluid told me I should have trouble with a stout, dark woman. All the way out on the train that evening the idea haunted me. I couldn't get it out of my head.

"And, say, she was right. What happened? Why, when I got home I found myself up against the proposition of doing the colored cook. Sure, I believe in the occult. Got a light?"—New York Times.

A Gilbert Story.

Sir W. S. Gilbert, who was one of the few playwrights who defended the stage censor, is noted for his caustic criticisms on anything which does not meet with his approval.

While dining out once some one happened to ask him his opinion of Burne Jones' women. "Too long in the neck," remarked the author of "The Mikado," "when I look at one of them I always feel that she ought to have a joint in it and wear a stocking."—London Tit-Bits.

HIS NOSE WAS SAFE.

But His Nerves Were in a State of Cold Chill Collapse.

"I was sitting on the veranda of a mining town hotel one afternoon a good many years ago," said a veteran engineer, "and was lazily smoking one of the nicest meerschaum pipes you ever saw when out of the tail of my eye I saw that a bad man down at the other end of the veranda had his gun sighted at me. They were a wild lot around there, and I couldn't tell whether he meant to shoot me or the pipe. The chances were in favor of the pipe, however, and it seemed a good chance to test my nerve. I made up my mind to let him shoot and to pretend a careless air, but I'm telling you in the ten or fifteen seconds of waiting the sweat came out at every pore, and my heart pounded my ribs sore. I felt a sort of tick at the bowl of the pipe, heard the crack of the gun and knew that a bullet had passed through the pipe. I got a brace with my hands and feet and waited for a second bullet, and it went through the bowl after the first. I sat there until his fourth bullet had hit the pipe and knocked the bowl off the stem, and then the shooter sauntered up to me, and laughingly said:

"'Excuse me, stranger, but I thought it was imitation.'

"'Same as you are,' I replied.

"My gills hurt him, but he was man enough to tell everybody about my nerve, and the boys chipped in sufficient nuggets to buy me a new fifty dollar pipe. Say, do you know what happened to me when I made an excuse to go upstairs after my old corncob? I had no sooner got into my room than my knees gave out, chills galloped up my spine, and I'll be hanged if I didn't faint away and lie there for ten minutes. It had suddenly occurred to me that the bowl of that pipe was only six inches from my nose while the fellow was doing his shooting, and I have not yet got over touching my nasal organ now and then to see if it is safe."

A TIRED MUSICIAN.

How Strauss Once Snubbed a Russian Court Dignitary.

When Johann Strauss took his orchestra to Russia he had some unusual experiences not generally vouchsafed to those who live outside an autocratic government.

One day he received the Czarina's commands to play before her at her summer resort and was told on arriving there that he would have to rehearse his program three times before the performance. He begged to know the reason for that, but no explanation was given him. These were her majesty's orders, and he could only comply. Still, his astonishment grew when he saw during the three rehearsals an empty court carriage drawn by a pair of horses slowly going back and forth in front of his orchestra.

Throughout the final performance the mysterious act was explained. The empress, having a sharp attack of gout, was obliged to recline in the carriage, her foot on a cushion, while the concert took place, and the object of rehearsal had been to accustom the horses to a full string band lest they should take fright and bolt with her.

At the end of the performance an exalted dignitary of the court bade Strauss follow him to a splendid grand piano, saying:

"Now be good enough to play me all the newest Vienna music."

Although he was pretty fatigued by his three rehearsals and state performance, Strauss thought it expedient to comply, but after he had played continuously for over an hour he stopped, saying, "I presume that will be sufficient?"

"I am not at all tired," coolly rejoined his excellency.

"But I am," said Strauss and rose from the instrument.

The Baths of Old Rome.

At the end of the third century after Christ there were in Rome 11 large public baths and 920 smaller ones. The baths of Caracalla could accommodate at one time 1,600 people; those of Diocletian, 3,600. Taking 1,500 as the average of each of the public baths and 50 as that of each of the private baths, it appears that at any minute bathing accommodations were possible for 62,000 people in ancient Rome. Counting on a population of 2,000,000, the figure generally given as the correct one, it would thus seem that ample privileges were afforded every day for every inhabitant of the Imperial City.—New York American.

An Indigestion Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously.

Dyspeptics cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured are Ida A. Fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn., B. F. Thompson, of Shenandoah, Ia., who actually considers, that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50c. or $1 bottle of the druggist, and, taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach; and that is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proven to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartics, tablets, salts, etc., away.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

MONEY UNIQUELY RAISED.

Widow of Man Who Died in Hole Solicits From Mourners.

New York, Jan. 10.—About 7 o'clock Sunday morning the population of the eastside began to assemble about Grand and Ludlow streets to see the funeral of Isaac Finkelstein, now known in his district as the Ludlow street subway man. But some one else needed the hearse in the morning, so the ceremonies were postponed until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At least a thousand people were on guard until noon, and then the street was jammed and the police reserves were called.

Outside the Finkelstein home, at 55 Ludlow street, was a soap box, faithfully guarded all day by Morris Finkelstein, aged seven. Over the box was the legend in Yiddish: "Please help a poor widow with five children, who lost her husband in a hole." This appeal was effective. It is estimated that with the plate which served as a sort of admission fee for those who wished to view the remains Saturday night and the box on this street Sunday, $250 was raised by the widow.

To Be Shot Unless Pardoned.

City of Mexico, Jan. 10.—The federal supreme court has refused to grant a hearing in the cases of four men under sentence of death for participation in an armed uprising against the government at Vlesca at the time of the outbreak. They will be shot unless pardoned by the president.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

General Booth, head of the Salvation Army, preaching at Clapton, Eng., Sunday, deplored the fact that notwithstanding all appeals, warnings and opportunities for centuries past, men and women were still steeped in wickedness.

Refusing to tell four negroes where they could find the switch key, Daniel Matthews, an employe of the Central of Georgia railway, was found to the track in the outskirts of Macon, Ga., and felt to be crushed. A passenger train passed over Matthews, frightfully mangling him. He will die.

Attorney General Denman of Ohio is to direct his attention to the soaring prices of food. Combinations, partnerships and individuals responsible in any way for the manipulation of prices on the necessaries of life are to be punished, and trade associations are to be broken if there is any law whereby they can be reached.

It is stated that the new attempt to be made by Lieutenant Shackleton, the English explorer, to reach the South Pole will be practically in cooperation with German scientists. Professor Penck, president of the Geographical association, believes the new route proposed to be followed by Lieutenant Shackleton will surely enable him to reach his objective.

A DOE'S STRATAGEM.

Threw the Dogs Off the Scent and Saved Her Fawn.

The following anecdote is related by M. N. Raspail. It is worthy of comparison with the most remarkable of instances of the same kind:

The author one day perceived a doe in full flight before two dogs in the Aigle woods that form a part of the forest of Chantilly. The doe was accompanied by a very young fawn, which appeared quite exhausted and ready to drop. The mother, doubtless well aware of this, slackened her pace and presently stopped close to some thick bramble bushes. She remained some time there with lowered head as if awaiting the onset of her pursuers.

Suddenly an idea seemed to strike her, and with a butt of the head she tossed her fawn right into the middle of the thicket. Then, first advancing gently as if to make sure it was well hidden, she soon set off by rapid bounds in front of the dogs. The latter barking close upon her heels, she made a sudden bend and thus drew them far from the spot where this incident occurred. The howling of the dogs became fainter and fainter, the valiant animal having doubtless led them two kilometers away into the Canardiere peat bogs, where the dogs often lose the scent.

In fact, later they were seen returning to the village in an exhausted condition, while the intelligent mother doubtless returned to the bushes to find the little fawn she had so cleverly hidden and placed in safety.—Vulgarization Scientifique.

SNEAD DISAPPEARS.

Theory of Suicide is the One Generally Entertained.

St. Catherines, Ont., Jan. 10.—Fletcher W. Snead, whose wife was found dead in an East Orange (N. J.) bath tub and who has been employe as second cook at the New Murray hotel here since March, has disappeared.

The theory of suicide is most generally accepted by those who knew him here. They say that they believed him mentally unbalanced.

SECOND CONFERENCE.

Will Be Held in White House Over Abandonment of Merger Suit.

Washington, Jan. 13.—It has been made known at the department of justice, following a talk between Attorney General Wickersham, Frank Kellogg, the trust buster, and C. A. Severance, Mr. Kellogg's law partner, that a second conference between the administration forces and railroad men concerned with the proposed abandonment of the suit against the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger will be held in Washington. In addition to the president, Wickersham, Kellogg and Severance, R. S. Lovett, president of the Harriman system; Maxwell Evarts and former United States Senator John C. Spooner are expected to participate. The conference will be held probably at the White House.

MINERS DID GOOD WORK.

Succeeded in Saving Six From Flame-swept Mine.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 13.—Heroism not been for the bravery of the rescuing party, who labored for hours in the flame-swept Ross vein of the Nottingham colliery of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company, probably all of the six men who were rescued alive and more or less seriously burned, would have been suffocated. The six who were killed either met death instantly in the explosion or died a few minutes later from the burns they sustained as the wave of flame passed over them. These six were working near the heart of the explosion, and there was no chance for them, but the six who were injured were some little distance away.

All the hurt were burned and bruised, with but one exception.

The officials have not yet determined what caused the accident, and this may never be known.

EVEN BAR SHAKESPEARE.

Vigorous is Campaign For Elevation of Stage in Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 13.—The campaign for the elevation of the stage has struck Des Moines with a vengeance. Commissioner John L. Mamery has introduced an ordinance prohibiting the playing of Shakespearian tragedies and all other plays portraying the killing of human beings, or the commission of crime of any form, behind the footlights of any Des Moines theater.

For several weeks Des Moines has been waging war against burlesque shows, motion pictures and the so-called blood and thunder drama. The introduction of this drastic ordinance is the climax. It readily passed the first reading and will be taken up again later in the week.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

By the end of this week Hart will be lighted from the dam by Pentwater lake, as the work of the Interurban Light & Power company is being pushed rapidly forward.

George Yorse, employed in the construction of a new building in Saginaw, A. C., fell from a 35 foot scaffold and suffered a broken shoulder and a fractured skull. The man's condition is said to be serious.

Mrs. Mary Ross has begun suit in Port Huron for divorce against her husband, William, to whom she has been married forty years. She alleges that William was cruel and failed to properly support her.

Colin P. Campbell and F. D. Campau of Grand Rapids have been elected president and secretary, respectively, of the Manistee River Power company, at the annual meeting, just held. The other officers were Traverse City men.

Thought John Ford, aged [illegible], Flint factory employe, had [illegible] sufficiently enough to [illegible] home, but through his body [illegible] he grasped a lamp socket [illegible] with only a severe burn on the hand and a bad shaking up.

On application of the woman's sister, Mrs. William Burns, Coroner Conagry and Sheriff Schmitz will investigate the death of Mrs. Alice Jahn of Saginaw, which occurred Jan. 2. Mrs. Burns believes her sister died of poisoning and asks that the body be exhumed and the contents of the stomach analyzed.

While his train was running two miles into Shepard, Charles Schultz, an Ann Arbor road baggageman, heard a peculiar thumping which he feared would break out the floor of the car. When the train stopped an investigation showed that an axle had broken. The wheels, held only by the journal boxes, kept the rails. Had they run off a serious wreck would have occurred.

BIG FIRE IN GRAND RAPIDS

Flames Have Destroyed $500,000 Worth of Property.

TWO BIG BUILDINGS GONE

Fire Began in Shepard Building, and When Thought to Be Under Control Broke Out Again and Spread to Manufacturers' Building—Newspaper Plant Completely Ruined.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 13.—The biggest fire this city has known for several years occurred last night, resulting in the destruction of two big buildings and losses aggregating over $500,000.

The fire broke out in the furniture shipping room of Young & Chaffee, in the Shepard building, at Fountain and Ionia streets, early in the evening, and spread rapidly through the building. The furniture company's stock was completely destroyed, and the newspaper plant of the Daily News, on the first floor, was very badly damaged by fire and water.

At 9 o'clock the fire was thought to be under control, but soon broke out again with renewed fury and spread to the big Manufacturers' building, a seven-story structure, occupied as show rooms for the semi-annual furniture expositions. The flames swept through this building with terrific rapidity, the furniture with which it was filled making ready fuel. At 10:30 the roof of the building fell in, carrying everything with it to the ground.

Save Club Building.

The Peninsular club building then caught fire, but the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze there and saving the structure.

When the roof of the big Manufacturers' building fell, it seemed as if only a miracle could save the greatest part of the business district, but with a change of the wind to the north the firemen became more successful in their fight.

The Daily News was completely drowned out by water, and the loss on the plant will aggregate $20,000.

The fire will not interfere with the furniture exposition in any way. Many of the burned-put exhibitors will continue business through the season with photographs.

A list of losses follows: Manufacturers' Building association, $250,000; contents of the Manufacturers' building, $75,000; Shepard estate, $75,000; Daily News Publishing company, $20,000; Young & Chaffee Furniture company, $75,000; contents of the Shepard building, $12,000; Peninsula club, $3,000; other smaller losses, $40,000.

Among the losers in the furniture building on exhibits of furniture there were the Lullabye Cradle company, J. C. Widman & Co. and the Humphrey-Widman company.

ELECT OLD OFFICERS.

Gleaners, in Session at Saginaw, Will Probably Do So.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 13.—It is probable that most, if not all, of the supreme officers of the Gleaners will be re-elected. It looked for a time as thought there would be a contest, but the opposition has died away.

The financial statement presented showed receipts the last two years of $722,000 and disbursements of $729,000, with assets on hand of $300,000.

Find Abandoned Babe in Depot.

Cadillac, Mich., Jan. 13.—About 5 o'clock in the morning the night watchman at the G. R. & I. railway depot found a three or four weeks old baby in the ladies' waiting room. The child was well dressed and wrapped in a blanket, lying near a steam radiator. Near it was a telescope filled with clothes of good quality. There was no mark on any of the things to give the police a clue. The babe probably will be sent to the St. Joseph home.

May Dam the River Raisin.

Monroe, Mich., Jan. 13.—Plans are on to secure the necessary legal permission to build one or more water power dams on the River Raisin in the vicinity of Dundee and Petersburg. Ex-Senator Charles A. Ward, formerly of Ann Arbor, is one of those back of the proposition. A hearing has been asked from the state railroad commission for permission to issue bonds to develop power on the Raisin.

PAULHAN SOARS TO GREAT HEIGHT

French Aviator Has Broken All World's Records.

CLIMBED UP 4,165 FEET

Fifty Thousand People Saw Him Do the Stunt at Los Angeles—Onlookers Became Wildly Excited as He Went Higher—Curtiss Started to Do High Fly, but Darkness Prevented.

Los Angeles, Jan. 13.—Louis Paulhan, French aviator, late Wednesday afternoon, broke all world's records here for altitude, reaching a height of 4,165 feet. He announced early in the afternoon that he was going to try for the altitude record and made several early flights, but did not go very high, and the crowd gave up hope of seeing any particularly high flights.

Shortly after half past four, the French aviator, unannounced, appeared from near the aeroplane tent and flew directly past the grand stand at a height of about 30 feet, and, with a low bow and sweep of his arm, he lifted the nose of his aeroplane in the air. The crowd knew that this was to be an attempt for height and cheered the daring "bird man." Round and round the course he went, each time going higher. After he reached an altitude of 1,000 feet the announcer began giving the elevations.

"Fifteen hundred feet," was the first call that aroused the crowd

"Two thousand feet," and they shouted wildly. From that time on enthusiasm was at a high pitch, and when the announcer cried, "Paulhan is now at 3,230 feet, the world's record," the crowd went mad. Paulhan soared higher and higher. Before he began his descent the announcer had shouted through is megaphone, "Four thousand six hundred feet." It was announced officially later as 4,165 feet.

Fifty thousand persons clambered down from the grand stand and gathered in front of the starting point, where Paulhan was to finish. When he reached the ground he was seized by those nearest to him and carried on their shoulders up and down the field, but at last he broke from the crowd and rushed into the arms of his wife. Weeping with joy, they embraced. It was an hour before the crowd let them leave the field. Meanwhile, when Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, saw that Paulhan had broken the record, he tuned up his new machine and started from the tent. It was too late, however, as it was getting dark, and after rounding the course four times he returned to the tent for the night.

"I'll go after that record tomorrow," was Curtiss' declaration as he left the field.

SEEKS HUSBAND'S RELEASE

Mrs. Morse Circulates Petitions For Others to Sign.

New York, Jan. 13.—Lying on the counter next to the register at the Hotel St. Regis can be found a document which many read and sign. It is a petition to the president, praying for the release of Charles W. Morse, the banker, from the federal prison at Atlanta.

The petition was prepared by Mrs. Morse, who has gone to work to get her husband out of prison. Mrs. Morse has received many letters of sympathy, and she got the idea she would like to see this sympathy take a practical form. Some time ago she took offices in the building of the National Bank of North America, which her husband built, and there she and her secretary keep office hours and attend to correspondence.

CARELESS PRIEST.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Scattered About His Home.

New Orleans, Jan. 13.—Mary Hardy, a young Irish girl who had been housekeeping a few months for Father Nicholas Simon, priest of the Catholic church of St. Francis de Sales, who died Jan. 1, has reported to the authorities that there was a great deal of loose money laying around the father's house.

An examination brought to light $30,000 in cash. The money was found in book cases, envelopes, on mantel pieces and between the pages of books. Father Simon was not a miser, but careless about money, having no use for it. All this money goes to his legal heirs in France.

NAMES NEW FORESTRY CHIEF

President Has Chosen Henry S. Graves.

TAKES PINCHOT'S OLD PLACE

Albert F. Potter of Arizona Will Be Appointed Associate Forester—Mr. Graves Assumes Charge Feb. 1, Potter Being in Charge in Meantime. Appointments Came as Surprise.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Announcement has been made at the White House that Henry S. Graves, director of the Yale forest school, and for two years assistant chief of the old division of forestry under Gifford Pinchot, had been selected to succeed Mr. Pinchot as chief of the forestry service. Albert F. Potter of Arizona, assistant forester, who has just reached Washington, will be appointed associate forester. Mr. Graves will take up his new duties Feb. 1, and Mr. Potter will continue in charge meantime.

The appointment of Graves came with surprising quickness. Ever since the dismissal of Mr. Pinchot last week both the president and Secretary Wilson have been represented as being deeply concerned over the selection of a suitable man. Captain Seth Bullock, United States marshal for South Dakota, and Mr. Potter were mentioned as prominent candidates, but Mr. Taft was said to be desirous of taking his time in determining his choice.

It was stated that Mr. Graves graduated from Yale in 1892 and was trained in forestry in this country and by European study. He was connected with the reconnaisance forest survey of the Black Hills in 1897.

The house statement says, too, that Mr. Potter, who is to be the new associate forester, is a western man, a native of California; that he has been connected with the forestry department for eight or nine years, and that he is well acquainted with western conditions and thoroughly informed with regard to all the policies and practices of the forest service.

TWO LADS WERE SHOT.

Stranger Kills One and Wounds Other While They Coast.

New York, Jan. 13.—Wounded by a bullet that entered his abdomen and passed out at his back, six-year-old Arthur A. Shibley ran to his home at 434 West One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street and told his mother that he had been shot by a big dark man.

"The man shot Robbie Lomas too," said Arthur. "But Robbie could not run, and I left him in the park."

Robbie Lomas, who lived on the same floor with the Shibley boy, later was found dead. He had been killed by two bullets that had entered his back.

The boys had gained permission of their mothers to go coasting on the hill less than half an hour before they were shot.

In spite of his wound, Arthur remained conscious until he was taken to the Washington Heights hospital.

Arthur said that he and Robbie had been coasting only a little while when the man came up to them and, without their having said a word to him, fired his pistol. The man, the boy said, was wearing a light overcoat and a cowboy hat. He had a black beard and was very dark.

VESSEL LOST MANY MEN.

Some Died of Beri-beri; One Washed Overboard; Others Ill.

Savannah, Jan. 13.—The British steamship Goodwin, Captain W. A. Peters, has reached here after a long and trying voyage. The captain was short seventeen men. Of those missing some had died of beri-beri, one had been washed overboard, and others had been left at Montevido.

On Nov. 18 the Goodwin sailed from Galeta, Chili, loaded with nitre, and set her course for Savannah.

The Goodwin had scarcely left port when beri-beri broke out.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Important Thing

What That Was the Doctor Told Mary Trenton.

By JEANNE O. LOIZEAUX.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Dr. John Trevor lifted his big rumpled black head from his book and, with his mind still full of "Minor Surgery," scowled on his friend who had for some time been talking unheeded. He concluded to give Morton a minute's attention and then if necessary put him bodily forth from the office and be rid of him.

"Come out of your hole for once and help a fellow in a pinch," Morton was saying in evident continuance of a (to him) interesting subject. "Be human. You used to be occasionally decent to a girl in college. I need you—honest, Trevor. Miss Dell is here at the Kings' with her cousin. You knew her at school—Mary Trenton. It seems that one will not stir without the other. I wish to goodness you would take Miss Trenton to the club dance tonight."

The doctor looked his friend over with good natured contempt. He was a snapshot diagnostician. No need to look at Morton's tongue. It always proclaimed its owner's ailment in time.

"Again!" he remarked caustically. "The hundredth time since I have known you! It's Miss Dell, I take it, Morton, if occurs to me to inquire why in thunder you don't marry and have done with your sufferings. Why be the eternal target? What is the important thing in your life anyway? If the law is like medicine you should give some time to your profession, and it looks to me as if you do nothing but trail about after some pretty bundle of skirts. It's well enough, but you don't seem to be landing anywhere in particular."

"Well, it's serious this time. If I thought she would—have me I'd—do—anything; I'm hard hit. I think she likes me too. But how much? I can't get her alone if you don't help me. Nobody else in this empty town is fit to amuse that little cousin of hers. You remember her? Little and blond and—awfully sweet, you know."

The doctor tried to call up Mary Trenton's face.

"Seems to me I do," he said thoughtfully. Morton groaned.

"To think of any human man having to remember Mary Trenton—that is, unless he had seen her cousin! Are you going to be decent the next two weeks, Trevor?"

"Sure thing, boy! Make your plans, and I'll play dummy, anything to do you a good turn. But let me tell you this—the important thing with me is to build up my practice and ground myself at every turn in my profession. I want another year abroad; I want the best piano money can buy, for I miss my music; I want a pedigreed Boston terrier and a motorcar that can't be beat. But I don't want a wife—not now. I can't more than support myself yet in the style to which I have been accustomed, and I don't want to touch what Aunt Joanna left me. I want to make good myself. I tell you this because you are a vile matchmaker and because you may as well know now that if you have anything up your sleeve about me and Miss Trenton you can shake it out now and have done; that's all. Call around, and I'll be in gala togs and do your bidding. Now get out!"

Morton obeyed.

That was the beginning of two weeks unparalleled in the history of John Trevor, M. D. Morton tried his complaisance to the utmost. Constantly every evening, many afternoons, every spare minute and many minutes that really could not be spared he danced attendance on Mary Trenton, while his friend won his labored way to the heart of Eleanor Dell. Mary was used to slavish attentions, and this great rugged, bluff, brilliant, totally delightful man of science piqued her pride, stimulated her interest. He was beneath his perfect courtesy indifferent, wary—nay, he seemed at times even disapproving. She felt for the first time in her spoiled young life inadequate and futile. It seemed that even her great beauty did not blind him to her little faults.

Dr. Trevor began to be interested, to think that with a little training the girl might really concern herself with the real things of life. He took her through the hospitals, and she found a new life of helping open to her vision. All these poor sick minds and bodies were to be healed! She felt more than ever silly and futile, more than ever humble and admiring. The doctor explained everything to her, told her of the physician's life, its hard work, its high aims, its stimulus to better conditions for the world.

The girls began to speak of returning to their own house in another week, and summer festivities began to multiply in their honor. The doctor actually neglected his practice, and his research work was forgotten. He did not realize what was upon him until one night he woke from a dream of setting a broken arm without giving an anaesthetic and found it was Mary Trenton's round little arm. It seemed a horrible thing to hurt her. He was cursing himself for a brute when at last he found himself sitting straight up in bed. Then he cursed himself for an utter fool that he could let a tiny yellow headed slip of a laughing girl disturb his scientific peace even in a dream! He resolved to get out of the danger zone. He was glad she was going away.

But the next night was even worse, for he could not sleep. He now knew, with a sort of terror, that he was in love. His prognosis was guarded. Did it always hurt like this—love? He would, save that shame deterred him, have asked the experienced Morton, now safely havened in an engagement to Miss Dell. But he, John Trevor, M. D., would not weakly settle into mere happy domesticity. He would devote every energy to his noble profession. He would fight off this weakness.

He prescribed a dose of absence for himself. In the morning he phoned to Morton that he had an important case and would be busy all day and evening. Sorry, but it could not be helped. Then in his private office he proceeded by the light of his reason to convince himself that it was but a senseless fancy. Men often got over worse ailments. Then there came again before his vision her little fair face with the new sweet, helping look in the deep blue eyes, the serious attention to his words—as if his words mattered. He could not help wondering whether he could not have made her care. He supposed Hilton, the idiot, would take his place in the moonlight picnic party "on" for that evening. He went into his laboratory and began to toil.

Long past noon he snatched his forgotten lunch. He was restless. Well, hot as it was, he would have a walk. He had a theory that plenty of fresh air and stiff exercise would cure any known form of temporary insanity. He started out. But the girl went with him. Coming back, perspiring and disgusted, he determined firmly not to pass the King house. In the first place it was out of his way, and she might be in the big old garden or on the veranda, and he would have to go in a minute and be decent. No, he would not see her. Still—well, he would go past, for really he should see old Mrs. Patton across the way and ask about her hay fever. His step quickened. He made his call, talking with his lazy, comfortable old patient on the porch. As he left her she pursued him with gossip.

"Ah, there goes Percy Hilton!" she exclaimed. "I suppose, as usual, he is going to see Mary Trenton. Elizabeth King would be delighted to have her cousin marry him. Isn't it a pity that money and brains don't always go together?" He laughed and got away. But his blood boiled. Hilton, that degenerate son of the overrich—it would be hideous! He did Hilton injustice, however, for he really was decent enough in his way. The doctor decided to call at the Kings' just for a moment. As he turned the corner he saw the other man swinging along, evidently bound for the same goal.

And, like a flash, John Trevor knew that there was but one important thing in the whole world, and that was to get to Mary Trenton—first. Surely that fellow would not have the unbelievable impudence to propose to her! Surely she would never accept him if he did! As he came to the foot of the long garden, walking in his restless, headlong fashion, something twitched at his coat sleeve. He turned to see Mary Trenton. The girl was leaning over the green hedge, smiling up to him, her great garden hat pushed back.

"Is it so important as all that, your case?" she queried, mischief in her eyes. "If somebody is really dying I will not detain you; otherwise it is too hot to race like that—past your friends especially." He looked down on her, helpless.

"The only important thing in this world is—you," he said suddenly, while she trembled and blushed at his tone.

"Happy to be even—a thing—to you," she murmured, mischief still in her eye. His look rebuked her.

"Do you—can you—Mary—I adore you! Will you marry me? Will you?" It was sufficiently precipitate, and the sun was very hot, and she saw Hilton looking over the lawn for her.

"Tell me—will you?" The girl's face was very happy, but she was yet a woman and would not be too ready with a reply.

"Come—over into the shade," she said. "I don't want—that man to find me." The doctor cleared the hedge, and like two naughty children they sneaked behind the shrubbery to safety in a tree hidden corner. Then he faced her inquiringly. Tears suddenly filled her eyes, and she laid her arm up across her face like a child. He took it down and drew her close.

"Dearest, dearest, what is it? Won't you tell me?" She drew away and looked at him seriously.

"I was—afraid—you—weren't going to ask me!"

Was ever anything so foolish? He straightway informed Mary Trenton—and thought he was telling the truth—that from the first time he had set eyes on her he had loved her and would have followed her round the world to "ask her." The really foolish thing would have been to devote a big warm heart to a mere profession. Love was the important thing.

Balloons and Eagles.

A book has been discovered in Vienna bearing on its title page this legend: "About the invention of air navigation by means of balloons and eagles, by Jakob Kieserer; published at the expense of the author by Herr Loeschenxohl, Kohlmarkt, Vienna, 1801." It is an elaborate treatise on aviation in which a balloon is steered through the air by eagles which have been "trained and deprived of their talons." Minute instructions are given as to how the birds should be harnessed, and suggestions are made as to the employment of double teams and relays. The author-inventor expresses the hope that his idea may be employed first to expedite the delivery of letters and dispatches and that persons competent as trainers of giant birds will carry his "wonderful idea" into execution.

A RESTRAINING HAND.

Its Action Followed by a Voice That Warned.

"Patrick H. McCarren once told me of a funny incident that happened in Rome," said a Brooklyn lawyer. "McCarren said that on his first visit to Rome, after he had seen the Coliseum and the Forum, he visited the Ara Coeli church, on the left of the Capitoline hill. He climbed the grand stairway leading to the church, the finest open air stairway in the world. He pushed back the heavy leather curtain, and, entering, he found a service in progress. So he put his hat on the marble floor at his side and took a seat.

"After ten minutes or so he decided he would go and reached down for his hat. But a restraining hand was laid on his, and he desisted. He knew, of course, that some churches don't like people to leave in the midst of a service.

"Ten or fifteen minutes more passed. The service still continued. Senator McCarren got impatient and again reached for his hat. But again the unseen hand restrained him from the rear.

"A little later, however, the senator quite lost patience. This was, he told himself, an important service, of course. Nevertheless he did not propose to miss his luncheon, and it would harm no one if he slipped out quietly.

"So a third time he reached for his hat, and the invisible hand a third time detained him. He persevered, however. The silent hand pushed, and his silent hand pushed against it. But just as he was conquering in the struggle a voice said in good American:

"'Cheese it, boss; that's my hat you're taking.'"—Exchange.

"Chinese" Gordon.

It was there that I saw General Gordon for the only time. He was a curiously listless looking, nervous little man, with a sort of furtive look and expression as if he always anticipated something unpleasant. He was not agreeable or encouraging, and he gave very little outward evidence of the power and influence he possessed. He spoke little and seemed bored when he was addressed or asked any question.—Lady St. Helier's Memoirs.

Made His Ideas Flow.

I used to write for a medical periodical. On returning home one day after a very heavy day's work at the hospital and feeling completely exhausted I found a note from the editor, "Please let me have an article on such and such a subject tonight." I sat down with pen and paper before me, but not a word could I write. Then I lay back lazily and began to speculate as to the cause of my want of ideas. I thought: "The brain is the same as it was yesterday, but yesterday I was not tired. Perhaps it is the feebler circulation that prevents the brain from acting. If the blood does not go up to the brain I may bring the brain down to the blood." I therefore placed my head flat on the table, looking sideways at the paper, and began to write easily. On raising my head again every idea fled, so I placed my head again down on the table and finished the article with my head in that position.—Sir T. Lauder Brunton in Practitioner.

Work of the Earthworm.

When we behold a wide, turf covered expanse we should remember that its smoothness, on which so much of its beauty depends, is mainly due to all the inequalities having been slowly leveled by worms. It is a marvelous reflection that the whole of the superficial mold over any such expanse has passed and will pass again every few years through the bodies of worms. The plow is one of the most ancient and most valuable of man's inventions, but long before he existed the land was, in fact, regularly plowed by earthworms. It may be doubted whether there are many other animals which have played so important a part in the history of the world as have these lowly organized creatures. Some other animals, however, still more lowly organized—namely, corals—have done far more conspicuous work in having constructed innumerable reefs and islands in the great oceans, but these are almost confined to the tropical zones.

Tarring and Feathering.

The first recorded instance of tarring and feathering a human being was in 1189, during the time of the crusades. In that year, the first of the reign of Richard I., a law was passed that "any robber voyaging with the crusaders shall be first shaved, then hot pitch shall be poured upon him and a cushion of feathers shook over him." After this the criminal was to be put ashore at the first landing place the ship reached.

What Might Have Been.

"That man Billiu lacks courage and energy."

"Yes, confound him!"

"Why do you say that?"

"Because he was courting my wife long before I met her. If he had had a little more courage and energy— But what's the use of talking about it now?"

The B. M. Hyde Co. Offer a Remedy for Catarrh. The Medicine Costs Nothing if It Fails.

When a medicine effects a successful treatment in a very large majority of cases, and when we offer that medicine on our own personal guarantee that it will cost the user nothing if it does not completely relieve catarrh, it is only reasonable that people should believe us, or at least put our claim to a practical test when we take all the risk. These are facts which we wish the people to substantiate. We want them to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, a medicine prepared from a prescription of a physician with whom catarrh was a specialty, and who has a record of thirty years of enviable success to his record.

We receive more good reports about Rexall Mucu-Tone than we do of all other catarrh remedies sold in our store, and if more people only knew what a thoroughly dependable remedy Rexall Mucu-Tone is, it would be the only catarrh remedy we would have any demand for.

Rexall Mucu-Tone is quickly absorbed and by its therapeutic effect tends to disinfect and cleanse the entire mucous membraneous tract, to destroy and remove the parasites which injure the membraneous tissues, to soothe the irritation and heal the soreness, stop the mucous discharge, build up strong, healthy tissue and relieve the blood and system of diseased matter. Its influence is toward stimulating the muco-cells, aiding digestion and improving nutrition until the whole body vibrates with healthy activity. In a comparatively short time it brings about noticeable gain in weight, strength, good color and feeling of buoyancy.

We urge you to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, beginning a treatment today. At any time you are not satisfied, simply come and tell us, and we will quickly return your money without question or quibble. We have Rexall Mucu-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rochester only at our store,—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF NEW RESIDENTS.

For the benefit of any who have recently become residents of the town and others, who for some reason or other, have not as yet found their way to the Public Library, a few facts regarding it may be of interest.

Occupying a handsome and commodious building, surrounded by neatly kept grounds, the library contains a hallway, central delivery, stock-room, reference room, office and two large reading rooms—one for ladies and one for gentlemen, comfortably warm and well lighted, improved lights having been recently installed.

On the reading room rack, are to be found 20 or 25 leading peroodicals suited to various tastes and ages.

In the reference room, 4 sets of encyclopedias, Topical History, Modern Eloquence, Success Library, a fine Natural History, Dictionaries, Maps, Etc.

On the stock-room shelves are over 4,000 books, including history, biography, travel, poetry, fiction, and carefully selected books for children and young people, all freely accessible to everybody.

A card system of charging was adopted three years ago, and in that time, 1250 reader's cards have been issued.

From 100 to 300 books are added annually and last year the circulation reached over 13,000 volumes, an average of over four books for every man, woman and child in the town. Books and subjects are catalogued in a card cabinet and many thousand cards containing references to subjects, apt to be called for, are thus filed. The stringency of the old rule restricting card holders to one book at a time has been relaxed and readers may have a book of fiction and one to three books of other classes as needed for study or recreation, and time extended on certain books used for reference. Club calendars placed in the library at the beginning of the season are carefully looked over, the resources of the library ascertained, and if necessary, request made to the Library Board for more material.

Much time and attention is devoted to the interests of the schools in looking up supplementary material for their work, and helping pupils in the use of encyclopedias and other reference books. Teachers, by giving due notice may have available material on any special topics, when needed.

Such is a brief outline of the library and its work.

The management aims to make it popular and helpful to all classes, but more especially to foster in young people a taste for good literature that may be useful in later years. Some children leave school from the grades and others are unable to complete the high school course. To such, a well selected library may be an inestimable benefit in supplementing an otherwise defective education.

MRS. HUEY,
Librarian.

BASE BALL.

What the Various Clubs are Doing Around Us.

By an arrangement between management of the Flint baseball team and President Hoffer of the Quincy, Ill., club, they have been allowed the use of the ball grounds in that city for a training place—before the season opens.

They will meet at Quincy, Apr. 18, for practice. Eddie Hew, Manager for Bay City last year, will act in the same capacity for Flint this year.

Manager BoShear of the Jackson team, is quite busy these days. He is busy signing some youngsters for the try-outs in the spring. Wonder if his young son will be among them?

Among those mentioned are three brothers, W. H. James, Sr., of Ann Arbor, Bundy Brief of Traverse City, and Wm. Zulinski of Manistee. Roy Lammoreaux of Vicksburg is a catcher and will try for a job.

New baseball league to be known as the U. S. League has been announced in New York, to include Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Providence, Patterson, Newark and Trenton.

With the January number the Atlantic Monthly notably alters and improves its appearance. The alterations, however, are rather in the direction of perfecting the appearance of the magazine as it is than of instituting any revolutionary changes. We note that the type is larger, the pages more ample, and are glad to notice that the sewed back is retained, thus enabling the reader to hold the magazine open without discomfort.

It is light weight, easy to handle and easy to clean; makes kitchen work a delight instead of drudgery; saves your money, time, fuel; protects your health against metal poisoning and serious troubles resulting from chipping of small particles into the food, which is one of the dangers from the use of the old style enameled wares.

You buy patent carpet sweepers, egg-beaters, dish-washers, clothes-wringers and many other time and labor saving conveniences, but there is nothing that will prove a greater practical household blessing than the "1892" Pure Spun Aluminum Ware.

Lose no time in seeing for yourself what it will do. Your money back if this ware fails to do what is claimed for it. SATTERTHWAITE BROS., Tecumseh, Mich.

The Man-of-war Bird.

The frigate pelican, or man-of-war bird, is usually met with by travelers in the tropics. Although when stripped of its feathers it is hardly larger than a pigeon, yet no man can touch at the same time the tips of its extended wings. The long wing-bones are exceedingly light, and the whole apparatus of air cells is extremely developed, so that its real weight is very trifling. It flies at a great height above the water and from that elevation pounces down on fish, especially preferring the poor, persecuted flying fish for its prey. According to some authors, the name of man-of-war bird was given to it because its appearance was said to foretell the coming of a ship, probably because the frigate pelican and real frigates are equally adverse to storms, and both like to come into harbor if the weather threatens.

Drinking and Smoking in Korea.

The Koreans are inveterate smokers of green tobacco, which they use in pipes with tiny bowls and stems two or three feet long. They stick their pipes down the back of the neck when not using them

There is a deal of drinking, too, though they have many proverbs against it—"Heaven and earth are too small for a drunken man," "White whisky makes a red face," "There is no bottom to the appetite for drink."

Broke.

They were drinking soda in the Gentlewoman's club.

"I wish," said the fat one with gray hair, "that you could break my daughter Nell of bridge."

The young one in pink smiled faintly. "I did break her last night," she said.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Judicial.

"Proxy old Judge Talkit got hold of Smythe the other day and treated the poor fellow to a regular judicial proceeding."

"What was it?"

"First he arrested his progress and then he tried his patience."—Baltimore American.

SERVED ON ICE.

The boy who fell on the ice last Saturday, knocking out a few front teeth, should remember that it is safest to fall on the bosom of his pants.

Why—do so many of our towns people choose the four-corners of Chicago street as the scene of their downfall?

We would not be surprised if the ice crop is higher in price next summer, as it has been so severely damaged by falls.

Why can't we go around the corner when we fall—so no one can see us? It would be less humiliating.

"A word to the wise is sufficient." In these times of icy sidewalks, it is useless to look for a soft spot, to fall on.

Oh no, John. That was not Hally's comet you saw, when you were lying on the ice, it was quite another constellation.

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, rely on Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used. Sold by all druggists.

Farmers' Institute

HELD AT TECUMSEH JAN. 12, 1910 AT GRANGE HALL. LARGE ATTENDANCE. INTERESTING MEETING:

State Speaker Voorhees of Pontiac and Many Others From Home and Abroad.

It was our priviledge to be present at the Farmer's Institute, Wednesday January 12th, and though we are not farmers, yet we were very much interested in the proceedings.

The meeting opened with singing by the quartette, followed by prayer by Rev. D. Stanley Shaw. The discussion on the question, "Should the Farmer Maintain an Orchard" was ably presented by Peter Voorhees of Pontiac, state speaker of the M. A. C. followed by Jos. Keeney of Tecumseh and David Woodard of Clinton. The conclusions reached, as we understand, were, every farmer should have a small orchard to supply his own needs, also that eternal vigilance in fighting the various parasites that infested an orchard, was necessary to make it pay. We should be very sorry to see all the old orchards through the county laid low, and think it would be difficult for one to draw the line between those best to keep or destroy.

A genuine good farmer's dinner was discussed about this time and we think the vote if taken would have been unanimous in its favor.

The busy bee was the next subject to claim our attention and we found it very interesting. Mr. Foote presented the subject in a very pleasing manner, showing a practical knowledge and thorough application of the same, brought good results.

Mr. Clyde English of Clinton was the next speaker. His remarks were right to the point and showed the deep interest he had in this direction.

In the absence of Mr. Cutting the discussion closed after a few general remarks.

The further discussions on the program were very ably discussed by the various speakers. Mrs. N. L. Bryan gave a fine rendering of "Prayer and Potatoes" which was very much enjoyed by the audience.

Altogether it was a very pleasant meeting and as one looked over the assembled crowd, they were impressed with the fact that the man on the farm is a power, not a nonenity, and that to his knowledge and skill we are indebted for that which maintains our bodies and strengthens us for our work, whatever it may be.

Installation Day At Tecumseh Grange.

A good time at the Grange Hall is not a novelty to those of us who belong there; we are always sure of it. One of our corner stones is a square deal and a good square meal.

A good sized crowd enjoyed the dinner after which came the installation, Brother Harry Smith and Sister Smith of our own Grange, acting as installing officers. The work was well done. Neighboring Granges will do well to secure their services for the same work.

After the installation, timely remarks were made by Rev. Hartzog, Past Master Mrs. Hall and Past Master D. T. Hall. We were especially glad to have Brother and Sister Hall with us again. Sickness in the home have kept them away for several months.

Tecumseh Grange is very much alive and starts the New Year expecting to accomplish much for the good of its own members and for the good of the order in general.

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. "I can't get up: I'm paralyzed!"

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York. Sole Agents for the United States.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

PARIS RAGPICKERS.

An Occupation That Is Passed Along From Father to Son.

The ragpickers of Paris are born to their work, the occupation being passed from father to son for generations. Each ragpicker family has its own district, which is inherited by the children and grandchildren.

In spite of all the progress made in modern and elegant Paris barrels of waste are piled up on the streets in front of many buildings on beautiful boulevards in the early morning hours, and it is the privilege and in fact the mission of the ragpickers to examine this refuse.

They have use for everything, and but little is left after they have passed, their thoroughness being one reason why the system is still allowed. Every scrap of paper has its market; rags are gathered for paper manufacturers; shoes go back to leather dealers.

Old sardine and preserved meat tins are used for making playthings, old bones produce gelatin and glue, lemons and orange peels are greatly sought after and sold at the rate of a cent a pound to perfume and sirup manufacturers, old metals are highly prized, cigar stubs go to tobacco factories, and even stale vegetables are carted away.

The quarters of the ragpickers of Paris are just outside the confines of the city—sections carefully avoided by most people who do not belong to the guild. Every member of the family, from the oldest to the three-year-old, takes part in the sorting of the spoils, and it often happens that members of a family die either from poisoning from stale food or from a cut from one of the tins.—Popular Mechanics.

"A Nine Days' Wonder."

The memorable reign of Lady Jane Grey is said to have given rise to the phrase "A nine days' wonder." Lady Jane was proclaimed queen of England July 10, 1553, four days after the death of Edward VI. After the lapse of a period of nine days, on July 19, she relinquished her title to the crown, thus terminating her reign in the short space of a week and a half. A noted English historian says: "Thus we come to the end of the diary of that short and troubled reign that from its length is said to have given rise to the now (1626 popular phrase, 'A nine days' wonder.'"

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or bsicuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread, sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

AN EXCITING RIDE.

Galloping Over a Rough Mountain Road in the Andes.

In going over one of the mountain roads on the way to the crest of the Andes the traveler has need of steady nerves. A passage in "The Andean Land," by C. S. Osborn, describes the journey.

The road is narrow and rocky and rutty and steep, with no walls to speak of except tumbledown ones that increase the danger by their false suggestion of safety, and in one place the wagon would fall 2,000 feet if it should roll off the edge of the mountain.

The road has no graceful sweeps or round, easy curves as it takes its way up the titanic heights, but rather it zigzags like the teeth of a saw, ascending in short stretches and doubling back at sharply acute angles, leaving very little room for a team and wagon to turn in when driven slowly and carefully and two abreast.

Now, imagine, if you can, the horses driven madly in a gallop, no trot—that would be slow—but in quick, short, jerky jumps, such as the mustang-like animals would make under the saddle when pressed.

The short, high coach follows the cavorting horses, jerking, careening and springing like a small boat sailing in a wildly choppy sea. You perceive that the wheels are strong and the springs, too, and the whole rig evidently intended for chariot racing.

The driver groans, yells, whistles shrilly, cracks his thick rawhide whip, lashes his horses and does everything he knows that will inspire fear and induce speed. All this you become accustomed to in a measure on your dash up the narrow road dug into and blown out of the giant ribs of the towering mountains.

AN INSPIRING TRIBUTE.

Touching Scene That Occurred in the House of Representatives.

From a volume by Hon. A. E. Stevenson, "Something of Men I Have Known," is taken this account of an incident which deserves a place in memory:

A touching scene occurred in the house of representatives a number of years ago when an aged member from New Jersey arose and for the first time addressed the speaker. All eyes were turned in his direction as he stood calmly awaiting recognition. He was tall, spare and erect. His venerable appearance and kindly expression, coupled with most courteous manners, at once commanded attention. As in husky tones he again said "Mr. Speaker!" there came from the farthest end of the great hall in a whisper, but distinctly heard by all the words, "Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt." A moment later and from the door and gallery many voices blended in the familiar refrain, "Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?"

The ovation which immediately followed was such as is rarely witnessed in the great hall. Business was suspended for the moment and the band of the new member warmly grasped by the choice representatives of all parties and sections. It was an inspiring tribute, one worthily bestowed. The member was Thomas Dunn English, author of the little poem, sung in palace and cottage, which has found its way into all languages and touched

CANADA'S NAVAL PLAN.

Will Build Four Cruisers and Six Destroyers.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 13.—Sir Wilfred Laurier has announced in parliament that it was the intention of the government to adopt a larger naval program, involving the construction of eleven ships. The premier added that the estimated cost of the eleven vessels would total about $12,368,000, and if they were constructed in Canada there would be an extra cost of 22 per cent.

It is the plan of the government to begin construction at once, and build in Canada, if possible. He said there would be four cruisers and six destroyers.

TELLTALE PICTURES.

Paintings That Have Done the Work of Detectives.

BROUGHT CRIMES TO LIGHT.

Instances of Where the Canvas of an Artist Led to a Confession of Guilt. A Woman's Portrait and a Stolen Diamond Ornament.

An artist who had suddenly become almost famous by his production of a painting exhibited at the Royal academy was one day called upon by a man whose visit was productive of the most extraordinary and undreamed of consequences.

The picture represented a lonely stretch of beach, upon which the sea was beating in long, creamy rollers. In the foreground, bending over a dead body, was a man with a wild expression on his face and with a naked knife in his hand. A ship's boat, evidently just beached, was also in the picture, and by the side of the murdered man was a bag of gold. The picture portrayed the advent of two castaways upon a friendly shore. The one had murdered the other so that the treasure might be his.

The painter's visitor was a gray haired, wild eyed man.

"In heaven's name, sir," he gasped out, "how did you learn the dreadful story that you painted? I see you know all. I murdered my mate Bill to get the money that was his. I threw his body into the sea. I don't know what impulse led me to the academy. The first thing I saw was your picture representing the scene that took place thirty years ago."

Needless to say, the picture had been the outcome of imagination. Yet murder will out, and the guilty conscience of the man who had killed his comrade for lust of gold had convinced him that the painting was no coincidence, but was indeed the actual portrayal of a dastardly and unwitnessed crime.

There is probably no picture better known in England than "The Doctor," by Luke Fildes, yet there are probably very few people aware of the fact that that selfsame masterpiece was the means of bringing to light the perpetration of a crime that would otherwise never have been known.

A certain doctor in a large town committed suicide, and among his papers was a letter which ran as follows: "I have today seen Luke Fildes' 'Doctor.' The picture represents a medical man watching by the bedside of a child. It has so haunted me that I am going to take away my own worthless life and make a confession at the same time. When Arthur's"—his brother's—"boy died I came into money that my dead brother had settled on him. He died as all the world thought of acute pneumonia. Yet his life might have been saved had I acted, as Fildes' 'Doctor' is so evidently doing, with the use of all the skill that lay in my power. I hastened the boy's end and so got the money. I can bear it no more."

A well known artist was commissioned to paint the portrait of a lady in exalted circles who boasted the possession of a most unique jewel in the form of a pendant. The lady was very anxious that this heirloom should be included in her portrait. The artist, of course, complied with her request.

Shortly after the painting had been completed a daring burglary was perpetrated, with the result that the lady lost her heirloom, and no trace of the thief or thieves was forthcoming. Years passed by, and the lady gave up all hope of ever seeing the precious heirloom again.

Now, it so happened that the artist who had painted the portrait of the lady mentioned had occasion to travel in India.

In the course of his wanderings he came to Bombay and, as every visitor to that place does, strolled through the native bazaar.

Suddenly his attention was riveted by a piece of jewelry in a jeweler's shop that seemed familiar to him. It was a diamond and ruby pendant. Where had he seen it before? He ransacked his brain, but could not remember.

He returned to his hotel and happened to take from his portfolio a sketch of the portrait he had made years ago of the lady with the pendant.

In a moment the enigma was solved. The piece of jewelry he had seen was the peculiar pendant that his fair sitter had been so anxious he should include in his portrait.

He hurried off to the chief of police and told that worthy what he suspected—namely, that the bazaar he had visited contained the long lost jewel of the English lady. Inquiries were at once set on foot with extraordinary results. The jeweler in the bazaar confessed to having given years ago a quite insignificant sum for the jewel, which he had bought from a stableman in the employ of a neighboring rajah. The stableman was sought for and turned out to be none other than a famous English cracksman who had apparently turned honest, but who, nevertheless, confessed to having been the thief of the jewel that had been so miraculously discovered.—Pearson's Weekly.

Money in Moving Pictures.

"I am going to embark in some sort of business and want to know whether you think there is much money in moving pictures?"

"There was for a fellow who moved a half dozen of ours," said the flat dweller. "He charged us $10."—St. Louis Star.

ATOP THE FREIGHT TRAIN.

Walking the Cars a Hair Raising Experience For a Novice.

There came over me as I sat in the caboose that evening a wild desire to ride with the engineer. Instead of planning to slip ahead along the half mile or so of train at the first stop, I made known my desire to our conductor over that part of the run.

"They'll be glad to see you," he told me. "You won't have any trouble gettin' there. It's a mild evenin'." He swung open the window of the lookout and called to his rear brakeman, "Jimmie, run along with this here party." Jimmie pulled me through the window of the lookout before I clearly realized the entire plan.

It was a slippery path over the roofs of sixty cars to the big engine that was pulling us, and the wind that swept in from the shores of the icebound lake, along which the tracks ran for many miles, snapped sharply over those car roofs. Jimmie hung on to his lantern with one hand, to his convoy with the other. Long miles over those slippery car roofs had taught him to regard it as no very serious business.

"This ain't nothin'," was his assurance. "It sometimes gets nasty when we get down to zero an' a blizzard comes a-rippin' from off over the lake. Sometimes you have to get down an' crawl on all fours. It wouldn't be much fun to be swept off the tops of those cars."

There was no disputing that, nor that the three lengthwise planks at the gable of the car roofs were not wide promenades. You jump from one to another to cross from car to car, and a man has got to have something of a gymnastic training and some circus as well as railroad blood in his veins to do it many times without dropping into one of the hideous dark abysses between them.

A hand out of the dark slapped me in the face. "Drop," said Jimmie, and, fearing possibly that I might not obey, he pulled me flat down upon the car roof.

"That was a 'telltale,'" he explained, and before I could ask further, we were in a short reach of a tunnel, and I understood. We were whirled through that tunnel like a package in a tube, and if we had raised our arms we could have touched the dying roof of the bore. The smoke lay heavy in the place. It filled our eyes and nostrils.

"Not real nice," said Jimmie cheerily. "But no danger in the holes, save now and then an icicle gets a crack at your nut. You see, there ain't much use in arguin' the matter after that 'telltale' strikes you."—Edward Hungerford in Harper's.

Could Prove It.

A few days ago an alderman was glancing over the register at one of the local hotels to see if a friend of his was registered there. Near him stood a man who was holding on to the desk for dear life in a semisuccessful attempt to maintain his balance.

"I s-s'pose you think I'm drunk?" said the stranger, looking belligerently at the alderman.

"No; not in the least," replied the alderman, anxious to avoid the possibility of a row.

"Well, you'd know I was if I let go this desk," answered the man.—Newark Star.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 619 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. B. Flinchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 456 Caldwell Building, Monticello, Ill.

BENZOATE OF SODA HARMFUL AS SALT

So Dr. Vaughan Testifies in Indianapolis Case.

Indianapolis, Jan. 13.—Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, professor of hygeine and phychological chemistry at the University of Michigan, testified for the complainants Wednesday in the case in which Williams Brothers company and Curtice Brothers company, food manufacturers, seek to enjoin the state board of health and Harry E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, from enforcing against them the rule against the sale of food products that contain benzoate of soda as a preservative.

Dr. Vaughan was asked if he believed that there would be any harmful effects to a human being if one-tenth of one per cent of benzoate of soda were given in condiments eaten with other food such as an ordinary person would eat, and he said he did not believe it would have any harmful effect. He said that he did not believe benzoate of soda properly distributed in the food would be any more harmful to a man than common salt, but he believed that many people ate too much salt.

Two Suits Against Governor.

Hillsdale, Mich., Jan. 13.—Since the primary election campaign of 1908 two suits for damages against Governor Fred M. Warner have been pending in the circuit court here, and they are now set for Feb. 3. While coming to this city in his automobile to speak, the horse of Lewis Britton became frightened at the machine and pitched over an embankment with himself and wife. Mrs. Britton claims that she received injuries from which she still suffers, and the husband sues for the damage to his outfit and for medical services.

Not Literary.

"The late Frederick Burton was the world's foremost authority on the American Indian," said a Yale ethnologist. "Burton was almost alone in his field. There are, you know, so few students of Indian lore.

"He said to me once, with a vexed laugh, that he found it quite as impossible to discuss the Indian with people as a Boston critic found it to discuss poetry with the girl he took down to dinner.

"The girl was very pretty. Leaning her dimpled elbows on the table, she said to the critic:

"'And what is your lecture to be about, professor?'

"'I shall lecture on Keats,' he replied.

"'Oh, professor,' she gushed, 'what are keats?'"—Washington Star.

Asks $10,000 For Son's Life.

Owosso, Mich., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Frank Knickerbocker, as administratrix of the estate of her son, Glen, who was run down and killed by a Grand Trunk train last fall, has begun suit for $10,000 damages against the company. She claims that the whistle of the locomotive was not blown as the train approached the crossing where the boy was struck.

The Falling Branch.

In the grounds of Dalhousie castle, Scotland, is said to be a famous example of the sympathy of the vegetable world with human death. It was anciently believed in the neighborhood that a branch always fell from this oak when a member of the family died. Apparently the fall of the original tree early in the eighteenth century did not break the sympathy, for a new one sprang from the old root, and it is upon record that as lately as 1874 an old forester, seeing a branch fall from this on a still day, cried, "The laird's deed noo!" News of the eleventh Earl of Dalhousie's death soon followed.

"When were you born?" asked an inquisitive of Robert Louis one day. "May 10, 1880," was the instant reply, and Robert Louis and Fanny Stevenson exchanged glances. This was their wedding day.

RIVER IS HELD BACK BY ICE GORGE

People of Leavenworth, O., Appeal to Governor For Aid.

Indianapolis, Jan. 17.—Governor Marshall has received an appeal for aid from the citizens of Leavenworth, a town on the Ohio river, and the conditions set out in it show that the situation there is becoming desperate. The water in the Ohio river is backed for miles above the town by the Wolf creek gorge and is rising at the rate of more than a foot an hour. They want the advance to send men and dynamite to break up the ice and release the water. Hundreds of citizens of the town have already moved many of their effects to the hills distant from the river front, and some of the merchants have removed their stocks. It is feared the town will be swept away.

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 17.—A dozen meadow hunting lodges and oyster shacks, a score of boats of different sizes and several wharf landings used by oystermen have been smashed from their foundations and moorings and either cracked or swept to sea by tremendous ice floes which broke loose and crashed their way through the bay channels and the inlet. Men in some of the cabins narrowly escaped with their lives, and it is feared that some of those still missing may have perished.

News of the greatest area of disaster was brought here by Captain Peter Jeffries of this city, after an all night fight in a small boat through the floes after he had escaped from a "watch house" in the bay used for keeping guard over oyster beds. Captain Jeffries took to his skiff when he feared that his house would be swept from its foundations, and he narrowly escaped disaster at several points before he arrived home.

Battle Soon to Be Fought.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Jose de Olivares, American consul at Managua, has advised the state department that a battle will take place shortly between the insurgents and government forces near Accyapo. The Estrada army, he said, was advancing on that town, and President Madriz is sending troops and artillery from Managua to reinforce the government troops there.

THE BIGGEST EVER.

Battleship Michigan Now Holds Record in Hampton Roads.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 17.—The big battleship Michigan, one of the newest and biggest vessels of the United States navy, has arrived in Hampton Roads from Philadelphia.

The run from Philadelphia to the Roads was for shaking down purposes, and the performance of the vessel on the trip was satisfactory. The Michigan has the honor of being the biggest battleship that has ever dropped anchor in Hampton Roads.

WIFE WAS BURNING.

Husband Stood By and Refused to Rescue Her.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Tim Lynch, aged twenty-seven, made a horrible attempt to commit suicide. She saturated her clothing with kerosene and then set fire to them. Instantly she was enveloped in flames and ran screaming through the streets and rolled in the snow. A young man coming from a ball put out the flames, but she was so horribly burned that she cannot survive.

When she was lying in the snow, her husband, a miner, stood by and refused to make an effort to aid her, although his eight-year-old daughter begged him to save her mother. Domestic trouble was the cause for the spectacular affair.

Century-old Negress Burns to Death.

Cincinnati, Jan. 17.—Julia Hanley, colored, declared by relatives and acquaintances to be 111 years old, died last night from burns received in the morning when her clothing caught fire from an open grate. Mrs. Hanley was a slave on the Beecher plantation in Florida and was brought to this city by Harriet Beecher Stowe. She was the constant companion of Mrs. Stowe, and it is said that the famous author obtained much of her material for her "Uncle Tom's Cabin" from anecdotes told by the old negress.

Won't Marry Schofield's Widow.

Washington, Jan. 17.—John H. Heuson, a banker of St. Augustine, Fla., who had taken out a license to marry Mrs. Georgia Kilbourn Schofield, the widow of Lieutenant General John C. Schofield, former commanding general of the army, has returned the license to the clerk of the District of Columbia supreme court, with a note which read merely, "The within will not be used." The license was issued on Jan. 5. The wedding was expected to take place last week. Mrs. Schofield said that her marriage had been postponed merely to suit her convenience.

SAILOR SAVED IN MID-OCEAN

Steamer Philadelphia Acts as Her Own Lifeboat.

SINGULAR RESCUE AT SEA

Big Wave Swept Sailor Ryan Off Vessel—Succeeds in Getting to Buoy Which Was Thrown to Him and Stays Afloat Until Big Vessel Drifts Along Side.

New York, Jan. 17.—Picking up a man who had been swept overboard in a tempest has been accomplished by freighters in a few instances, but not until the American liner Philadelphia, just in from Southampton, dragged able seaman Michael H. Ryan of Baltimore out of a wintry turment has a modern passenger ship made a lifeboat of herself. The incident was unique, Captain Mills said, adding that such things occurred "only once in a blue moon."

The Philadelphia was about in mid ocean at 1:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, thrashing through mighty combers, when a gang plank forward got adrift. Boatswain Sargent and five men, including Ryan and Charles Lenz, were ordered to make the plank fast. As they did so the Philadelphia plunged her nose under a curling crest that buried her main deck for an instant. Every mother's son of the boatswain's gang was whirled from his feet and sent tumbling aft except Ryan. The wave scooped him up and hurled him entirely clear of the ship's rail, away off to starboard into the wild waves below. Captain Mills saw the accident, as did everybody else who was on deck. Instantly Captain Mills stopped the ship. Ryan saw Lents running to the rail, and he shouted, "Throw me a buoy." The buoy was released by a device invented by Lenz himself, and he hurled it toward his mate. It fell within twenty feet of Ryan, and he got it.

Captain Mills headed his ship for Ryan, who was now several ship lengths astern, and when she was within a few hundred feet of him, her engines were stopped and she was permitted to drift. She drifted down on the sailor, who had put the ring buoy over his head and under his arms an was floating on it. A rope was soon thrown to him, and he was hauled aboard.

BRYAN QUITS PORTUGAL.

Leaving of American Minister Causes Sensation.

Lisbon, Jan. 17.—A sensation has been caused here by the sudden and unexpected departure Sunday of Charles Page Bryan, the American minister, who, it is said, has been transferred to Brussels. The reason for the transfer is not known and cannot be ascertained here.

The Argentine minister, senor Garcia Sagastume, gave a magnificent dinner and ball in Mr. Bryan's honor Saturday night. The king was represented by a high official, and the whole ministry and diplomatic body attended.

WAS ARMENIAN PRINCE.

Man Killed at Madison, Ill., Came of Royal Blood.

Madison, Ill., Jan. 17.—The supposed Armenian laborer killed here last Monday by a train has been identified as Prince Pagasdar Mongosorvia, a former general in the Armenian revolutionary army. When the Armenain revolution failed he escaped to New York, where he was a director of a Macedonian-Bulgarian bank, which about a year ago failed with $500,000 liabilities. After the bank's collapse he became a mechanic.

A Riotous Pack.

SHOOTS FATHER IN THE FACE

Ludington Boy Protected Mother From Drunken Parent.

LAD IS NOT ARRESTED

Charles Smith Sought to Mistreat His Wife—Fourteen-year-old Son, Henry Smith, Ran Into Bedroom and Procured a Gun, Shooting Parent as He Advanced Toward Him.

Ludington, Mich., Jan. 17.—Charles Smith, aged fifty-four, was shot and fatally wounded by his fourteen-year-old son, Henry, when he came home and started in to kill the family.

Smith had been causing endless trouble in the neighborhood for the last year while on his drunken sprees, and the police had been called to the home frequently to take him into custody when he threatened to kill the family.

Smith came home intoxicated and made for his wife, threatening her life. The son, Henry, took his mother's part, and grappled with his father, but was soon overpowered and choked nearly into insensibility. When the father again turned his attention to the mother, Henry gained his feet and after begging his father to cease, again grappled with the older Smith and was again choked, but managed to escape and was chased into a bedroom, where he secured a shotgun loaded with buckshot. His father followed him there, and the boy said, "Pa, stop, or I'll shoot you."

Smith replied with curses and rushed at the boy, when the boy fired at his head, striking him in the right cheek, tearing the cheekbone away, back to the ear.

A stray buckshot from the gun hit the mother on the top of the head as she was trying to hold her husband from the boy and made an ugly scalp wound.

Smith was taken to the hospital, where it is said he will not recover.

The coroner and police refuse to prosecute young Smith. They consider his act justifiable.

In the Smith family are also two older children, a boy and a girl, who were not present at the time of the shooting.

NOT TO THEIR LIKING.

Power Boat Men Want Different Law Than That Proposed by Humphreys.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 17.—Power boat manufacturers and representatives of power boat associations from all over the country met at the Hotel Pontchartrain Saturday, their purpose being to frame up national uniform laws for the use of boats and owners.

The gathering was hurried along perhaps by the introduction in the national house of representatives of the Humphreys bill, designed to regulate the sailing and equipment of all classes of boats. This bill is distasteful, not only to the manufacturers, but also to enthusiasts.

It is said that the Humphreys bill was so filled with technicalities and unnecessary provisions that it would require a boat fully 60 feet long to carry all the equipment specified for a boat 35 feet in length. Saturday's gathering was called to frame a substitute. This has been practically agreed upon and will be urged upon members of the marine and fisheries committee of the house.

CANDIDATE FOR SPEAKER.

Diekema of Michigan Has Announced His Aspirations.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The formal announcement of Representative Garrit J. Diekema of Holland, Mich., that he is a candidate for speaker of the Sixty-second congress has been made. It created little surprise among the Michigan contingent in Washington. It has been known for some time that Mr. Diekema has been grooming himself in the hope of being "Uncle Joe's" successor in the event that the voters of the country elect a Republican house next fall.

Among his colleagues Mr. Diekema is regarded as one of the best fitted men to take the place of Speaker Cannon, and all believe that the latter will not be a candidate to succeed himself as leader of the Republican party in the lower branch of the national legislature.

While some of the members from Michigan do not hesitate to state that Mr. Diekema's announcement is somewhat premature, they are strong in their advocacy of his candidacy.

Wind Up P. O. & N. Jan. 24.

Pontiac, Mich., Jan. 17.—Judge Smith has set Jan. 24 as the date of the hearing on the final account of Robert J. Lounsbury as receiver of the Pontiac, Oxford & Northern railway. It is expected the affairs of the company will be wound up at this date.

Found Dead Near His Barns.

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 17.—Clifford Boyce, aged sixty-three years, was found dead near his barn at his farm home, south of Jeddo. Mr. Boyce had suffered many strokes of apoplexy, and it was found that this was the cause of his sudden death.

IN DEPLORABLE CONDITION.

Are Animals on Farm of Cassopolis Man.

Cassopolis, Mich., Jan. 15.—A very strange case of cruelty to animals has come to light in this village. Prosecuting Attorney Bresnahan has filed a petition in probate court asking that a guardian be appointed for Alfred Price, a well-to-do and eccentric resident of the village.

The petition recites that Price is the owner of a farm on the outskirts of the town and that he has horses, cattle, sheep and hogs on the farm, and that their condition is deplorable for want of proper shelter and food. Price lives in the village, and no one resides on the farm.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Wild Blizzard Raging

brings danger, suffering, often death, to thousands, who take cold, coughs and lagrippe—that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed up," nostrils, lower part of nose sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-gripping cough. When grip attacks, as you value your life, don,t delay getting Dr. Kings New Discovery. "One bottle cured me," writes A. L. Dunn of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being 'laid ub' three weeks with Grip." A Special In Fine Arts

The "Stunner" Was a Surprise to the Two Students.

By JANE OSBORN.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Stanton Thorpe and his chum, Kid Walker, were walking rapidly across the campus, absorbed in their own importance. It was the first day of their senior year. Stanton was class president, and the Kid was his right hand man.

A tall, striking girl passed rapidly by. Stanton was interested at once and not a little surprised when he saw the girl smile back at his companion, who pulled off his cap with unfeigned satisfaction.

"Who's your friend, Kid?" he asked when they were well out of hearing.

"Why, that's Marjory King. I told you about her. She's the girl I met at the house party last summer; made an awful hit with the fellows there. Isn't she a stunner, though?"

"Marjory King," mused the other thoughtfully.

"Isn't she a stunner?" And the Kid gave his friend a thump on the arm to force an answer.

"Oh, she's a stunner, all right, if that's what you want to know. Say, she isn't a freshman, is she?"

The Kid laughed. "Well, not exactly. She's registered as a special in fine arts. I shouldn't wonder if she was rather oldish myself."

"How old, say?" queried Stanton, whose interest was thoroughly roused.

The Kid's voice was lowered. "Twenty-three," he ventured cautiously.

His companion whistled. "Well, I'm as old as that myself." His eyes had followed her to the other side of the campus. "Say, Kid, she is a stunner. Shouldn't much mind coeducation if they were all like that."

The next day the two boys were making their way from one of the engineering buildings to their dormitory.

"Say, Kid," said Stanton after several minutes' silence, "what's she taking?"

The other smiled gleefully. "She? Oh, she's a special in fine arts, which means anything at all, doesn't it? Why?"

"Well, it's this way," explained Stanton, trying to hide an unexpected feeling of embarrassment. "I was thinking that we'd get better acquainted and kind of gain time on the other fellows if we were to take some work with her."

This plan met with his chum's entire approval, so they turned their steps away from the dormitory toward the dean's office.

Their first task was to see Marjory King's schedule, and the second was to induce the dean to allow them to make a change in their own course of study. The first was easy enough, for as class officers the boys were allowed to have access to the students' records.

"Just want to look at a few of the fellows' time cards," said Stanton to the registrar as he fumbled through the K's in a large card catalogue. He made a few notes from the desired card and returned to his friend, who was seated at the table.

He spoke in subdued tones: "Advanced Italian conversation, art of dressmaking, scientific cooking, study of the child mind and elementary philology. The first we aren't qualified for, the next two aren't open to men, child mind I won't take, so it's got to be the last."

"What is philology, anyway?" asked the Kid.

"Blessed if I know. It's one of Professor Brown's deadliest, but it's perfectly all right."

"Well, let's take it then."

So it was that Stanton Thorpe and Kid Walker, engineers, took up the study of languages under the celebrated Dr. Brown and—a fact of much greater importance—became in a few months the undisputed claimants to the friendship of Marjory King.

As time went on and Marjory was seen more and more with Stanton and the Kid and less with the other boys people began to talk. She apparently found their companionship agreeable, but no one, not even the two lucky seniors themselves, could decide which one she preferred. The rivalry—intense though it was—only cemented their friendship, and they never dreamed of concealing from each other their growing fondness for the girl.

"There's no use joking about it, Kid," said Stanton toward the end of the college year. "I mean business. What's the use of a boy like you getting silly over a girl like Marjory King?"

"Perhaps there isn't any," said the other frankly, "but I'm going to stick it out. It seems sometimes as if she treated me with a little more—more interest than she does you."

Stanton laughed. "That's where you're dead wrong, old man. By the way, that philology exam is going to be pretty stiff for the poor girl. It's a shame she ever took the course with a fossil like Brown. But I imagine I can help her out with my notes. You know I haven't missed a lecture, and I've full reports on all the outside readings. I have offered to let her have my notebook for a week before the exam, and I told her I'd coach her up all I could."

"That's a good move, all right," said the Kid, looking with admiration at his friend. "I wonder why I never think of those things."

"Oh, well, she isn't going to marry me just on account of that."

"Isn't going to what?"

"Well, I never put it that way before, but of course I intend to propose to her. I told you I was in dead earnest."

"Oh, I suppose I will, too, in the course of time. I never happened to think about that part of it before."

"I tell you frankly," said Stanton deliberately, "I intend to ask her a few days before commencement, some time after this beastly old exam is off."

"She'll hear from me about the same time, then, and I bet you money I'll win out."

So it was agreed between them that Stanton should coach Marjory as he had promised to and that as soon as the marks of the examination were posted the next morning he should make his proposal, asking her to defer her answer until later in the day. In the course of the morning the Kid should make his plea, and that night they would know their fate.

The two boys approached the important day with ever increasing excitement. The strain of senior examinations seemed as nothing compared with the uncertainty of not knowing the state of Marjory King's affections. She seemed to take a keen relish in keeping them in suspense, and a word of encouragement to one was always followed by a radiant smile upon the other.

The day at last arrived, and Kid Walker saw his chum depart upon his important errand. "I don't wish you luck, old man," he said, "but here's my hand." And the two boys separated with a warmer feeling of friendship for each other than they had ever known before.

A large crowd of students had already gathered around the bulletin board when the Kid sauntered up with pretended indifference to see the result of the philology examination. He craned his neck over the crowd. That name at the head of the list was enough—"M. King, 99 per cent." He felt a sudden sense of defeat. Stanton had coached her, and she had come out at the head of the list. He pushed his way aimlessly away from the others.

Suddenly he came upon his chum walking slowly toward him.

"I ought to have known you'd win her," said Stanton.

The Kid's happiness was tinged with deep pity for his friend.

"Have you asked her?"

"Yes. She told me that she was never so surprised in her life; said she was just about to accept some one else. You're a lucky boy, Kid Walker."

"How did she know that I was going to propose?" stammered the Kid. "But I'd better not keep her waiting any longer."

He was detained by the voice of a classmate: "Hello, Kid. Heard the news?"

"No. What news?"

"Philology Brown's going to be married."

"Is he? It's about time." The Kid was not in the least interested.

"Here they come!" called one of the boys a few feet away. "Here's a rousing cheer, boys. Are you ready?"

"B-r-o-w-n! Rip! Rah! Ree! King! King! King!" came the shout of twenty voices.

Kid Walker was completely dazed. He looked up to see Professor Brown walking rapidly by, with Marjory King smiling at his side. His eyes met Stanton's.

"Isn't she a stunner?" asked an enthusiastic onlooker.

Stanton smiled grimly at the Kid. "Oh, she's a stunner, all right, if that's what you want to know."

Why Water Quenches Thirst.

Thirst, a word of Anglo-Saxon origin and akin to the Latin torreo and our torrid or parched, describes a peculiar sensation of dryness and heat located in the tongue and throat. Artificial thirst may be produced by the passage of a current of air over the mucous membrane of these parts, but normal thirst is the consequence of a lack of liquid in the system. The agony of extreme thirst is due to the fact that all the tissues sympathize in this distress. It is then as a refreshing relief that a supply of water comes to thirsting lips, replacing what has been lost, cooling the parched palate and rapidly removing the craving which has depressed the system. In short, water quenches thirst just because it supplies what at the moment is wanting and is most eagerly desired, so that Solomon could properly compare the gift of "cold waters to a thirsty soul" to the advent of good news. Thirst is to some extent appeased by the injection of water into the blood or body, though no fluid touches the part to which the sensation is referred.

The Salvation Army's Name.

The adoption of the name "Salvation Army" came about in a curiously unpremeditated way, writes Commander Eva Booth in Van Norden's Magazine. As the head of the new movement Mr. Booth had gathered around him men who were as one with him and acted as his secretaries. One day he was walking up and down his study, dictating, when he used these words:

"The Christion mission is a volunteer army."

He paused in his dictation and looked thoughtfully over the shoulder of his secretary at the written line, took up the pen, scored out the word "volunteer" and wrote above it "salvation" and went on dictating. This was the first time the word was used, and it made such an impression that it began insensibly to be thought as an appropriate name for the mission. It grew upon the imagination of men. They liked it—liked it so well that they finally adopted it.

Hazing.

Hazing is an indefinate and inexplicable something. When we are called before the faculty we deny the existence of the word. We call it gentle horseplay.

Nevertheless hazing, whatever it is, fills its place in man's life. The wonderful state of sophomorehood would be lost if not for it. What would become of our great Military academy at West Point if it were not for hazing?

There are three great periods of hazing in man's life—first the green apple period, then the college period and finally the married period, which, we are told, is one continuous round of hazing on both sides.

Hazing is an educational and desirable experience for those wishing to become slaveholders, superintendents of gangs, divorce seekers and fathers of large families.

What is the greatest press agent of this age? Hazing. Look at the free advertising different colleges receive every year.

Hazing is also very helpful to those wishing to test the strength of baseball clubs, fence pickets and bricks.—Rutgers Targum.

Millet and "The Angelus."

It was only after long years of struggle and dire poverty, through which Millet was consoled and supported by his wife, that the peasant painter was able to take the three roomed cottage at Barbizon and "try to do something really good." It was then that he began to paint that most beautiful "poem of poverty," "The Angelus," which is today one of the most valuable pictures in the world. Again and again he threw aside the picture in despair of ever finishing it to his satisfaction, and as often his wife replaced it on the easel and induced him to continue.

On one occasion he was so incensed at not being able to produce a certain effect that he seized a knife and would have destroyed the canvas and ended the matter once for all had not his wife fortunately seized his hand and induced him to give the picture another trial. Thus it was that at last "The Angelus" found a place on the walls of the Louvre. The success it won encouraged Millet to paint many more pictures and thus place himself among the immortals in art.

ROY W. CODLING, Clerk.

The January Atlantic.

The most coherent and intelligible account that has appeared concerning the new order of corporate control inaugurated by President Taft appears in a paper by Gilbert H. Montague at the head of the table of contents of the Atlantic for January.

Among the stories and sketches in the number must be included "Our Housekeepers," an admirably faithful sketch of domestic conditions in England, by Elizabeth R. Pennell; "The Masquerade," by Alice Brown; "The Kinzer Portraits," by Cornelia A. P. Comer; and "Out of the Dark," by Margaret P. Montague.

Shot His Own Hens.

Two neighbors kept hens and quarreled because they scratched each other's potato rows up. One sold his hens unknown to the other, who made a large run and fastened his hens up, saying:

"Now, the first hen I see in my garden I shall shoot."

Next day he saw a hen scratching as usual, so he got the gun and shot it and then threw it over his neighbor's fence, saying:

"Take your hen!"

The hen was picked up, taken in and cooked.

The following days the same thing happened. Still the neighbor took them up and said nothing till the seventh came over and hit him on the head. Then he picked it up and threw it back at his neighbor, saying:

"Eat your own old hens! We are tired of eating them and prefer a little pheasant. I sold my hens over a month since!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Ready For Market.

Two Canadians were boasting.

"Where I come from," said the first, "we have a salmon river that rises in some boiling springs. As the salmon climb up the river they gradually get acclimated to the heat of the water and don't mind it. In fact, when we fish in the highest reaches of the stream we catch our salmon ready boiled."

"I don't doubt that," said the second Canadian calmly. "Down my way there's a curious salmon river too. It rises in some tin mines. As the fish work up they meet the suspended ore in gradually increasing quantities. They get quite mineralized if they keep on upstream, so that if we fish at the head of the river we catch our salmon ready tinned, and all we have to do is to pack and ship them to market."

Egyptian Embalming.

The modern embalmer is still ignorant of the secret that was so well known to the men of ancient Egypt. The process followed by the Egyptian embalmers is known only in part, the main part being still a mystery. As to the cost of becoming a mummy, Herodotus and Diodorus tell of three modes of embalming prevalent in Egypt, the first very costly, answering to about $2,000 of our money, the second $60 and the third within the reach of all.—New York American.

A Vegetable Cameo.

Spain is the land of the onion, a fact which tempted Mr. Shaw, the author of "Spain of Today," to fall into the appended easy verse. All returned travelers are sure to appreciate it for its feeling for truth rather than its resemblance to the form of "The Ancient Mariner:"

Garlic, garlic everywhere
Except in what you drink.

Partial Cure.

"I fear you are a victim of the drink habit."

"You misjudge me. Lack of the price cured me of the drink habit long ago. It's merely the thirst that bothers me now."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hopeless.

"Love your neighbor as yourself."

"I do."

"Then why do you have such a grouch?"

"I hate myself."—New York Journal.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

Washington, Jan. 15, 1910.

In time of war promotion is rapid. Lieutenants and privates, who went into the Civil War and were fortunate enough to live through it, came out in many cases as Colonels and Generals. The army and navy is always ready to fight, realizing, if not expressing, the feeling that promotion is certain through the death of a superior officer; but in peace all this is changed.

West Point and the Naval Academy turn out Lieutenants in great numbers while Colonels, Commodores, Admirals and Generals, live on with provoking persistence, keeping the youth waiting too long for stars and bars and the emoluments of higher office.

The country also, it is suspected, suffers from this persistence in longevity, for the history of wars, as well as of prize fights, show that the aged man is seldom successful except in planning. Success in all physical undertakings, depends more on celerity and endurance than on anything else.

There is a plan before Congress for eliminating the older officers from the service, so that in case of war the corps of commanders, both on land and at sea, may be available of a younger age and more vigorous physique than were those who went to battle in the early days of the Civil and Spanish wars.

Ex-President Roosevelt did all he could to get younger and fitter officers into the army and navy. He had an ill concealed contempt for the old, fat and gouty heroes of past wars, whom he saw in the department bureaus and at the clubs during his long official residence in Washington, and he doubtless had a lively remembrance of the Falstaffian mountain of flesh that sweltered in Cuba while he pretended to command the army. His pushing General Wood to the head of the army and his rapid promotion of other young officers for distinguished service in the Philippines, has done more to shock the gouty heroes even than his insistence that they shall prove themselves able to ride and march. Curious isn't it, that policemen and army officers grow to be fat and unfit for use so early in life?

There has been considerable excitement and discussion in political circles during the week. The attitude of the insurgents and regulars has been discussed and at one time there seemed to be an evitable fight to a finish. Now an armistice appears to have been patched up and it is said that the President is the mediator between the Cannonites on one side and the insurgents on the other. Mr. Taft, in his efforts to harmonize, is not very successful and is losing in popularity with both wings of his party. Information comes from all parts of the country that many republicans are anything but pleased with the administration.

The salient article of the January Century is easily Mr. Walter Camp's chatty discussion of "Personality in Football," in which he asks and answers the pertinent question, "Are our boys trained to set up a false standard of hero-worship?" and shows at length what contributions to the real progress of the game have been made by such players and coaches as Lee McClung, Arthur Poe, John DeWitt, George Chadwick, Tipton of West Point, Daly of Harvard, "and a host of others." It is a valuable and lively presentation of one of the absorbing questions of the day; and besides the photographs shown there are reproductions in tint of three stirring drawings by Leyendecker.

Reforming Our Naval Obligation.

Under general direction of the Secretary, our navy business is henceforth to be run by naval men. The work falls into four logical departments,—namely, material, personnel, fleet operation, and inspection. The Secretary of the Navy is to have four advisers, each of them a Rear-Admiral, and each representing one of the four departments. The bureaus will be grouped and arranged under these headings, everything important will have to be cleared through the Secretary's quadrilateral board of advisers, and the old-time clashes and conflicts will necessarily disappear. An efficient organization of the Navy Department will not be liked by some of the bureaucrats, who will have to take their proper places, nor will it wholly please one or two well-known Senators, who have long imagined themselves the real rulers of Uncle Sam's navy,—more or less in the interest of certain small navy yards and local industries. But Secretary Meyer is so thoroughly right that his reforms will have general public approval; and it is not to be believed that Congress will obstruct improvements for which we have waited so long.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for January.

SOMETHING TO LAUGH AT.

Next to a kiss a laugh is the most popular thing in the world. The supply of kisses is limited, being largely controlled by a fair but capricious trust. The supply of laughs, however, is practically unlimited so long as you don't get too grumpy to look for them. One reason for the remarkable success of The Chicago Record-Herald is its daily recognition of the value of kindly, wholesome fun. The "Alternating Currents" column of S. E. Kiser, the humorist and poet, is one of the brightest things in American journalism. There is always a smile or a good laugh in Ralph Wilder's cartoon, bringing a cheery greeting as you pick up the paper each morning.

But it is in The Sunday Record-Herald that one finds the most chuckles. The colored comic section is full of laughter for young and old, and these amusing illustrations are free from the vulgarity and mischievous suggestions that have barred so many comic sections from refined homes. Then there is always a lot of high-class humor in the Sunday Magazine of The Record-Herald, led by Sewell Ford's inimitable Shorty McCabe stories. The delectable Shorty, we understand, is to appear every other Sunday throughout the present year. No other character in fiction, unless it be Mr. Dooley, can match him as a funmaker. As long as Shorty and his devoted Sadie are on deck there will be something worth living for. The Record-Herald has the right idea. Clean humor doubles the welcome of a good newspaper.

"Pinchot is not a politician," says a contemporary. That, we should say, may remain to be seen.

There is more joy in the presence of the apostles of science over one unknown beast of the field than over the ninety and nine known, tagged and classified. Col. Roosevelt has made glad the gentleman of the Smithsonian by shooting, skinning and shipping a hitherto unknown species of otocyon.

The House's vote of a want of confidence in Speaker Cannon has probably not had a very serious effect in the lessening his confidence in himself. His task will now be to go fishing for a few Democrats, in which pursuit he is an expert.

A New Year's Card.

Now what is here?
A word of cheer
To herald in another year;
May all its days be free of blame—
A little nobler than your aim;
May all its labors be content
A little better than your best,
And all the joys within its scope
A little brighter than your hope;
And may each year be found, when past,
A little dearer than the last.—Arthur Guiterman in Woman's Home Companion for January.

If you find any substance in your baking injurious to health made from baking powder in this can there is—

$1000 In it for you

The makers of certain Baking Powders have recently been shouting, "purity, purity, purity!!!" All other manufacturers have been openly accused of offering an impure product. Calumet, as the largest competitor, has of course come in for its share. But we simply smiled—as our business grew.

For Calumet has been backed for years by an offer of $1,000 for any substance injurious to health found in the baking prepared with it. This offer has never been challenged.

Don't you think that if there was the least trace of impurity in Calumet that our competitors would be the first to jump at this offer? Wouldn't this be an ideal way of putting our product off the market entirely.

Does not this and the fact that it complies with all pure food laws, both State and National, prove that Calumet is absolutely pure?

With the purity question settled—then Calumet is undoubtedly the best Baking Powder. It contains more leavening power; it is more uniform—every can is the same. It assures better results—and it is moderate in price.

OUR MAIL CARRIERS

It is a fact worthy of mention, that the mail carriers going out from the Tecumseh office, have not missed a trip during all of the storms and cold, of the last weeks.

Less than ten miles on all the routes have been left off. This we think a splendid record, and the men are deserving of much praise for their good work as Uncle Sam's faithful servants.

Music in the Churches

The churches in Tecumseh were highly favored last Sunday with fine music. At the M. E. Church, Mrs. Kendrick and Miss Brush sang a duet that was so sweetly rendered it touched each heart. At the Baptist Church Mrs. R. S. Moore, Mrs. Rothfuss and Mr. Kemp and others rendered a fine anthem. The Presbyterians were favored with a fine solo by Edyth Wilson.

We welcome them both to our beautiful town, and wish for them many years of happiness.

Miss Sinclair's "The Creators; a Comedy," a novel of London life, will run through the magazine year. Mrs. Wharton's psychic story, "Afterward," which is made the leading feature of the number, is altogether different from anything she has done hitherto.

G. A. R. MEETING.

Evidently the weather has no effect on the spirits of the people interested in the meeting of the G. A. R. and Auxilliary, which was held Monday evening at their hall. A fine crowd being present, and the evening was pronounced one of the best ever.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. Shaw, which was listened to with marked pleasure.

The recitation by Commander Geo. Keysor was considered exceptionally fine.

Miss Mingay in her recitation was doubly encored.

A recitation was also given by H. W. Stevens. The music of the evening was given Mrs. Shaw' Miss Brush and Miss Mingay. Mrs. Hodges and Miss Linton presiding at the organ.

The mere mention of these names will indicate what a rare treat was given to those who listened. Each one came away feeling they had been highly entertained.

TOY FACTORY.

Take Heed Adrian.

"Toy Factory" has quite a fascinating sound to the business men of our neighboring town of Adrian, as it did to us of Tecumseh, evidently with the same results. We notice that at the last meeting of the Creditors of the Wing and Parsons toy factory, that a sale had been consummated. and there was talk of moving it to Cleveland. It seems that some of the citizens would keep it in Adrian. Judging from our experience our advice would be,—let it go.

STOMACH MISE

Get Rid of That Sourness, Gas and Indigestion.

Something New In Kitchen Ware

The "1892" Pure Spun Aluminum Ware is rapidly coming into use for cooking purposes. It is taking the place of agate and enamel ware because while its first cost is a trifle more than ordinary ware, it is really much cheaper in the long run, as it is guaranteed for twenty-five years and will last practically a life time.

The genuine "1892" Ware, made only from pure SPUN (not cast) Aluminum, will not crack, scale, peel, break, scorch or burn.

It looks like silver but weighs only about one-quarter as much, is easily cleaned and handled, and will not rust; corrode or tarnish. Absolutely pure, non-poisonous and wholesome; saves money, time and doctor's bills.

Be sure you get the original and genuine ware stamped with the Maltese Cross. At your dealers.

Married Men's Troubles

It was married men's night at the revival meeting.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles in your minds stand up!" shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasm.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the preacher, peering out at this lone sitter, who occupied a chair near the door and apart from the others: "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. "I can't get up; I'm paralyzed!"

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

The farm is a sort of clock which reflects the time of year.

Rev. I. W. Williams Testifies

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., writes us as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it. Sold by all druggists.

A Sacred Bath.

The number of queer things the various peoples do in the name of religion are legion, but no sight is more odd than that which may be witnessed on Badrinath, a peak of the Himalayan range in northwestern India. The peak looms 22,901 feet above the sea, and at an altitude of 10,400 feet there is built a shrine of Vishnu overhanging a great tank fed by water from the sacred thermal spring. Annually about 15,000 pilgrims climb the weary path to the shrine, and every twelfth year, when the Kumbh Melab is celebrated, the number increases to at least 50,000. Arriving at the shrine, the pilgrims adore the great idol, liberally fee the Brahman priests and bathe in the sacred tank. This latter performance is slightly startling, as men and women, absolutely nude, plunge into the water with cries of joy until the entire tank is a seething mass of humanity, resembling very much the familiar "wigglestalls" of an infrequently emptied rain barrel.—New York Times.

Why He Hadn't Tried It.

A party was encamped on the Bear river in eastern Utah, when a prospector came along one morning on a mule. He had his jaw tied up and at first seemed inclined to pass on without a word. On second thought, however, he halted and gruffly queried:

"How far to Salt Lake?"

"Three hundred miles."

"Humph!"

"Traveled far?"

"About 200 miles."

"Get your jaw hurt?"

"No; it's just an infernal toothache, and I'm a riding five hundred miles to get it pulled."

We invited him down, and one of the crowd got a piece of string round the tooth and jerked it out as quick as you please. After the overjoyed man had ceased dancing about he queried:

"Why didn't you try the string before starting out on such a long ride?"

"Best kind of reason, sir. I hadn't any a string."

A Social War.

"See here, old man, every time my wife orders a gown your wife orders two gowns."

"Yes?"

"Whereupon my wife goes your wife one better."

"Well?"

"Can't we arbitrate this matter?"—Pittsburg Post.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

DELEGATES ARRIVING.

United Mine Workers Go Into Convention on Tuesday.

Indianapolis, Jan. 17.—Delegates to the national convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which holds its initial session Tuesday evening, are arriving, and conferences are being held by many delegations. While not declaring what they will do in convention, many of the delegates say they are instructed to stand by a demand for an increased wage scale, and that this will be the most important question before the convention.

They say that since the scale under which they are working was made, six years ago, prices of everything have nearly been doubled, and even the coal they buy from the operator is higher.

Sues Hubby's Aunt For $25,000.

Boston, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Elizabeth Webber, prominent in Newtonville church circles, has filed a $25,000 alienation suit against her husband's aunt, Mrs. Sarah A. W. Benbow, charging that the rich aunt has been a troublesome "mother-in-law by adoption," creating dissension even to the extent of driving her husband into hiding. She has already secured a decision for non-support against her husband.

Curtiss Still Holds Records.

Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—The American aviators still hold the record for speed in starting and speed in flight. Louis Paulhan failed in an attempt Sunday to lower the record made by Curtiss Tuesday, when the lighter machine arose into the air after a run of 98 feet. The Frenchman's mark Sunday was 113 feet. The announcement that Paulhan will attempt to break all records for sustained flight created great interest.

The Elephant's Revenge.

In the autobiography of Mr. Lindley Murray a passage occurs from which it appears that one of the clearest heads that ever engaged in the business of analysis was well nigh cracked by a simple agent for a small offense. In the year 1771 he visited the elephants at the queen's palace and, from whatever motive, contrived to withdraw a portion of the bun which one of them had been collecting with his proboscis on the floor. The little affront offended the sagacious animal highly. The keeper remarked that he would never forget, and it was obvious from the rapid convolutions of his trunk that he only waited an opportunity to avenge the unappropriated loss of his property on the spot. The grammarian, however, kept out of his way, probably thinking no more of the matter, until he chanced to revisit the same place after an interval of several weeks. On this occasion a number of other persons were present, but of the whole the elephant singled out his enemy and aimed a desperate blow at his head, which, fortunately, neither proved fatal nor took effect.

Peculiar Optical Effects.

If one places a pinhead up close to the eye and directly in front of it the head of the pin appears transparent and things may be seen as easily through it as through a sheet of isinglass, the head appearing simply as a large round cloud. If it is placed somewhat closer no pin or head can be seen at all.

If one goes into a very dark room and puts a lighted candle near the side of one eye very pretty and peculiar effects are observed. A tracery, forming a regular network, can be easily detected, and this is merely the shadow thrown by the candle on the retina of the eye of the small capillary blood vessels between the retina and the candle.

If one looks to the side of a dim star in the heavens the star appears a great deal brighter than direct vision makes it appear. This is because the light in the indirect view falls on what is known as the "yellow spot" or point of keenest vision. As this is not put directly behind the front of the eye the side glance is necessary. Some people can see stars that way that they cannot perceive at all on direct vision.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

SAFES IN BIG HOTELS.

Valuables Kept In Them by Guests For Years at a Time.

A woman walked up to the counter of a fashionable hotel and asked for a package of valuables which was in the safe.

"If I had not wanted one particular thing I suppose I should have left the package where it was for another three years," she said to the clerk.

"Yes," said the clerk in answer to a question after the woman left, "that packet had really been in our safe for three years. Why, we have all sorts of valuable papers, jewelry and even money that are intrusted to our keeping for years at a time. People seem to prefer a hotel safe to a safety deposit vault. One reason perhaps is that it costs nothing. Another is that the standard of hotel clerks has improved.

"It is astonishing the amount of jewelry that people keep in hotel safes. Of course the owners have originally stopped in the hotel, but they go away, leaving their valuables, and I have known such persons to be gone as much as two years and never make an inquiry about their property in that time.

"To show you how much confidence people have in hotels and their employees I might mention that the other day a man came in here and put four $1,000 bills in an envelope, wrote his name on the latter and asked me to put it in the safe. Not long ago another man actually did the same thing with seven $10,000 bills."

The clerks of several other hotels talked in a similar strain without any outside suggestion.

"I'll bet I have handled more than a million dollars' worth of jewelry today," said one. "Look here," and he opened the safe and piled six or eight big jewelry cases on the counter, but hurriedly put them back. "In one of those I know there is over $200,000 worth, and what I showed you was only a few of what the safe contains."—New York Sun.

Too Risky.

In boring for oil when the drill reaches the depth where it allows gas to escape every precaution is taken against igniting it lest there should be a destructive explosion. This necessary precaution gives point to the following story, told by a writer in the Pittsburg News:

"I can deal with men," growled a grizzled oil driller, "but a woman can outdo the best of us.

"I brought in a well in Virginny right close to the kitchen door of a little farmhouse. Just as we were getting to the tickish point, where smoking wasn't allowed within forty rods, out comes the farmer's wife and goes to building a big fire in a Dutch oven.

"Mebby I didn't kick, but she just showed me a batch of dough an' said if she didn't bake it 'twould spoil. If I wanted the fire out I had got to pay for the dough—ten dollars too. She just dared me to touch that Dutch oven, an' I didn't touch it either. I just gave her the ten.

"Mebby we didn't get that fire out quick. If the well had broken loose it would have blown me an' the whole farmhouse out of sight.

"No, sir; I don't want any more dealings with women. They're too risky."

Spider Web as a Styptic.

A spider's web, an old cure for bleeding, is an uncleanly application, as it is generally procured from the most neglected corner in a room and is consequently laden with dust. The earliest reference to this remedy in our language seems to be in a translation of that curious encyclopedic work of the middle ages "De Proprietaribus Rerum," where we read, "Coppe webbe that is white and clene staunchyth blood." But as I have seen it applied to a cut finger it has been anything but white and clean. There is another reference in Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," when Bottom, the weaver, says to the fairy Cobweb, "I shall desire of you more acquaintance, good master Cobweb; if I cut my finger I shall make bold with you."

As a styptic, however, it must be acknowledged a spider's web as somewhat effective. In a case of excessive hemorrhage after the extraction of a tooth a dentist applied a cobweb with most satisfactory results.—Hospital.

Military Rats.

An old military dictionary tells us that rats were sometimes used in war for the purpose of firing powder magazines by means of lighted matches tied to their tails. We cannot offhand recall any historical instance of this, but presumably it did occur, seeing that Marshal Vauban laid down special rules for counteracting it. Anyhow, the dodge is as old as Samson, who, you may recall, used foxes in a similar way for a somewhat similar purpose.

As to the royal rat catcher, we may add that he had a special official livery. According to Pennant's "British Zoology," it consisted of a scarlet costume, embroidered with yellow worsted, in which were figures of mice destroying wheat sheaves. By the way, rats were not the only animals honored with a special catcher. Leicester, for instance, used to pay a yearly salary of £1 11s. 6d. to its municipal mole catcher.—London Standard.

The Chief's Error.

Goron was chief of the Paris police when the following incident took place: Lombroso had written a book in 1888 on criminality among women, so runs the story, and when it was finished wrote to Goron to send him "forthwith" some portraits of Parisian woman criminals. Anxious to please the writer, the package was made up and started on its tour to Italy. When the book came out Lombroso sent a copy, handsomely bound, to Goron, who saw his gift acknowledged on the first page. "It was a scholarly book," said the chief, "and would have had a large sale but for an error on my part. The pictures came out of the wrong drawer of my desk. They were not criminals at all, but women who had applied for hucksters' licenses, and a new edition had to be printed to make good a police mistake."

An Exchange of Courtesies.

A couple of men got into a warm argument and finally came to blows. After the fracas a spectator remarked:

"A soft answer turneth away wrath, and vice versa. We should all keep polite tongues in our heads. Only last night I heard a very fat man say with a loud laugh to a bowlegged friend:

"'Jim, old man, you look as if you'd been riding a barrel!'

"'And you,' snapped Jim sourly, 'look as if you'd swallowed one.'"

Lets Him Out.

Mrs. Nagger—Oh, James, how awkward! Mr. Smith has come, and now we shall be thirteen at table. Mr. Nagger—What then? Mrs. Nagger (with a shriek)—Why, one of us will die before the year is out! Mr. Nagger (brutally)—Never mind; I'm tough.—London Pick-Me-Up.

NOTED MEN IN CONFERENCE

Seek to Gain Uniform Legislation Throughout Country.

DIVORCE ONE OF QUESTIONS

Taft Opened Conference in Belasco Theater, in Washington, This Morning—Labor Federation, Grange, Farmers' Congress Send Delegates. Many Governors Also Expected.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The conference on uniform legislation, called by the National Civic federation, began in this city today with 600 delegates expected, and with President Taft, Seth Low, John Mitchell, Samuel Gompers, Andrew Carnegie, John Hays Hammond, Senator Elihu Root and many other notable men, more or less interested, to participate in the proceeding.

The opening session was held this morning at 10 o'clock, in the Belasco theater. President Taft made the opening address. The conference will last for three days. Delegates are in attendance from the National Grange, the American Federation of Labor, the Farmers' National congress, the National Association of Life Insurance Presidents, the National Association of State Boards of Arbitration and other prominent organizations.

The conference was called primarily to devise means for the enactment of uniform legislation by the various states on important questions. On two of the days of the conference the governors of forty-one of the states of the Union are expected to be in Washington. They will attend also the third meeting of the executives of the states.

Uniformity in divorce legislation, conservation of natural resources, regulation of interstate commerce, the control of corporations, the betterment of public health, the question of better protection to workmen in mines, pure food laws and scores of other important public matters will come up for discussion.

STOVAINE CAUSED DEATH.

So Declares Chicago Coroners' Physician in Case There.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Stovaine, according to Coroners' Physician Dr. W. H. Hunter, caused the death of John Rohrty at the county hospital last Thursday. Rohrty was operated on for a fractured knee cap and died an hour after he was taken off the operating table. Dr. Hunter made a post-mortem examination of the body, and an inquest probably will be held today.

Death was caused by stovaine and external violence," said Dr. Hunter. "The fractured knee cap forms all the external violence marks that the body showed, and that in itself would not cause death, of course."

Dr. Hunter referred to the new anaesthetic recently demonstrated in Chicago by Dr. Thomas Jonnesco as a "medical gold brick."

"It is not a safe anaesthetic to use," he said, "and conservative and careful practitioners do not employ it in operations. The condition of the body proves beyond all doubt that stovaine caused the man's death. The anaesthetic affected the heart through the nerves."

A Cute Child.

"Every time the baby looks into my face he smiles," said Mr. Meekins.

"Well," answered his wife, "it may not be exactly polite, but it shows he has a sense of humor."

Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its head is clear and its stomach light, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a liquid laxative wonderful in its effect as Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Cullam, Plainville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle only costs 50 cents or $1 according to the size you want and even one 50-cent bottle will do a wonderful amount of good in a family. It can be given to any member of the family in constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and similar digestive troubles. It never gripes or strangles like pills, tablets, salts and powders, which should not be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or other member of the family who needs, but has never used this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can find out what it will do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 509 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

MAN IS DYING; SONS ARE IN JAIL

Family Row in Ford Likely to End Fatally.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 17.—As the result of a family row, Ricuard Stimson of Ford lies in his home at the point of death, while his two sons, John and Charles, are held in the Wayne county jail, pending an investigation. Marshal George Perry of Ford took the young men into custody.

John Stimson told Sheriff Gaston that the trouble was precipitated by the father's dissipated habits. He declared that the father came home intoxicated and drove him and his mother out of the house. He said that Charles was driven out about three months ago and had not lived at home since.

The brother met and decided to return to the house together and get some clothes. They left the house together, and the father followed. Out in the yard, the father rushed at the two, according to John, and the latter met the attack with two blows with his fists.

The old man fell unconscious. He is now in a serious condition. Dr. O'Brien of Wyandotte says the old man has sustained a stroke of apoplexy.

Robbed on Electric Car.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 17.—While he was riding as a passenger on an interurban car of the Orchard Lake division, A. H. Willmarth, 2287 Grand River avenue, was robbed of $72.50. Mr. Willmarth had a parcel in one hand and a jug in the other when he got on the car. As he entered, two men crowded up and jostled him. When he went to pay his fare he found his purse missing. The two men had disappeared.

Russia Rejects the Plan.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The fact that the Russian government has decided to reject Secretary of State Knox's proposal to neutralize the Manchurian railroads caused no surprise here. It has been generally supposed that Russia, Japan and France will oppose the plan.

Sterling recently by chance learned that his brother was living in St. Paul.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

NO NAME CLUB.

The No Name Club had a most delightful evening at the farm home of John Murphy and wife, Tuesday evening. A six o'clock dinner was the first on the program, and the chicken pie and other goodies were discussed in a very thorough manner, the conclusion reached being, "It takes a farmers wife, to satisfy the longings of a hungry body."

After the members had recovered from the effort of eating, cards were in order, four tables of progressive pedro claiming the hour. Prize No. 1 was secured by Mrs. Fred Teachout, while poor Fred captured the booby. Just ask him about it when you see him.

Now Mrs. Murphy not content with her well doing, appears upon the scene with ice cream, cake and wafers and as a final treat, gave them some fine selections on the piano. Altogether it was pronounced one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season.

THIMBLE PARTY.

The meeting of the Clinton Thimble Club, with Misses Florence Rosacrans and Nettie Kaiser, at the Rosacrans home Tuesday evening, proved a very enjoyable affair. An elegant repast was served early in the evening, to which everone did ample justice.

The evening was spent in old fashioned games, new fashioned games, and games of all sorts, and when the party dispersed at ten o'clock for their homeward trip, it was pronounced by all, to be, "just an awful good time."

MONDAY CLUB.

The Tecumseh Monday Club held their regular meeting, Monday Jan. 17, Miss Loana Stacy, Leader. The papers on, Founder of the Royal Line of Vase—Mrs. Cupples.

University of Upsala—Mrs. R. S. Moore, were very interesting and finely rendered, in the absence of Mrs. Simmons, Mrs. Shaw read her paper on Linnaeus, this was also of much interest, and much credit is due Mrs. Shaw for its fine presentation.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 24th. Mrs. Rosacrans, Leader.

* * *

Mrs. Margaret Lowery entertained at tea Tuesday evening. Covers were laid for the following: Mrs. Robert Owens and daughter Alice, Mrs. Rose Burrow and daughter Ethel, Mrs. Albert Osborne, also her two daughters Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Murphy. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

CHARITY BALL.

UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE KINGS DAUGHTERS TO RAISE FUNDS FOR THEIR WORK.

To be given the first week in February

The Kings Daughters wishing to raise funds for their work will give a Charity Ball, the first week in February, the date not yet decided upon.

Their work in our midst is well known, and we feel that they deserve all the help that they can get. Should you not wish to attend the party, you can contribute of your substance, to help the good work along.

Owing to the severe winter there has been quite a call for help and would not turn one away unnoticed. The cup of cold water, the simple flower to the sick and weary ones of earth, the more substantial gifts to those who are in need, all these are but the fulfilling of the Law of Christ and his, "As much as ye have done unto one of these my little ones, ye have done unto me," should promp every one to help in the good work.

Next to a kiss a laugh is the most popular thing in the world. The supply of kisses is limited, being largely controlled by a fair but capricious trust. The supply of laughs, however, is practically unlimited so long as you don't get too grumpy to look for them.

SPORTING!

REPORT FROM THE MEETING OF THE MICHIGAN SOUTHERN LEAGUE BASEBALL.

The Schedule Season Calling for 140 Games.

A special meeting of the officers and magnates of the Southern Michigan League, was held in Lansing, Monday Jan. 17, at the Hotel Downey.

The schedule calling for a playing season of 140 games, was adopted without dissent, giving this league the distinction of having any class D. organization in the country. Each team in the league may carry 13 names on the pay roll. Salary limit for month, $1,200.

Any infraction of this rule will cause trouble to the offending party.

Owing to the trouble last year, of the playing of exhibition games between clubs of the league, these will be cut out the coming season. No manager can release a player within 30 days prior to the close of the season, and a player under contract with one club cannot wear the uniform of another club during that time.

Manager Burkhart of Saginaw, who was expected to oppose the proposed schedule, failed to put in his appearance.

THE SUMMARY.

Secretary Frank has prepared the following summary:

Lansing—15 Saturdays, 8 Sundays, 4 holidays, 2,377 miles.

Kalamazoo—8 Saturdays, 11 Sundays, 3 holidays, 2,965 miles.

Flint—13 Saturdays, 10 Sundays, 2 holidays, 2,637 miles.

Battle Creek—9 Saturdays, 10 Sundays, 3 holidays, 2,703 miles.

Saginaw—9 Saturdays, 10 Sundays, 4 holidays, 2,764 miles.

Jackson—9 Saturdays, 12 Sundays 4 holidays, 2,517 miles.

Bay City—9 Saturdays, 12 Sundays, 3 holidays, 2,628 miles.

Adrian—8 Saturdays, 7 Sundays, 2,624 miles.

As the above shows, Battle Creek would have to travel 326 miles more than Lansing, 186 more than Jackson, 75 more than Bay City and 79 more than Adrian.

MERKLE.

Roger Brenahan is making a strenuous effort to secure his townsman, Fred Merkle, from the New York Giants. If he can secure him he will place him on 2nd base, as he thinks he will make his mark in that position.

AMUSEMENTS.

On Friday evening, Jan. 28, we are to have our long and eagerly anticipated presentation of "St. Elmo." Manager Marks has had the play booked on several previous occasions but so great has been the demand throughout the country for this fascinating drama, that he has been obliged to be content with the assurance that the play would be sent here before the season closed and to give in to the demand of the cities for a time. Now that the engagement is definitely announced it is a pleasure to state that our first glimpse of "St. Elmo" will be at the hands of a company that is unequalled in strength, and who will offer a dramatization of Mrs. Agusta Evan Wilson's novel that is complete and faithful to the text, with Miss Alice Bolton in the leading role.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Just In From Texas!

A LETTER FROM OUR DEAR FRIENDS, THE SLAYTON'S

It is of Interest to the Home Folks And Everybody will be Glad To Hear From Them.

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 17, '10

Dear Editor Herald:

Perhaps you would like a line from the Slaytons, and a bit of fresh Texas gossip.

Yes, we are in Texas, the state of Bowie, Houston, Crockett and other heroes, who began the struggle that gave it to the U. S.

We left home Jan. 4, hoping to find sunshine and balmy breezes, but a "Norther" preceded us and even in Dallas, we found five inches of snow, but since the 8th, have had no cold weather. Today the mercury was 76 above at 2 p. m.

We went as far south as Falfurias, a new town four years old and has a population of 2,200, where fine irrigated farms are producing oranges and all kinds of vegetables.

We stayed several days at Premont, a new town laid out last January, which is growing rapidly. Seven new houses were started the day we left. It has a fine hotel, water works and sewer. From here we drove many miles out to the brush and cleared lands and a fine class of people are settling the place.

After spending two days in Corpus Christi, which was cool and damp, being on the bay, we came to San Antonio, last Friday, and have been enjoying ourselves, seeing the many interesting points in this old city, the largest in the state. Its center of historic interest is the Alamo, where 188 men fell defending it against Santa Anna. The Alamo and The Missions outside the city, were in charge of Franciscan Monks, who tried to educate and christianize the friendly Indians.

The Missions are four in number. San Juan DeCapestrou, built in 1717, San Jose 1718, San Francisco De Espada 1730, and Concepcion De Acuna 1731. The buildings were made of small stones, embeded in cement, and the materials had to be carried miles on the backs of the Indians. The Alamo and Missions were connected by underground tunnels.

This p. m., we visited the Post Fort; Sam Houston, where Uncle Sam maintains one of the most important and next to the largest garrison in the army. The Post including maneuvering grounds, covers 18,000 acres. We were present at parade, and we saw Olin Hodges of Tecumseh.

But what of Texas and its soil, and why is the North swarming with land agents? We have all heard of the great extent of the state, but one can never realize its size till they ride over it. We knew there must be much undeveloped land in some sections, but as soon as you enter the state, you find the mesquite and cactus. cactus and mesquite, and—"then some." This brush has been grazing land and owned by the cattlemen. You ride through miles and miles of this uncleared land, then you see two or three white tents and a brush shack, and here is a Mexican camp engaged in clearing, for the Mexican is the laborer of Texas. Next, a field where the brush and cactus are piled ready to burn. Then a fileld where the plows are turning up for the first time, rich chocolate or black soil, that looks as though it had been in cultivation for years, then more mesquite and cactus, and a mule or two. I could hardly keep C. A. on the train when he saw the possibilities of the sales of gang plows, disc harrows and gasolene engines.

The rich land, the warm climate (and the land agent) has attracted thousands of the best young farmers of the North, and for the past two years there has been a steady migration Southward. But do not think the man who has been a failure in Mich., will succeed in Texas. The same push and energy, necessary to dig dollars out of the soil, will be needed here, also some spare capital to clear, fence and irrigate, for it is irrigation that brings the great productiveness.

Wednesday, we go to Opia City, to spend a week and then home to "Michigan, my Michigan." The only fault we can find with it is the zero weather. Texas is all right for a sojourn, but Michigan for a steady living.

With best wishes,
ALICE M. SLAYTON.

That Wheezy Sound.

"Say," inquired the boy next door of the little girl whose father suffered from asthma, "what makes your father wheeze so?"

"I guess it's one of his inside organs playing."—Puck.

Tommy's Share.

"Well, Tommy, what part of the chicken will you have?"

"Why, paw, you know I always take the back when there's company."—St. Louis Republic.

The desire of appearing clever often prevents one becoming so.—Rochefoucauld.

Bird's Sense of Direction.

The migratory instinct in birds is combined with another equally mysterious, that of the sense of direction. A gentleman engaged in scientific research work for the fishery board on board the government steamboat Gold Seeker recorded a very interesting observation he made of this characteristic of migratory bird life. An oyster catcher that was being buffeted by a head wind in its eastern flight across the North sea toward the continental shores alighted on the boat. It took kindly to the attention paid to it so long as the boat kept its easterly course, but when the course of the boat was altered a few points to the northward the bird immediately showed signs of uneasiness and after an apparent consideration of its bearings flew into the darkness of the night on its eastbound course. The alteration in the boat's course was revealed to those who were watching the bird only when the compass was examined.—

MR. MORRIS KELLY.

Morris Kelly was born in the town of Groveland, New York State Dec. 9, 1832. He came to Ridgeway Lenawee County in the early fifties, and June 12, '55, he married Miss Tabith M. Biggs and to their union was born one son, Charles Kelly. Mrs. Kelly died March 31, 1870, Mr. Kelly then went back to his old home in Groveland, and Feb. 26, 1871 married Miss Addie Heath, to their union was born one daughter, Marcia. They came to his farm in Ridgeway township, and lived there until the fall of '83 they then moved to their village home where they lived. Mrs. Kelly died Jan. 21, '02, he kept his home till he died Dec. 19, '09. He was buried from his home Dec. 22, at 1 p. m. Service conducted by Rev. Bird pastor of the M. E. Church, of which he has long been a member.

He leaves to mourn his loss, one brother, John A. Kelly of Groveland, N. Y., and one daughter, Mrs. Ed Baker, six grandsons and two grand daughters, they helped to cheer his lonely life, as he went to see them every day. He will be missed by his friends and neighbors, he was always ready to do an act of kindness for every one.

Another one of the old pioneers has gone, and it is befitting us to acknowledge our debt of gratitude to all who helped to make our homes what they are today, out of a wilderness of woods as it was in the early fifties, and it is with deep regret we lay them away one by one.

He Had Learned It.

Willie, five years old, was in his father's office one afternoon waiting to go home with him. Mr. S. was very much occupied in fact, so much so that he had quite forgotten that his young son was sitting behind him. At length the telephone rang, and Mr. S. was told that there was a long distance call for him. He called "Hello" a number of times, and just when his patience had about given out central rang vigorously while the receiver was still at his ear. At this Mr. S. uttered a terrible and forbidden word.

The words were no sooner out of his mouth than he remembered that his son was but a few feet from him. Wheeling about in his chair, he said, with humility:

"That was very wrong of father to say those naughty words, Willie. I hope," he added, "that my little boy will never use such dreadful language."

"I—I won't never say it, papa," replied the child, with a mischievous twinkle in his eye, "but I learned it all the same!"—Harper's Magazine.

The Pun.

The golden age of the pun in Britain was the reign of King James I., the "Stuart Solomon." That learned sovereign was himself a passable punster and made few privy councilors or bishops who were not reputed to be good at a quip. It was therefore in his day that the pun appeared with pomp and dignity. It had been before admitted into merry speeches and ludicrous compositions, but was now delivered with great gravity from the pulpit or pronounced in the most solemn manner at the council table. The greatest authors in their most serious works made frequent use of puns.—London Globe.

Mistaken Identity.

"Oh, doctor, he growled so savagely I was sure he was mad even before he went on in such a biting way."

"I beg pardon, madam, but is it your large dog or your small pet one you are speaking of?"

"Law, doctor, it isn't my dog I am talking about. It's my husband."—Baltimore American.

RACING PIGEONS.

Their Wonderful Speed and Mysterious Homing Instinct.

Racing pigeons are the fleetest of all creatures. They have maintained a speed of a mile and a half a minute for a hundred miles, according to a writer in Collier's, and they have flown 700 miles between the rising and the setting of the sun.

Pigeons have flown a thousand miles back to the home loft. In 1904 a bird covered that distance in 5 days 2 hours 15 minutes, proving how unerring is the mysterious homing instinct that will drive pigeons across the continent without swerving. But this test is not true sport. The birds simply hurl themselves against time and space till they are played out. They can never race again.

The piper rises into the air with heavy, slow wing pulsations; then, once poised over the starting point, there is a swifter, shorter beat, and the time is "hit up" to the third and permanent wing rhythm, rapid and steady as a pulse beat, which carries it home.

Racers fly 400 feet high over land, but low over water. Their enemies are they fly are wind, rain, gunners and hawks. They do all their flying between sunrise and sunset. If caught out overnight they fend for themselves till dawn.

The homing instinct is lifelong. During the Franco-Prussian war the Germans caught a homing pigeon which was on its way into beleaguered Paris. The bird was kept prisoner for ten years. It was then released. It immediately returned to its old home.

DISCOVERED BY ACCIDENT.

How the Paving Value of Asphalt Was Brought to Notice.

All forms of bituminous pavements, whether manufactured from natural or artificial asphalt, are in fact artificial stone pavements. The industry started with the use of the natural rock asphalt from the mines in the Val de Travers, Canton Neufchatel, Switzerland. The mines were discovered in 1721, but it was in 1849 that its utility as a road covering was first noticed. The rock was then being mixed for the purpose of extracting the bitumen contained in it for use in medicine and arts. It is a limestone found impregnated with bitumen, of which it yields on analysis from 8 to 14 per cent.

It was observed that pieces of rock which fell from the wagon were crushed by the weight of wheels, and under the combined influence of the traffic and heat of the sun a good road surface was produced. A miniature road of asphalt rock was then made which gave very good results, and money in 1854 a portion of the Rue Bergere was laid in Paris of compressed asphalt on a concrete foundation. In 1858 a still larger sample was laid, and from that time it has been laid year by year in Paris. From Paris it extended to London, being laid on Threadneedle street in 1869 and Cheapside in 1870 and in successive years on other streets, and then its use in street and road making extended to other countries.—Exchange.

Both Rather Flippant.

There is a curious parallelism between two stories told respectively of the late Mr. Spurgeon and of Dean Swift.

Mr. Spurgeon on hearing of the devastation wrought by an earthquake in Essex merely remarked, "I am glad to hear that my county is moving at last."

The dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin, was watching with a friend the roof of a building on which several men were at work fixing slates. Suddenly one of the men vanished. Thereupon the dean turned to his companion and said, "I like to see a man go quickly through his work."

Egotism of Genius.

When Wordsworth, Southey and Coleridge were walking together, and Coleridge remarked that the day was so fine "it might have been ordered for three poets," the gentle Wordsworth promptly exclaimed: "Three poets! Who are the other two?"

Disraeli, when a mere youth, wrote to his sister that he had heard Macauley, Shell and Grant speak, "but between ourselves I could floor them all." And again he said, "When I want to read a good book I write one."

A Soldier's Beginnings.

We were visiting at Sandringham Sir Evelyn Wood, who is very deaf, crept up as near as he could to the musicians, and in one of the pauses he said to me, "Are you fond of music?" I answered, "Yes." "Do you play anything?" I said, "No." "Well," he went on, "I am so fond of it that, would you believe it, I began to practice scales at twenty-four. But one day my sister came up and put her hand on my shoulder and said, 'My dear boy, you had better give that up,' and so I did." He also told me that he began life as a sailor, then went to the bar and finally entered the army. The only profession he had not tried was the church, and his enemies say he would have tried that, only he did not know what church to choose.—"Life of Sir William Broadbent."

Norway's Many Meals.

Among the well to do in Norway the frequency of meals and lighter refreshments is something startling, at least to the average American—breakfast at 9, dinner at 3, coffee at 3:30, regular tea, with many dishes, in English style, at 4:30, supper at 7, and at 11 nature is finally fortified with further nutriment for the long, radiant night. These long, radiant nights, by the way, are a constant peril to Christiania. They encourage many forms of dissipation and immorality, much as the corresponding darkness of the long winter brings in its train a certain sordid depression, both mental and physical.—Caroline Thurber in Century.

Stage Fright.

"They tell me your husband has become one of the easiest and most graceful after dinner speakers in the city. I understand he has no end of engagements

"Yes, and I have to sit up and give him a good dinner after every one of them."

"After every banquet?"

"Yes. When he knows they are going to call on him to speak he's always too scared to eat."—New York Journal.

Wrong Method.

He breathed his vow, yet still she regarded him with disdain.

"It is from my heart of hearts!" he protested.

"Where did you go to school that you breathe from your heart of hearts rather than from your diaphragm?" she demanded severely.—Puck.

W. C. McCONNELL
ADRIAN, MICH.

Tiny Work.

Mark Scillot, a blacksmith, in 1578, in the twentieth year of Queen Elizabeth's reign, made a lock consisting of eighteen pieces of steel, iron and brass, with a hollow key to it, that altogether weighed but one grain of gold. He also made a gold chain, composed of forty-three links, which he fastened to the lock and key. In the presence of the queen he put the chain about the neck of a flea, which drew it with ease, after which he put the lock and key, flea and chain into a pair of scales, and they together weighed but one grain and a half. This is vouched for by an old writer.

Impossible.

A lusty lunged auctioneer was holding forth in flowery terms on the virtues of a particular brand of cigars he was endeavoring to induce his audience to purchase. Holding up a box of cigars, he shouted: "You can't get better, gentlemen. I don't care where you go, you can't get better!"

"No," came a cynical voice from a man in the crowd, "you can't. I smoked one last week and I'm not better yet!"—People.

Something New In Kitchen Ware

The "1892" Pure Spun Aluminum Ware is rapidly coming into use for cooking purposes. It is taking the place of agate and enamel ware because while its first cost is a trifle more than ordinary ware, it is really much cheaper in the long run, as it is guaranteed for twenty-five years and will last practically a life time.

The genuine "1892" Ware, made only from pure SPUN (not cast) Aluminum, will not crack, scale, peel, break, scorch or burn.

It looks like silver but weighs only about one-quarter as much, is easily cleaned and handled, and will not rust, corrode or tarnish. Absolutely pure, non-poisonous and wholesome; saves money, time and doctor's bills.

Be sure you get the original and genuine ware stamped with the Maltese Cross. At your dealers.

In the death of Johannes Decker of Battle Creek, which occured this week we feel a touch of sadness. Though he has not been here of late yet we felt he might drop in upon us at any time. But now the ties of earth are severed to be united in another world.

LUCKY ACCIDENT

Experience Of One Of Our Mail Carriers.

Earl Updyke was the star performer in a very lucky accident Wednesday. While going on his usual trip he stopped at the box in front of Lee McConnell's house. The snow had become so soft that one runner of his rig settled down in such a manner as to overturn it completely. This frightened the horse who ran for quite a distance kicking the glass in the front and breaking it in any number of pieces. All this time Earl was shut up in his little box with the other mail. He escaped unhurt but the horse had a long cut on one leg. Another horse was soon on the spot and he finished his trip. He is willing that someone else try it next time.

BUGGY ANNOUNCEMENT.

During 1909 we examined a great many buggies, desiring to have the very best that money would buy for 1910, not only to be the most stylish but the most durable. We decided to buy the Racine Sattley line and went to the fadtory in August to see the way buggies were made. All the lumber used in these buggies are seasoned dryed springs, wheels, boxes, paint and in fact every part of the buggy is made in one mamoth plant.

No expence has been spared to make this line of buggies a line of quality, not of price, with the most up-to-date styles such as the auto-top-seats, not auto seats but auto-top seats, single wash, etc.

We have just received a carload of sample jobs, no two alike, as we bought these buggies before the last raise in price and had them delivered here, we are going to give our friends the benefit of the difference in price, but it must be understood no duplicate job can be sold for same money.

While the stock is complete, we ask you to call and look over the assortment; we want your business on the principle of giving you the very best values for your money. If you have decided to buy a "cheap" buggy, we can sell you one but it, will be a different make, in appearence about the same, but not in quality.

WEDDING BELLS!

Marriage In High Life.

AN EVENT OF MUCH INTEREST TO THE COMMUNITY

The Contracting Parties Being Great Favorites in the Social World.

It was our good fortune to be present at the marriage ceremony, that took place Thursday evening, Jan. 20, at the Young Men's club rooms.

The contracting parties were Bettina, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Q. T. Vandergool. The groom, Count De Bust, from Bingen on the Bine. To the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Edyth Shull, the bridal party slowly advanced to the altar—the Count attended by Count Hans Peter Guyglenologges. The bride, supported by the Princess Hollfront.

Prince Roustabout, acted as Page, and little Alfalfa Straw, ring bearer.

Madam Patti sang in a most feeling manner, "Oh Promise Me."

The bridal party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Vandergool, the Countess De Martelle Mannering and the Earl of Dudley, drew near the altar, when Father O'Farley pronounced the words that made the couple one.

After congratulations and best wishes had been given by the company, light refreshments were served. The bride s cake deserves special mention for its beautiful appearance, and its excellence. Leon Williamson was the lucky one in securing the ring, while Blanche Muir had the thimble.

The rooms were beautifully decorated, white prevailing in the parlor. The dining room was in red, which lent its color to add to the beauty of the assembled guests. These young people are all well known in our midst but with their usual modesty they are not known by their titles The costumes of the party were elegant in the extreme.

The bride's was of white satin de croton with persian bands in the dantiest colors, her veil wrapped her fair form in its graceful folds. She carried a boquet of bridal roses. The Count wore the conventional black, with the ribbon of his order and other badges to mark his rank.

Mr. and Mrs. Vandergool, parents of the bride, were a noticable couple. The mother with her beautiful crown of grey hair. She was dressed in black silk flowered with purple. The father carried himself with great dignity. The princess Halibrant was lovely in her robe of yellow and carried a large boquet of flowers. Little Alfalfa Straw in blue to the tips of her dainty toes, attracted much attention. As members of the club they were the recipients of a miscellaneous shower, which will go far to furnish their pantry, and beautify their rooms. Later in the evening the floors were cleared and dancing was indulged in for a few hours.

Altogether this was one of the most unique Mock Weddings it has been our pleasure to witness, and we wish the club and its friends many happy events in the time to come.

Married Men's Troubles

It was married men's night at the revival meeting.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles in your minds stand up!" shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasm.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the preacher, peering out at this lone sitter, who occupied a chair near the door and apart from the others: "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. "I can't get up; I'm paralyzed!"

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stiffe your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

The farm is a sort of clock which reflects the time of year.

Rev. I. W. Williams Testifies

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., writes us as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it. Sold by all druggists.

Followed the Book.

"Die, Bertrand Maltravers!" hissed the villain. And the hero of the piece prepared to fall and perish, as per instructions of the prompt book.

But, alack, the revolver with which the fell deed was to be executed failed to do its horrid work! The villain, however, was a man of resource.

He stole behind his victim and smote him on the head with the butt end of the refractory weapon, and the hero, thinking one death as good as another, fell to the ground.

All would have gone well now, but the promoted super, who was taking the part of the policeman who discovered the body, was late in taking his cue. He walked on and in due course found the body. He was not a funny man by any means, but still his first words caused a yell of laughter.

"Shot!" he cried tragically. "He's been shot through the back!"—London Scraps.

A Peculiarity of Dreams.

As to dreams, there was a discussion at the club lunch, and one man remarked that no man dreamed of himself as braver than he is. When the dream came the dreamer was always the underdog. He was in horrible danger and never did anything picturesque to face it. There may be men who are brave in their sleep, but it would be interesting to find one man outside of the dozen sleeping cowards who is a hero in a dream.—London Chronicle.

A Disappointment.

"Uncle Jed," asked his neighbor, "how is your boy getting along at college?"

"First rate," answered Uncle Jed. "He hasn't cost me a cent. He's working his way through, he's winning all the class honors, and they're promised him a professorship of some kind."

"Great Scott," gasped his neighbor. "Is that all he is doing? With that big husky frame of his I supposed he'd be playing center by this time!"—Chicago Tribune.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

COLOSSUS OF RHODES.

One of the Ancient Seven Wonders of the World.

The ancients succeeded in making that alloy of copper which is known as bronze. Among the seven wonders of the world was the famous statue, wholly made of bronze, historically known as the Colossus of Rhodes. It represented Phoebus, the national deity of the Rhodians. It was begun by Chares, a pupil of Lysippus, the sculptor, and was completed by Laches 288 B. C. The popular belief is that it stood astride the harbor of Rhodes, that it was 105 feet high and that ships could easily sail between its legs.

Pliny said that few men could clasp its thumb. It was cast on metal plates, afterward joined together, and this process occupied twelve years. In the interior was a spiral staircase reaching into its head, and in a great mirror suspended to its neck were reflected the coast of Syria and the ships sailing to Egypt.

After it had stood for sixty-four years this colossus was overthrown by an earthquake, and its remains lay on the shore for 923 years—that is, until A. D. 672—when they were sold by the Saracens to a dealer. The original cost was 300 talents—about $3,000,000—and it is not too much to say that a similar things might be constructed now for one-fourth of the time and at one-third of the original cost. Rhodes, by the way, must have had colossus on the brain, for Pliny relates that the port was adorned with 1,000 colossal statues of the sun.

LONDON THEATERS.

The Ordeal of Getting Past the Aged Ticket Taker.

The first difference I always find between going to the play in London and in New York is that in New York the man who has paid for a seat is made to feel that he is a patron of the house, while in London he is greeted by the staff of the theater not exactly as an intruder, but as a necessary evil. They appreciate that an audience is a necessary evil, but sooner than have one they would almost prefer to close the house.

In London for that important strategic outpost of ticket taker an old man of eighty is always employed. You think this is accident, but it is not. Old age naturally suggests failing eyesight, and when he keeps you waiting in the foyer while he examines your ticket and assures himself that it is not a laundry bill or a motor bus receipt you attribute the delay to his old eyes. But in detaining you he has a motive. Standing at his elbow, scowling darkly, there always is another man, apparently a plain clothes out from Scotland Yard, uncomfortably disguised in evening dress. And while the aged ticket taker pretends to scrutinize your ticket the lookout man scans you. You cannot escape his eye. He never sleeps. No American, no matter how reckless, can hope to pass that man with a concealed bomb or a revolver or wearing a white tie with a dinner coat.—Collier's.

Flies at Sea.

The finding of flies and butterflies a long way out at sea is perhaps to most readers a fact not very well known. A recent traveler in the tropics relates that when thirty miles out from land a plague of flies overtook the vessel on which he was steaming. The cabin was so full of them that the beams were blackened. Common black houseflies they were for the most part, with, however, a good sprinkling of large green flies. Where they could have come from was a mystery, but they were a terrible nuisance, and, although those on board swept off hundreds in a net, their numbers were not sensibly diminished. Another singular circumstance was that, although no land was in sight, large dragon flies repeatedly flew across the ship, and a large dark butterfly was observed to flit across in the direction of the nearest land, quite thirty miles away, without stopping to rest on the vessel at all.—London Globe.

AVOID HARSH DRUGS.

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels.

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless and colorless. Combined with other well known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons and aged people as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in two size packages, 12 tablets 10 cents, 36 tablets 25 cents. Remember you can obtain them only at our store.—The Rexall Store. The B. J. Pulver drug store.

CAUGHT THE MOOD.

The Incident That Helped Verdi With His "Miserere."

Men of genius are confessedly creatures of mood. Grief and adversity have often been a real help to them rather than a hindrance. Poe, it is said, produced "The Raven" while sitting at the bedside of his sleeping but dying wife. Many similar instances might be cited, but an anecdote of Verdi, told by Carlo Beccarelli, will suffice.

On one occasion when Verdi was engaged on his well known opera, "Il Trovatore," he stopped short at the passage of the "Miserere," being at a loss to combine notes of sufficient sadness and pathos to express the grief of the prisoner, Manrico.

Sitting at his piano in the deep stillness of the winter night, his imagination wandered back to the stormy days of his youth, endeavoring to extract from the past a plaint, a groan, like those which escaped from his breast when he saw himself forsaken by the world. All in vain!

One day at Milan he was unexpectedly called to the bedside of a dying friend, one of the few who had remained faithful to him in adversity and prosperity. Verdi at the sight of his dying friend felt a lump rise in his throat. He wanted to weep, but so intense was his grief that not a tear flowed to the relief of his anguish.

In an adjoining room stood a piano. Verdi, under one of those sudden impulses to which men of genius are sometimes subject, sat down at the instrument and there and then improvised the sublime "Miserere" or the "Trovatore." The musician had given utterance to his grief.

QUEER JEWELRY.

Telegraph Wire Necklaces and Insulators as Earrings.

The aesthetic and decorative uses to which barbarians will turn objects which to civilized races are things of the humblest utility are amusingly illustrated by this "fashion note" from West Africa taken from an Italian newspaper:

For some time the officials of the German colony in Southwest Africa noticed that the telegraph wires and other accessories of the electrical plant disappeared as by magic immediately after they had been put up. The most diligent inquiries remained fruitless.

From other parts of the German possessions came reports of strange predictions for articles of German commerce, as, for example, rubber heels, garters, buckles and so forth, things which the natives of those countries do not generally use.

The governor of the colony gave an entertainment one year in honor of the emperor's birthday and invited the chiefs of the different tribes to it. What was his surprise when he saw these native gentlemen appear with his stolen telegraph wires twisted round their illustrious necks. The higher the dignity the more rings of the wire were round the neck.

Inquiries were soon started in the outlying villages, and it came to light that the white china insulators of the telegraph poles had become earrings. A young lady of the highest distinction in native society wore a rubber heel hanging from her nose, and a young man who was a well known dandy wore dangling from his ears a pair of beautiful pink silk garters.

Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its head is clear and its stomach light, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a liquid laxative wonderful in its effect as Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Cullam, Plainville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle only costs 50 cents or $1 according to the size you want, and even the 50-cent bottle will do a wonderful amount of good in a family. It can be given to any member of the family in constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and similar digestive troubles. It never gripes or strangles like pills, tablets, salts and powders, which should not be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or other member of the family who needs, but has never used this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can find out what it will do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 356 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

BULLET FOR DOG KILLS WOMAN

Farmer Near Niles Meant to Slay Mad Animal.

HIT WIFE OF A NEIGHBOR

Missile, From Rifle Struck Frozen Ground, Glanced Upward and Struck Mrs. Martin Price, Who Was 100 Yards Away, in Temple—Hostetter, Man Who Fired Shot, Not Arrested.

Niles, Mich., Jan. 24.—Glancing from the frozen ground, a bullet from a rifle in the hands of Fred Hostetter, a well known farmer living three miles southeast of here, fired at a mad dog, struck and instantly killed Mrs. Martin Price, wife of a near neighbor farmer.

The tragedy occurred in the near vicinity of the Hostetter and Price farm homes about 10 o'clock last night. Farmers in that section have lived in terror of mad dogs for several weeks, since a rabid dog owned by a South Bend man ran amuck through the country and bit other dogs and livestock. Hostetter had been spending the evening at the home of a neighbor, and on returning to his home he was attacked by a strange dog almost in front of his house. He ran into the house, secured his rifle and, returning to the road, fired at the dog.

At the time he fired Hostetter says he did not notice any person in the near vicinity. Mrs. Price and her husband alighted from an interurban car a moment before the shot was fired and were on their way to their home. They were about 100 yards distant from Hostetter when he shot at the dog. At the shot, Mrs. Price pitched forward dead. Mr. Price yelled, and Hostetter ran to him. Lifting Mrs. Price from the ground, they carried her into her home. Then it was discovered the bullet had entered her head and pierced the brain.

A doctor was summoned from Niles by telephone, and the chief of police went to the scene of the shooting. Hostetter remained at the Price home until they arrived. He says he was not aware of the near presence of the Prices until he heard Mr. Price cry out. As it was apparently a pure accident, it is not likely Hostetter will be arrested.

Fails to Meet Bride at Altar.

Flint, Mich., Jan. 24.—Dispatches received here from Brockton, Mass., state that Winthrop E. Moore, employed in a local automobile plant, had "sunked" at the altar in the eastern city when he was about to be married to Miss Marion Shaw, twenty years old. The young woman, who was graduated from the Brockton high school last June, was in her wedding clothes and waiting for the groom, but he failed to appear, and later, it is said, she was informed that he had started for Flint again.

In a carload of sheep received the other day by Henry E. Payne of Bancroft, thirteen were found dead. The sheep came from Chicago and had been on the road thirty-six hours without food or water. Payne refused to accept the remainder of the carload, but he said he would care for them until they could be shipped back to Chicago.

Homer has a warm fight for the postmastership, with four candidates hustling for the appointment. They are Stephen Allen, whose twelve years of service in the office ends Feb. 10; O. L. A Week of Blunders.

Sir William Harcourt once told me that he had dined out every night for a whole week in advance of his invitation. He discovered his mistake only on the last night, when on going to dine with some people who gave long invitations and large dinners he found them alone. After a very pleasant evening he thanked them for asking him in so friendly a manner, whereupon they explained that the invitation had been for a week later, but that they had been only too delighted at his mistake. On hearing this Sir William looked at his engagement book and discovered that this was the last of a number of invitations which he had anticipated by a week.—"Memories of Fifty Years," by Lady St.

TAFT CAME BACK AT TILLMAN

South Carolina Senator Stirs Up Banqueters.

WITH CHARACTERISTIC SPEECH

Chief Executive, in Reply, Contradicted Senator in Such Way That Even Tillman Came Around and Slapped Him on Back—Occasion Was Meeting of Carabao Order.

Washington, Jan. 24.—A large portion of the 150 men who attended last night's annual dinner of the Washington corral, Military Order of the Carabao, are saying that they are mighty glad they were there. It was the most notable function in the history of the Washington branch of this organization, whose membership is limited to officers of the army, the navy and the marine corps who served in the Philippines during the period of the Aguinaldo insurrection. The Hon. Benjamin R. Tillman, senator from South Carolina, ran afoul of the Hon. William H. Taft, president of the United States, and got a spanking.

It was a spanking scientifically administered, and incidentally it placed M. Taft in the front rank of after dinner speakers. While serious at times, he interposed his remarks with good-natured satire at Mr. Tillman's expense and put everybody, including Mr. Tillman, in good humor.

Characteristic "Pitchfork" Speech.

Mr. Tillman was the first speaker of the evening. He made a characteristic pitchfork speech, alleging that the members of the Carabao society, by the very songs they had sung, acknowledged that they were ashamed of the part they took in the conquest of the Philippines. According to Mr. Tillman, mixture of races in the Philippines had brought a new race question to the United States, and he used such expressions as "hell broth," "mongrels" and "miscegenation."

A good many of the other diners were pretty angry over what Mr. Tillman was saying. What made them most indignant, however, was his reference to Cuba. Next to the presiding officer, Rear Admiral McLean, sat General Carlos Garcia Velez, the Cuban minister, and part of Mr. Tillman's remarks were addressed at him. The South Carolina senator said that Cuba had a black vice president, and, with a wave of his hand toward General Velez, referred to "this Caucasian." "And when I think of the mixture of races in the Philippines," cried the "pitchfork" statesman, "when I think of the mongreal, worthless, damnable mixture of blood going on in Cuba which we are obliged to mix with our own; when I consider this hell broth that is being brewed, I do not know where it is all to end. We have departed from the fundamental principles of our government."

Hull Replied to Tillman.

Representative Hull of Iowa, chairman of the house committee on military affairs, came back at Senator Tillman in a defense of the government's Philippines policy and was applauded loudly. There was much enthusiasm when President Taft arose to speak. It was evident that he could not ignore the statements of Senator Tillman and particularly those referring to Cuba. Those who expected him to speak in tones of anger were disappointed. His attitude toward Mr. Tillman was that of a father toward an erring child, and when the president finished there was a wild outburst and Mr. Tillman ran over and patted Mr. Taft on the back. The president spoke, in part, as fallows:

"Now, my friend, the distinguished senator from South Carolina, I have known well, have been glad to know, have been honored by his friendship, and I want to assure you that he is a good deal better fellow that you sometimes think from what he says. He is not always one who sits and talks, thinking about the race question and miscegnation and amalgamation, and that sort of thing. He does have other thoughts, but when he gets on his feet and starts on that slippery subject it requires a good deal of force or a good deal of poise to keep him from going further than he really wanted to go himself."

The president declared that Cuba was not going to be annexed and painted a glorious picture of the Philippines.

GETTING OUT BODIES.

Thirty-one Have Been Taken From Coaches in Spanish River.

Nairn, Ont., Jan. 24.—The icebound Spanish river has begun to give up its dead.

Fourteen bodies have been recovered, making a list of dead whose names are known of twenty-five, in addition to six unidentified women and children, whose bodies were taken from the first-class coach.

Besides these thirty-one, it is supposed that a score of bodies will be found in the tourist car, and an unknown number were burned to ashes with the second-class car.

FIFTEEN RESCUED.

Fishing Smack's Captain and Crew Perform Deeds of Valor.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 24.—A timely bit of rescue work was done Sunday by Captain Levi Jackson and the four men of his fishing smack Priscilla. They succeeded in getting near enough to the schooner Mertie B. Crowley to save the lives of Captain Haskell, Mrs. Haskell and thirteen of the crew, all of whom had been lashed to the rigging from 6 o'clock Sunday morning until 4 p. m.

The Crowley hit Northeast Shoal, off Wasque bluff, at the southeastern end of Martha's Vineyard island, about 6:30 in the morning.

COST OF LIVING NEVER SO HIGH

Bradstreet Gives Out Some Surprising Figures.

HAS ADVANCED 61 PER CENT

This Has Taken Place in Last Fourteen Years—Secretary Wilson Will Present Surprising Facts Before Washington Investigating Committee—Farmer Not Getting Money.

New York, Jan. 24.—Bradstreets has compiled a record of prices on ninety-six commodities that enter into daily and direct consumption by the people, and the result shows that the cost of living has now reached an absolutely high record, exceeding even that of March 1, 1907, when prices went soaring in anticipation of the panic which came in the fall of that year. The figures for Dec. 1, last, were below the previous high record of 1907, but the continuous skyward movement of prices in the last month of 1909 had established a new high water mark by Jan. 1.

The figures compiled by Bradstreets are known as "index numbers." They are based on actual wholesale quotations per pound for the commodities in question, which, to make them comprehensive, are averaged over a wide area of markets. When it is said that the index number for Jan. 1, 1910, was $9.2310 it means that a man buying at wholesale one pound each of the ninety-six commodities on that date would have to pay that sum as a total. No attempt is made to compute retail prices because of the wide fluctuations.

Surpasses 1907.

The new "number" surpasses the previous high record of March 1, 1907, $9.1293, by 1.1 per cent. This ratio also measures the advance that was made on the ninety-six commodities in the month of December, last. At the same time the present index number reflects a gain of 11.7 over Jan. 1, 1909, which means that the prices of the ninety-six articles rose approximately 97 cents within a year's time.

The lowest point for commodity prices for which Bradstreets have any record was touched on July, 1896, when the index number was $6.7019. The latest figure shows a gain of more than 61 per cent over this number, indicating, of course, that for every dollar you spent then for living expenses you are spending $1.61 now.

This week will see some interesting developments in the movement against high cost of living. Next to the action of the federal authorities against the beef trust, the investigation by the District of Columbia committee of the house of representatives promises to yield the most satisfactory results. That committee is scheduled to begin its investigation today. While the inquiry will be confined to conditions in Washington, they will apply throughout the country. The announcement has been made that the committee would summon experts from all parts of the country. One of the first to testify before the committee will be Secretary of Agriculture Wilson.

Had His Men at Work.

The secretary has had his men at work all over the country collecting information, and he already has formed some pretty definite conclusions which he has expressed off and on recently.

The secretary already is satisfied that the farmer is not getting the exorbitant profits out of the beef that he raises. The secretary has little doubt that the excessive profits on other farm products also are going into somebody elses pocket. In the secretary's opinion, there is some excuse for a certain increase in the cost of living because the farmer has not been keeping pace with the increasing population, but this condition does not explain the present prices.

One cause for high prices, as the department of agriculture views the situation, is the decline of the neighborhood farmer. Fifteen or twenty years ago farmers living near small cities used to have their family customers. The neighborhood farmer began his decline with the appearance of the refrigerator cars.

HELD FOR TRIAL.

Pugilist Johnson Charged With Assault on Another Colored Man.

New York, Jan. 24.—Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, got the worst of his encounter with Norman Pinder, a featherweight colored man, when the two met Sunday in the Jefferson market court for the next round of their legal bout.

Johnson is charged with assaulting Pinder in a saloon. Pinder was in court with a bad eye.

The big fighter claimed Pinder hurt himself by falling down stairs.

"It is strange how people fall down stairs on their eyes," said the court. "I find this defendant guilty, and I will hold him for trial in $1,000 bail."

Johnson signed his bail bond with the air of a king pardoning an anarchist.

PINCHOT'S NEW JOB.

Elected President of National Conservation Association.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The election of Gifford Pinchot, to succeed Dr. C. W. Eliot, as president of the National Conservation association has been announced. Dr. Eliot, at whose suggestion Mr. Pinchot was elected, retains the honorary presidency. Mr. Pinchot will take active charge of the association at once. Headquarters will be in Washington. In commenting on his election Mr. Pinchot declared that the association was not in politics. It has been rumored that it was designed to bring Theodore Roosevelt back to the White House.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

'WETS' AND 'DRYS' TO WAGE BATTLE.

Latter Seek Submission of Local Option In 20 Counties and Former Start Fight In 11.

With the January meetings of the boards of supervisors in many of the counties of the state, the second phase of the 1910 local option campaign is on. Some of the county boards met Monday morning, others will meet Thursday, and still others next Monday.

Last October the supervisors of 17 counties accepted petitions calling for submission of the option question, on petition of the "drys"; in five other counties, the "wets" submitted petitions for elections, which were accepted.

The January meetings will see the wets presenting petitions for elections in six more counties now dry, while the Anti-Saloon league forces will attempt to force elections in St. Clair, Kent and Cass counties. The St. Clair situation is now before the supreme court, while allegations of fraud in getting up the local option petition are being made in Kent county and a big fight is expected there next Monday.

Eminent counsel have been retained by both sides to argue the Kent county case. The wets allege that a great many signatures were obtained by false representations of various kinds, and they will attempt to strike shese signatures off the petition, leaving the number of names too few to compel the submission of the question.

While the wets got very much the worst of it last spring, 19 counties going dry, they seem to be preparing for a warm campaign next spring. Of the 30 dry counties in the state, it is possible, under the law to hold elections in 11, and the wets will go after them all, including even VanBuren county, which has been dry for 20 years or more.

Petitions in favor of elections to once more allow the saloon will be presented to the boards of supervisors of Barry, St. Joseph, Gratiot, Midland and Osceola counties. Elections have already been called, on petition of the wets, in Oakland, Wexford, Clinton, Missaukee and Oceana counties.

In the upper peninsula counties, some of the petitions presented by the drys were turned down on the charges of fraud made. In Marquette county, such charges were made and the petition withdrawn.

An interesting situation developed in Gladwin county, where the chairman of the supervisors' committee which passed upon the dry petition was a saloonkeeper. The petition had but 149 more than the required number of names, but the committee, after investigation, unanimously reported that the document was O. K. and recommended the holding of the local option election, the saloonkeeper's name heading the report.

SOUR STOMACH

Mi-o-na Puts the Stomach in Fine Shape in Five Minutes

If your stomach is continually kicking up a disturbance; you feel bloated and distressed; if you belch gas and sour food into the mouth, then you need Mi-ona Stomach Tablets, the best prescription for indigestion ever written.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets give instant relief, of course, but they do more; they drive out the poisonous gases that cause fermentation of food and thoroughly clean, renovate and strengthen the stomach so that it can readily digest food without artificial aid.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are guaranteed to cure indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back. This means that nervousness, dizziness and biliousness will disappear. Druggists everywhere sell Mi-o-na for 50 cents a large box. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

Life Insurance For Members Of The Grange.

The special committee on plans for a life insurance department in the state grange met in Jackson Thursday of last week. This committee is composed of L H. McNaughten of Kent, N. F. Baker of Cheboygan, M. P. Hull of Diamondale and John Wild of Coopersville. This is the sub committee to the executive committee of the grange.

The plan for this insurance company was brought up at the meeting held in Traverse City where Mr. McNaughten presented a plan which is now being used by the committee as the basis of its work. The plan provides policies from $250 to $2000 on the lives of persons from 14 to 45 years of age. Only persons in good standing in the grange can take out policies and if at any time they should prove in bad standing these policies become void. The officers are to be the master of the grange, the secretary, the chairman of the executive committee and six members of the insurance company elected at their annual meeting.

Statistics show farmers to be among the longest lived people in the country, so it is expected that the rates will be very low. The report of this committee will be presented to the grange in a few weeks, and should it be adopted the work will begin as soon as they have secured the necessary $200. We would think this might be a fine thing for those belonging to the gronge.

Curacao's Good Schools.

In all Curacao schools, from the most exclusive to the humblest government school, in which the little black or parchment Dutch twigs are bent, Dutch, French, Spanish, English and Papiemento are used and taught. By the neighboring islands and even on the mainland and as far away as Central America these schools are highly regarded, and a large number of foreign children are sent to Curacao to get their education.—Charles Johnson Post in Century.

A LETTER FROM FLORIDA

Glenwood, Fla., Jan. 20, 1910.

Dear Bro. Henry:

Well, here we are in the land of sunshine, no cold since we came, and only had a fire one evening. I will tell you about N. Y., and our journey from Washington here. Well, we went down to the largest and finest union station in the U. S. if not in the world. It was built by the railroads combined this last summer. I bought two tickets to New York via the Penn. R. R. The distance is 225 miles and I supposed the fare would be $4.50 or maybe less, but much to my surprise it was $6.30 apiece or a little over three cents a mile. I thought maybe that would include parlor or chair car but found a cheap grade of iron car with seats such as they used to run on the Jackson branch twenty years ago and dirty at that. The conductor had me show my tickets after every stop five times. I said to him, "Your're a back number, why don't you give me a hat check and be done with it" well, he said that was the way they had of doing it and that settled it. I thought of the great state of Pendsylvania and the smaller one of Maryland and New Jersey and was reminded of Cicero's oration, "How long O Cataline! will thou abuse our patience."

Arrived in Jersey City on time, 1:45 p. m., and took elevator down to subway which was all lighted up with electricity and when I came to the surface, I was in Courtland street one block above Washington. We walked about five blocks north to Warren and there met Joe Chastain near there going to the bank.

The streets were very muddy and sloppy although the weather was below freezing.

They seemed to have plenty of celery on hand, both York state and California ane they were putting up together, mixing two Calif. to one state and tying it in the same shape bunches they did when we were there. Selling the best at 50c per dozen.

Went around to Fish's place on Readi street where they were putting it up about the same way. They still tie some of it up in flat bunches or hands yet, the only city in the U. S. doing so.

New York has made rapid strides since we were there 14 years ago, the only horse cars are in west street along by the piers of the ocean steamers.

We stayed at Herald Square Hotel on Broadway and Thirty-Fifth street right in the heart of the shopping and theatre district, automobiles and taxicabs flying in all directions. We stayed two days taking our boat at 1 p. m. Saturday.

But as a matter of fact it did not start till four or five hours later. I will close now and reserve an account of our ocean trip later.

Very truly yours,
Abner Wilson

ANNUAL MEETING OF PRODUCE EXCHANE.

We clip the following from the Philadelphia Commercial, "At the Annual Meeting of Produce Exchange among the list of officers was C. M. Drake."

Mr. Drake, re-elected vice-president, is a native of Newton, Sussex County, New Jersey, and when a boy seventeen years old left his father's farm to make his way in the world. He went to New York and secured a position as office boy in a wholesale produce house, where he gradually worked his way up until he became head salesman. Being offered a better place in a Philadephia produce house, he accepted the position in the Quaker City, and was for years the western representative of this house. At the death of the head of this firm' Mr. Drake formed a partnership with W. R. Brice, under the firm name of W. R. Brice & Company. This house, from a small beginning, and under the personal supervision of Mr. Drake, has shown a steady growth, and today the firm of W. R. Brice & Co. stands among the leaders of the wholesale butter and egg trade of Philadelphia. Mr. Drake is also connected with sereval other enterprises, being president of a flourshing clothing company in Michigan and also heavily interested in Michigan real estate. He is a jolly, good fellow in every sense of the word, has hosts of friends and is one of the most popular young men in the butter and egg trade of Philadelphia.

Mr. Drake is well known in Tecumseh as the owner of the Rainbow Row, and other property here.

TECUMSEH GRANGE

POMONA, CERES AND FLORA, MAKE AN IMPRESSIVE GROUP.

Last Friday Night the Offices were all Filled and the Program was Furnished Entirely by The Men.

After the business session, a good entertainment was furnished to a full house. Music was furnished by our home grown orchestra. "Home grown" means all right every way. Brother Finch read, "The Rivals."

We all listen with interest when O. B. talks or reads. We all expect something good and we are never disappointed.

"The Rivals" is one of the gems that was left to the world by that [illegible] Lawrence Dunbar.

Brother Hurry read, "Fourth of July at Ripton." The reader said it always seemed more homelike and natural to call it Tipton. Practice certainly makes perfect. I certainly would never have dreamed that our quiet, peace-loving brother Hurry was such a walking arsenal.

Why, that man carries around with him all the time, enough fire crackers and sky rockets and heavy artillery to blow up the town. His first sky rocket made me jump! I really expected to see the thing tear a hole in the roof.

Brother A. O. Howard's paper was such a marvellous production that I thought, with many others, that the community ought to get the benefit of it and I persistently kept after him until he finally consented that I might have it for publication. The Herald readers will have the pleasure of reading it in Friday's issue.

Rev. Dunning's illustrated talk was certainly a rare treat. He very properly lays great emphasis on travel as a factor in one's education, and the broadening in our lives.

Very true indeed, but—we can't all travel, and therein lies the value of the thoughtfulness of our Brother Dunning in using his camera to such good advantage and his willingness to give the community the benefit of his western trips. Many a lecture is given with an admittance fee of 50 cents that is worth less than Mr. Dunning's talk.

His picture of Fred Frost's cabin was of special interest to me. It recalled the pioneer life of Northern Michigan as I knew it in 1880, and for a decade thereafter.

One feels that he is very near to the Creator of the Universe in the presence of these giant monarchs of the forest. The call of the "Wild" comes to me very strongly even yet.

The men of Tecumseh Grange certainly furnished a high class entertainment last Friday night. The first Friday night in February the sisters of the Grange furnish the program and they have certainly got to get busy if they expect to equal what the men put up last Friday night.

But, we know from experience that they can do some remarkable things, when they set about it. Everybody come, and see what they can do, Friday night, February 4th.

MRS. JERRY ROOT

Mrs. Root passed away quite suddenly Sunday at 11:30 a. m., though she has been ill for some weeks yet her death was quite unexpected and came as a shock to her family.

She was in her 80th year and has long been in delicate health. We think of her as a woman of strong character and one ever on the watch to see where she might be doing the most good. She has been a resident of Tecumseh about 44 years and with her husband and family was identified with much of its history. She is survived by one son M. L. Root of Detroit, her daughter Mrs. J. Q. Look, a grandson Lyman Root and her sister Mrs. Joanna Tear who has been with her for several years. We extend to them our loving sympathy in this, their time of sorrow.

The funeral will be held at the home Thursday afternoon at 2:30. burial at Brookside.

BUGGY ANNOUNCEMENT

By S. W. & L. E. Temple.

During 1909 we examined a great many buggies, desiring to have the very best that money would buy for 1910. not only to be the most stylish but the most durable. We decided to buy the Racine Sattley line and went to the factory in August to see the way buggies were made. All the lumber used in these buggies are seasoned dryed Springs, wheels, boxes, paint and in fact every part of the buggy is made in one mamoth plant.

No expence has been spared to make this line of buggies a line of quality, not of price, with the most up-to-date styles such as the auto-top-seats, not auto seats but auto-top seats, single reach, etc.

We have just received a carload o sample jobs, no two alike, as we bought these buggies before the last raise in price and had them delivered here, we are going to give our friends the benefit of the difference in price, but it must be understood no duplicate job can be sold for same money.

While the stock is complete, we ask you to call and look over the assortment; we want your business on the principle of giving you the very best values for your money. If you have decided to buy a "cheap" buggy, we can sell you one but it, will be a different make, in appearence about the same, but not in quality.

It is not how cheap, it is how good groceries I can place in your home. Good groceries are the cheapest.

Married Men's Troubles

It was married men's night at the revival meeting.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles in your minds stand up!" shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasm.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the preacher, peering out at this lone sitter, who occupied a chair near the door and apart from the others: "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. I can't get up: I am paralyzed!"

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

The farm is a sort of clock which effects the time of year.

Rev. I. w. Williams Testifies

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., writes us as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it. Sold by all druggists.

CRISIS PENDING IN CUBA.

Taxation Is Driving People to Desperation, Writes Bishop Candler.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 24.—Bishop Warren Candler, who is visiting missions of the Southern Methodist church in Cuba, writes from Santiago that the island is on the verge of the gravest crisis in its history. The extravagance of the government and the consequent burden of taxation has almost driven the people to desperation. The Cuban national budget for the year is $33,000,000, and the expenses for local governments brings the total to $40,000,000, making the taxes over $40 per capita.

Bishop Candler says that the people realize that they are being crushed by such taxation, and that they are ready to seek any means to secure relief. What aggravates the matter is that a great portion of the taxes goes to pay extravagant salaries to a horde of officials.

The national lottery is proving a curse to the island, says the bishop. It is not only absorbing all the money of the poorer classes but has demoralized labor and injured all productive industries.

Bishop Candler has been visiting Cuba for many years, and he says present conditions are most intolerable in the island's history. He thinks only a leader is needed to cause open revolt.

SUES TILLMAN AND WIFE.

Daughter-in-law Charges Senator With Holding Her Children From Her.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 24.—In the supreme court today Lucy Dugas Tillman, wife of B. R. Tillman, Jr., brought suit against United States Senator Tillman and his wife for the recovery of her infant children, Sarah and Douscha. Young Mrs. Tillman alleges she has been deserted by her husband, and that his parents, Senator and Mrs. Tillman, are keeping her children and not allowing her to see them.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas, therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

NOT TOO OLD YET.

Weston Will Again Try For Record Walk Across Country.

New York, Jan. 24.—Edward Payson Weston, the veteran pedestrian, left this morning by train for Los Angeles. It is from that city that he intends starting, on Feb. 1, for another of his coast to coast walks. Mr. Weston is seventy, says he has had many letters since he announced he was going to try it again, telling him that he was too old for pranks like that. He says he does not see why a man who is only seventy cannot walk forty miles a day and keep it up for 100 days, especially when he rests on Sundays, which is Weston's custom.

On this trip Weston will not stop anywhere to give little talks as he used to do. He is out for a real good record this time.

CONFESSES KILLING MISS SCHUMACHER

Naval Prisoner Says He Caused Rochester Girl's Death.

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 21.—James Hall, the naval prisoner held at the United States prison ship Southery at the navy yard, under sentence for fraudulent enlistment, has made a complete confession that he murdered Anna Catherine Schumacher in the Holy Sepulcher cemetery, in Rochester, N. Y., on the afternoon of Aug. 7, but says that the killing of the girl was an accident.

Hall's confession was to the effect that he was hoeing his way about the country last summer and on the night of Aug. 6 he was in Rochester and slept in the cemetery. He hung about the vicinity of the cemetery the next day, securing food from nearby houses, and intended to sleep there that night.

Late in the afternoon he says Anna Schumacher enter the cemetery with a bouquet of flowers for her father's grave and followed her until she was in the lonely part of the cemetery where the grave was located.

He accosted the girl and made a repulsive proposal to her. She shrank from him and tried to run, but he caught her and stifled her cries while he assaulted her. This accomplished, he murdered her, although in his confession he claims that the killing was an accident, that he only intended to stun her.

"SIR JOHNNY" DUNN DIES.

Famous New York Detective Lived to Be Nearly Eighty.

New York, Jan. 24.—Lieutenant J. J. Dunn, retired, who had a record of forty-eight years' service on the police force and thirty years as detective and commander in the Wall street bureau, is dead at his home, 249 East Seventy-first street, in his seventy-eighth year.

"Sir Johnny," as he was known in Wall street, on account of his habit of wearing a top hat cocked a little to one side, a frock coat, white waistcoat and knickers, was retired two years ago by General Bingham. His daughters said that he began to fail in health as soon as he dropped out of active life. He believed that he was as useful at seventy-five as he was at forty.

Few men who ever went out after crooks had such a record as John Dunn. He knew intimately hundreds of the past and present and was often their confident in important matters. Among his friends were Jay Cooke, W. H. Vanderbilt, Jay Gould, Jim Fiske, J. P. Morgan, E. H. Harriman, H. H. Rogers, T. F. Ryan, J. R. Keene, J. W. Gates and many others. The little sleuth was as familiar a figure in Wall street as any of the big operators.

SEAL HUNTING.

Eskimo Methods In Dealing With the Wary Creatures.

Writing of far northern hunting methods, Harry Whitney thus describes in Outing how Eskimos kill the wary seal:

"Many seals were seen on the fresh made ice, and Elseeyou, my head man, expressed a desire that I take charge of his dog team while he stalked some of them. Seals are extremely shy, and great caution must be practiced in approaching them. The Eskimos use a blind in the form of a miniature sledge, about eighteen inches in length by six in width, with bearskins tucked on the runners. Fore and aft are two upright crotched sticks, upon which the rifle rests and to which it is lashed. On the front of the sledge a crossbar sustains two long perpendicular sticks, over which a piece of white cloth is stretched, or when that is not attainable bareskin is substituted. Through a hole in this cloth screen the muzzle of the rifle protrudes.

"Holding his blind before him, he was enabled to walk within 300 or 400 yards of a seal without startling it. Then he dropped on his hands and knees and pushed the little sledge before him. Thus hidden behind the cloth screen, which so blended with the ice as to arouse in the seal no suspicion of danger, he approached within fifty yards before shooting. Seals always lie close to their holes, and it is necessary to hit them in the head or under the shoulder and have the bullet penetrate the heart and kill them instantly; otherwise they will flop into the hole and sink before it is possible to reach them."

NORWAY'S BILL OF FARE.

Fish and Boiled Potatoes Served Day After Day.

"As we sat cozily before the cheerful blaze," writes Caroline Thurber in a delightful account of "A Motor Invasion of Norway" in the Century, "we indulged in mathematical calculations and found that we had eaten forty-two consecutive meals of fish, with potatoes never otherwise than boiled. One of the women of our party once cried from her soul to a sympathetic looking host, 'Why, oh, why, are there no chickens in Norway?'

"'There are, madam, but they are for laying purposes.'

"'Then why, oh, why, do you always boil your potatoes?'

"'We are different from you, madam. We don't like them mealy. We prefer to know a potato as a potato when we eat it.'

"In our passage through the country we had certainly encountered new and unpalatable foods, but we were always nourished, for good milk, butter and eggs were everywhere at hand, and we developed powers of digestion previously undreamed of. Even so, one supper menu staggered us—nota bene: Sausages, three kinds; raw salmon, pickled anchovies, shrimps, cold fried fish, cold fish pudding, cold meats, five varieties of cheese, pickles, oranges and gooseberry marmalade, tea, four kinds of raised bread, flat bread with caraway, English biscuit, Norwegian rusks, fried eggs, hot stew (variety unrecognized) and boiled potatoes."

The Shaky Ladder.

Many a man has spent the best years of his life climbing the ladder of fame only to have the thing tilt over backward just as he grasped the last rung.—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE BEST MAN.

At One Time He Was More Useful Than Ornamental.

Do you know how "the best man," who plays so important a part in marriages that have any pretense to be fashionable, once upon a time in Sweden occupied a position that was useful as well as ornamental?

In olden days the Swedish bridegroom found it desirable, in fact, to have several "best men" to defend him from the assaults of rivals and prevent them from carrying away his bride. The Scandinavian warrior of ancient times was far too lofty in his ideas to condescend to plead for a maiden's hand. So he patiently waited until some other man who was more gallant had obtained the fair one's consent.

Then when all the details had been nicely arranged the proud warrior, with a body of well trained retainers, dashed down on the wedding party and, if strong enough, carried away the bride.

The "best men" (and it was very essential that they should be the best men in those days) therefore became necessary fixtures to marriage ceremonies, and they were so well esteemed and their popularity became so permanent that when the reason for their existence was in course of time removed they were still retained.—Pearson's Weekly.

A HARD WORKER.

His Soiled Appearance Brought Him a Raise in Salary.

The eccentric proprietor of a large newspaper in London had a way of appearing in the composing and press rooms at the most unexpected times, and as his visits often resulted in a general shakeup of the working forces of the paper they were awaited with fear and trembling by the employees.

One time one of the pressmen, an excellent workman, who had been there many years, but was sometimes guilty of a lapse of sobriety, had a black eye and was in a quandary as to what excuse he should offer if the proprietor noticed it. By a sudden inspiration he seized an ink roller and daubed some ink on his face, quite covering the discoloration. Presently the governor came in and, with the foreman, went through the room, commenting on every detail and looking very sharply at every workman. When about to leave he suddenly pointed to the inky pressman and said, "What is that man's name?"

The man quaked in his shoes until he heard the governor continue slowly: "I want you to give that man 5 shillings a week more wages. He is the only man in the room who looks as if he had been working."—London Telegraph.

MARKSMANSHIP IMPROVES.

Shot About One-third Better Last Year Than Year Before.

Owosso, Mich., Jan. 24.—The annual report of Major M. J. Phillips of Owosso, brigade inspector of small arms, M. N. G., has been prepared and shows that the state troops are making rapid improvement in marksmanship. The figure of merit for the outdoor season of 1909 is 43.35, as compared with 32.63 in 1908 and 19.34 in 1907. This means that the troops shot about one-third better last year than in 1908 and more than twice as well as they did in 1907.

The number of expert riflemen in the brigade, experts being the highest grade of excellence, has increased from 106 to 187. The latter number represents those who are eligible to compete for places on the team which will represent Michigan at Camp Perry, O., in August, 1910. To secure the expert's rating the competitor must score 40 out of a possible 50 at 200 yards and 35 out of a possible 50 at 1,000 yards.

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 24.—Halley's comet, flashing across the northern sky just after sunset, failed to draw a crowd of thousands to the board walk. The comet was in sight less than a half hour, the bitter showing strongly.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Rear Admiral [illegible], commanding the American warships in Nicaraguan waters, has notified all Americans in Nicaragua that they must observe the laws of neutrality during the war with Liberal and Conservative revolutionists.

Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Charles W. Morse, the convicted banker, says that unless Morse's pardon is granted he would apply to the referee in bankruptcy in Atlanta for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Morse.

Returns from nearly one-third of the constituencies in England indicate that the Unionists will not have a majority, that the Liberals will be the party in parliament, that the balance of power will be held by the Nationalists and Labor members.

The Carnegie Relief Fund, created by Andrew Carnegie for the benefit of employes of the Carnegie Steel company, has made its annual report, showing that it insured in accident and death benefits and paid out in pensions the sum of $900,000, which is about $10,000 less than the amount paid out last year.

It is anticipated by friends of the shah of Persia that the revolution of Persia that [illegible] will take a loan of $100,000 in New York, the bank accountant providing the revolutionary propaganda has entirely disappeared, leaving the royalists and democrats to decide the fate of the country by a big battle.

The Goebel Monument association, in Frankfort, Ky., has completed plans for the unveiling of the monument erected to the memory of the late Governor William Goebel, assisted by the legislature, the governors and former governors of Kentucky and Governor J. Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its food is clean and its stomach light, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a mild laxative syrup, such as is used by Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Oatman, Fishville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle will last a family of children for a long time, and it can be given to any member of the family in any emergency. Constipation, colds, fever, sour stomach, headaches, coated tongue, sick headache, indigestion and similar disorders yield to its gentle influence. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative, not a cathartic, and may be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or any member of the family who needs a good laxative, try this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free full size bottle will be sent prepaid. In this way you can find out what it can do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want medical advice, write to the doctor and he will answer you fully, there is no charge for the service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 96 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

INDICTMENT DOESN'T HOLD

Judge Hough Throws Out of Court Case Against World.

GOVERNMENT MADE MISTAKE

In Substance, His Ruling Is That United States Has No Jurisdiction in Libel Actions Covered by Laws of States—This Is Second Setback in Attempt to Prosecute Newspapers.

New York, Jan. 27.—United States District Judge Charles E. Hough has quashed the indictment which charged that the New York World had libelled Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell in connection with the Pan-American canal purchase.

Judge Hough, in throwing the case out of court, held that the indictment was not authorized by the statute upon which it rests. The substance of his ruling is that the United States government has no jurisdiction in libel actions which are covered by the law of the states.

If the power of the United States government could be invoked on the plea that criminal libel was committed upon federal territory within a state, Judge Hough saw no reason why alleged offenders would not be subject to double punishment by a state court and a federal court.

Second Setback.

Judge Hough's decision is the second set-back the government has met since the attempt was begun by President Roosevelt, in 1908, to punish the World and the Indianapolis News for publishing articles reflecting, it was alleged, upon the motives of himself, Mr. Taft, C. P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell.

Judge Albert M. Anderson, in the federal court in Indianapolis, decided, on Oct. 12, 1909, that the government could not take the proprietor and editor of the News from Indianapolis to Washington and try them for substantially the same offenses as charged against the World. It then became necessary for the government to get its case before a federal court located within a state where the alleged criminal libel could be shown to have been circulated. On the ground that copies of the World containing the offensive articles had been sold at West Point and in the federal building here, the government got the proceeding into the United States district court. District Attorney Wise argued that the government could take over the sections of the state law dealing with criminal libel. De Lancy Nicoll, for the Press Publishing company (The World) argued that the United States courts have no jurisdiction in such cases, since they are covered fully by the laws of this state, and moved that the indictment be quashed.

ASQUITH RE-ELECTED.

substantial increase of 615 over his former majority, the secretary of state for war must be satisfied with a majority less by 435 than that obtained in 1906.

Following the election of Premier Asquith, the premier was mobbed by militant suffragettes. The women in a body charged time after time in their attempts to reach the minister, and there were several lively skirmishes with the police before Mr. Asquith was conveyed to a place of safety.

WATERS STILL INVADE PARIS

Seine River Continues to Rise Doing Great Damage.

RAIN CHANGES TO SNOW

Estimated Fifty Thousand People Are Homeless—Many Seek Shelter in Public Buildings—Spread of Disease Feared—Disposal of Dead One of Serious Problems.

Paris, Jan. 27.—There is reason to believe that the worst of the flood has not yet been reached. The Seine has been rising, but there has been a spell of fair weather, and hopes rose in consequence. Later snow began to fall, and it has continued almost unceasingly ever since.

The water has spread through several more districts of the city, chiefly through the various subways. It is as though a subterranean lake existed under Paris, with only a thin crust to support the city. Water bubbles up in the most unexpected places. Workmen are employed on the main boulevards, seeking holes in the paving, and wherever they found a crack it was cemented.

Largest Drain Bursts.

A main sewer at Clichy, the largest drain in Paris, has burst. The possibility of other sewers bursting is one of the gravest factors in the outlook. The sanitary officials are gravely concerned because the river and its overflow are already contaminated by refuse of all sorts washed down by the torrent. This may lead to diseases. The drinking water supply has been cut in some parts of the city owing to its contamination.

Another serious problem is the disposal of the dead. Some of the cemeteries are deeply flooded. One in an eastern suburb is under water to the cross in the mortuary chapel. Many bodies are awaiting burial in the city. Business is greatly hampered, and in many districts it is stopped altogether. Many manufactories are closed, having either been flooded or deprived of power and light.

The men and women thrown out of work by the inundation must number many thousands.

The flood invaded the Hotel Continental last night, stopped the electric supply and upset the kitchen arrangements. The prices of perishable food continues to rise steadily. It is figured that there were at least 15,000 persons sheltered last night in public buildings, glad to have a straw mattress to lie on and a soldier's rations for supper. Their homes and furniture either lie soaking in mud and water or are completely wrecked, for a number of slight houses in the poor suburban districts collapsed beneath the pressure of the flood.

The city itself has been divided into five main sections for the distribution of relief under the joint control of the military governor and the perfect of police.

People Forced to Scamper.

About 1 o'clock this morning, under the enormous pressure of the flood, the retaining walls of the railway station on the Quai d'Orsay gave way. Immediately a tumultuous flood spread over the entire quarter, causing a panic among the residents. The water rose in the streets with frightful rapidity. It was necessary to get boats in a hurry to begin the work of rescuing the residents near the river.

Half clad, the inhabitants of the houses flocked to the windows shouting for help.

Serious accidents are feared on the left bank of the Seine. The situation remains inexpressibly deplorable in the suburbs. Fifty thousands persons are without shelter.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED.

Columbus and Hocking Coal Company Goes to Wall.

New York, Jan. 27.—Federal court receivers have taken charge of the property of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron company and that of its subsidiaries. The receivership for Hocking coal was granted by Federal Judge J. E. Sater at Columbus on application of Henry D. Hotchkiss, receiver in bankruptcy for Lathrop Haskins and Co., the stock exchange firm which went down with the collapse last week Wednesday of the pool in Hocking coal stock. Lathrop Haskins & Co. are heavily interested in the property, and Henry Stanley Haskins is president of the company.

The application for a receivership of the subsidiaries was made by the parent company.

Sled Hit Pole; One Killed.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 27.—John Hough, aged eleven, is dead; Walter Smith, aged fifteen, and Marjorie Houghton, aged fourteen, are perhaps fatally injured, and several others are suffering from broken limbs as the result of a coasting accident at Theresa.

A party of school children numbering about a dozen were coasting down a long hill in the village on a pair of bobs. Young Hough lost control of the wheel which steered the sled while going about sixty miles an hour. The bobs ran into a telephone pole, and the occupants were thrown in all directions.

Unique American Families.

The Harrison family, like the Adams family of Massachusetts, on its illustrious genealogical tree carries the names of one signer of the Declaration of Independence and two presidents of the United States, and in this record the Adamses and the Harrisons stand apart in a class by themselves. These distinctions in one family, it can be noted, will never again be equaled. It remains unique in the history of the country.

NOT FAVORING THE BOYCOTT

Detroit Labor Federation Refuses to Join Movement.

SQUEEZES THE SMALL DEALER

This Against Their Principles, They Declare—Jackson Unionists to Quit Meat Feb. 1—Saginaw People Living on Fish, Abundantly Caught Through Holes in Ice.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 27.—Detroit Federation of Labor last night rejected a proposal to pass resolutions for the boycott of meat and decided that a municipal slaughter house, with a movement to organize labor so thoroughly that workingmen will command wages that will enable them to meet the high prices of food stuffs, would be the best solution of the problem.

The two chief reasons against the passing of boycott resolutions were that such tactics were against the principles of organized labor and that it would ruin the smaller meat dealers and the workingmen who earn their living at the trades of the packing industry.

The municipal slaughter house idea was advanced by Henry Kummerfeld, the Socialist delegate. It was argued that it would do away with the unsanitary conditions in Detroit's smaller slaughter houses.

The legislative committee of the organization was ordered to place the resolution in the hands of the common council. The municipal slaughter house, it is stipulated, should be "free to all for the purpose of preparing meat products for the local market."

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 27.—Jackson trade unionists will begin a month's boycott of meat on Feb. 1. Following the adoption of resolutions denouncing the "meat trust, both national and local," cards pledging the signers to abstain wholly from the use of all meat during the month of February were circulated, and hundreds were signed.

A committee was appointed to visit other unions affiliated with the trades council and secure their co-operation. Meat dealers are incredulous as to the effect of the boycott on prices.

Adrian, Mich., Jan. 27.—The anti-meat movement has struck Adrian, employes of the Adrian Typographical union being the first to take action locally. A committee composed of prominent members of the union have been appointed to confer with the other labor organizations of the city and hope to do something toward reducing prices.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 27.—Hundreds of families in Saginaw have been subsisting largely or entirely on fish as a substitute for meat since the war on high prices commenced. The splendid winter perch fishing here affords a convenient and satisfactory method for joining the boycott, and thousands upon thousands of perch have gone to the tables of numerous families throughout the city during the last few weeks. The fish were never so plentiful in the history of the river, and they are pulled out through holes in the ice as fast as the hooks can be baited.

Sundays hundreds of persons fish the entire distance between Saginaw and Bay City, fifteen miles, and enormous quantities of perch are taken home. Owing to the cold weather, a catch of 100 and upwards, which may be kept in first-class condition, often lasts through the week and is a substitute for meat on many tables.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 27.—The boycott against the eating of meat has struck Ann Arbor. It started in the shops of the Come-Packt Furniture company and passed to practically all the other factories in the town. Within five hours there were over 500 names signed to the resolution, which reads thus:

"Resolved, We, the undersigned, do hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from eating meat for a period of sixty days, starting today, or until such time as prices are reduced to a fair basis."

Alleged Saloonist Stole Gas.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 27.—Saloon keeper George J. Schindler, 398 St. Antoine street, has been hauled into Judge Murphy's court by the Detroit City Gas company to pay for $7,542 worth of gas which the company alleges he stole from its mains by secret connections during a period of eight years. Schindler was acquitted of the charge in the recorder's court about a year ago.

Pontiac May Change Government.

Pontiac, Mich., Jan. 27.—City Attorney E. E. Hymers is drafting a petition which he will present to the council at its next meeting, asking that the question of a commission form of government for the city be submitted to the voters at the next election.

Five More Bodies Found.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 27.—Five bodies, including those of Daniel Morrison and J. Tucant of Rhinelander, Wis., have been recovered from the Canadian Pacific railway wreck at Spanish river.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Bill's Sunbonnet

He Thought It Was Kate Who Wore It, but It Wasn't.

By BELLE MANIATES.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

It was morning in Idaho, and the sun was beaming pleasantly upon Barry Vail as he rode alongside the big irrigating canal that he had been sent to inspect.

"Many settlers on the reservation, Jim?" he asked the foreman.

"They are coming now that they see the canal is a go. The nearest one is Judge Rand. His shack's up yonder. He's in luck. We go right through his ranch."

Judge Rand! Vail wondered if it could be the same man he had known long ago. He concluded it was not possible.

"Which way do I take to his ranch?" he asked.

"He's generally clearing sagebrush this time of day. Follow the canal and you'll likely run on him."

Vail rode on, tilting his sombrero back and humming a love tune. He was in a contemplative mood this morning, and the word "Rand" carried him back to the east, where he had been born and bred, but whose dust he had shaken from his feet five years before. At that time he had been in love with Kate Rand, an imperious, self willed girl. One fateful day she had announced her intention of going to a masquerade in the character and dress of a page. His young, conservative scruples were horrified. He objected, and when she persisted in carrying out her intention his dictatorial attitude moved him to break the engagement. Immediately afterward he secured an appointment as civil engineer in the west. Lately his love affair viewed at long range appeared a very boyish affair.

When he came upon the solitary figure digging doggedly at a resisting root he recognized the man who had come so near being his father-in-law. There were mutual recognitions of pleasure, and then the judge explained that he had been caught in the financial coil of Wall street and had lost all his worldly possessions.

"Just enough left," he said, "to make a payment on 160 acres here, which I shall put to potatoes. The spirit of the west has caught me. Barry, I wouldn't go back into Wall street purgatory for any consideration."

After Vail had related his own experiences and inquired after the fortunes of mutual friends he asked almost sheepishly:

"Did Kate come out here with you?"

The judge was silent for a moment. Then he said, with a sigh:

"Can you picture Kate in the primitive life? She had an opportune invitation to accompany some relatives on a trip abroad."

"And you live out here alone?" exclaimed Vail pityingly.

"No. I have my helper, Bill. We are very comfortable—a little shack for a living room and dining room combined, two sleeping tents and an out of door oven—a place for these parts."

But Vail was not listening. His attention was concentrated on a slender figure that was approaching in the distance. The figure was clad in khaki trousers, blue shirt, a red kerchief and a sunbonnet.

"Who in the world is that?" he asked.

The judge turned hastily and looked confused.

"Oh, that's Bill! I want him to go to the next ranch on an errand for me. Excuse me a moment. I will be back."

He hastened toward the sunbonneted figure, and after a moment's conversation the figure turned and went the way from which it had come.

"Your Bill doesn't look equal to much hard work," observed Vail dryly.

"Bill's all right at farm work or housework," assured the judge. "He's wiry, willing, enduring and, best of all, intensely interested in the development of the ranch."

"You see a good many queer sights in Idaho," remarked Vail, "but I'll swear I never saw a man or lad wearing a sunbonnet."

"Bill lost his one and only sombrero in a reckless ride last week. He went to the nearest ranch to buy or borrow one, but the only superfluous headgear it had was this sunbonnet, to which he is quite attached, as he is a little fearful of sunstrokes."

"Well, I must return to the canal. I intend to be neighborly, judge."

"Of course. Let me see. Come over tomorrow to dinner."

Vail chuckled softly as he rode away.

"I wonder if the judge thought he could string me that way. I have a very firm conviction that Bill is Kate, and, remembering my boyish horror of male attire, the judge headed her off. I suppose he thought he had deceived me with his evasive statement about her trip abroad and invited me tomorrow, when he will take pains to have Bill, alias Kate, absent. I know of no reason why we should not meet in friendly fashion. I know I admire her a thousand times more than I ever did for coming out here and wearing any kind of clothes for working purposes. I'll just go over tonight, whether I am welcome or not, and stay to supper. Fancy the sybarite Kate cooking!"

Late in the afternoon he rode up to the shack, and, as he expected, Bill, clad in feminine attire, was in the doorway. She was a different girl from the handsome, languorous, cynically expressioned Kate he had known. There were the same regular features, the high bred figure, air and pose, but the eyes were full of life, and the mouth curved in almost gentle lines. Her pale face was tinted with ruddy gold.

He wondered what his reception would be, remembering the angry parting.

"I am very glad to see you, Mr. Vail," she said courteously, with extended hand, as he came up to her.

He instantly took the cue, addressed her as Miss Rand and avoided all allusion and reference to the past. He was glad it was to be this way. He wanted to begin acquaintance anew with this womanly Kate.

"You must stay to supper. That's what they call the meal out here. I shall prepare it myself tonight."

"Don't you generally prepare it?" he couldn't help asking.

"No," she said casually. "Bill, the help, cooks, but he is away."

Vail decided to accept the little fiction regarding Bill, and when the judge came home and was informed by his daughter that Bill had been called away for two weeks, which was just the length of time Vail was to be in the vicinity, he never changed expression.

"Ruth," said the judge in reply.

"Ruth!" interrupted Vail in surprise. She smiled.

"Father calls me by my middle name since we came out here. It was my mother's name, and he thinks I am growing to be like her."

After supper, when the judge and Vail had smoked and chatted, a neighbor came to talk planting to the judge.

Barry proposed to Ruth (as he now liked to think of her) that they ride down the course of the canal, and she readily accepted. He remembered how well she used to ride and how well her boyish slimness looked in the saddle. But never in city parks could they have had this glorious canter over the wind swept way on the open plains. They came back in the glory of a western moonlight. When near the shack Barry drew rein.

"Shall we," he asked earnestly, "begin all over again?"

"Yes," she replied in a low tone. "That was what I wanted to ask you to do."

For the next two weeks every moment he could snatch from his work Barry spent at the shack. Feeling that he was depriving the judge of Bill's help, he put in some effective work on the ranch. In his rides, walks and talks with Kate Ruth he felt a sense of intimacy he had never known when with the Kate of olden days.

"Darling," he said impetuously one night after a long silence, "can you forget the past and my boyish superiority? Can you learn to love me again, Kate?"

"Don't!" she cried breathless. "I am not Kate!"

He looked at her in bewilderment.

"I am Kate's younger sister. I was away at school when you knew her, but I used to love to hear about you from father. I didn't know at the first that you mistook me for her. Afterward—well, I was afraid you would not care for me, but you can't have her. She's engaged."

"Dear," he said gently, "I don't want Kate. I want you, whether you are Kate, Ruth or Bill."

"Bill?" she interrupted faintly.

"I knew," he laughed. "Bill's sunbonnet gave him away."

Stream of Life.

Life bears us on like the current of a mighty river. Our boat at first glides down the narrow channel, through the playful murmurings of the little brook and the windings of its grassy borders. The trees shed their blossoms over our young heads; the flowers on the brink seem to offer themselves to our young hands; we are happy in hope, and we grasp eagerly at the beauties around us, but the stream hurries on, and still our hands are empty. Our course in youth and manhood is along a wider and deeper flood, amid objects more striking and magnificent. We are animated by the moving pictures of enjoyment and industry passing before us; we are excited by some short lived disappointment. But our energy and our depression are both in vain. The stream bears us on, and our joys and griefs are alike left behind us.

We may be shipwrecked—we cannot be delayed. Whether rough or smooth the river hastens to its home till the roar of the ocean is in our ears and the tossing of the waves is beneath our feet, and the land lessens from our eyes, and the floods are lifted up around us, and we take our leave of earth and its inhabitants until of our further voyage there is no witness save the infinite and eternal.—Exchange.

Spartan Self Denial.

When Mr. D., known to be miserly, but not believed to be a miser, was approached delicately for a contribution to the organ fund, he shook his head courteously, but with an air of finality.

"Charity," he said, "is a pleasure one must do without."

LECTURER CAME LONG WAY.

Baron Kikuchi of Japan to Speak in New York Next Week.

New York, Jan. 27.—If Baron Dairoku Kikuchi, president of the Imperial university of Kioto, Japan, survives the hospitality to which he is being subjected, he will, next Tuesday night, deliver a lecture in Carnegie hall on "The New Japan; Its Moral and Intellectual Development."

Baron Kikuchi was selected by Baron Kojuro, the Japanese minister of foreign affairs, to make the 7,000 mile journey to New York especially to deliver this lecture.

Baron Kikuchi arrived in New York Tuesday night from Washington, where he had been presented to President Taft and entertained at luncheon by the Japanese ambassador.

On Feb. 21 he will visit the grave of Dr. David Murray at New Brunswick, N. J., some time a regent of New York State university, and superintendent of education in Tokyo, [illegible] upon it in behalf of the Japanese minister of education and the University of Kioto.

"Dr. Murray is looked upon as the father of the public school system of Japan," said Baron Kikuchi.

MEN WHO ROBBED THEM.

Italians Identify Two Who Held Up Big Gang Last Fall.

New York, Jan. 27.—Twenty Italians were at police headquarters Wednesday to identify Santo Geharo and Colagero Lampecluai, who were arrested on a charge of assault and battery.

The two prisoners were positively identified as being two or four men who held up and robbed fifty Italian laborers at Glen Rock, N. J., on Nov. 1, last. The men came to the door of the shanty where the Italians who were employed in laying tracks for a new trolley line lived. It was thirty evening, and dark. They said they were policemen and wanted to interview the laborers separately.

As each man came out in answer to their summons he was tied hand and foot and bound to a tree. When they had got through with the job the robbers were richer by $1,500 in cash and had $600 worth of jewelry. Then they ate a meal at their captives' expense and left. It was several hours before the men worked themselves loose.

Miners Seek Harmony.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The United Mine Workers of America carried into effect Tuesday a plan for better relations with the American Federation of Labor when a resolution was adopted instructing the organizers of the two unions to work in harmony with each other in organizing the no-union miners in the federation territory. The convention also adopted a resolution that no district should make any contract with the operators unless the terms of the contract are agreed to by all districts and signed by all.

Guggenheim Companies Merge.

New York, Jan. 27.—The merger of the Guggenheim copper companies, which was held up by injunction, was perfected Wednesday immediately after the dissolution of the injunction by the courts in New Jersey. The merger was perfected according to the plan previously announced, the Utah Copper company taking over the Boston consolidated and nearly half of the stock of the Nevada consolidated. The Utah directorate was enlarged from nine to fifteen members.

Tapioca.

This elegant and delicate starch is the product of a plant that is cultivated very extensively in the Malay peninsula, where its culture is almost entirely in the hands of the Chinese. The tubers of the plant (Manihot utilissima), which weigh on an average from ten to twenty-five pounds, are first scraped and then carefully washed, after which they are reduced to a pulp by being passed between rollers. This pulp is carefully washed and shaken up with abundance of water until the feicula separates and passes through a very fine sieve into a tub placed beneath. The flour so obtained is repeatedly washed and then placed on mats and bleached by exposure to the sun and air. It is finally converted into the pearl tapioca of commerce by being placed in a crude shaped frame covered with canvas. It is slightly moistened and subjected to a rotary motion, by which means it is granulated. It is next dried in the sun and finally over the fire in an iron pan greased with vegetable tallow and is then ready for the market.

The Limit.

There is a blacksmith who has a shop downtown and who has a reputation for good work, especially in the making of ice tongs. But he claims to be an expert on any kind of ironwork.

Recently a man dropped in on him while he was working on a pair of ice hooks.

"I see you are an expert on ice hooks," said the caller.

"Oh, yes! I make ice hooks pretty good," remarked the mechanic, "but I also shoe your horses or do other ironwork just so good."

"Well," said the caller, "I've got a stove on which the hinges need repairing. Can you fix them?"

The blacksmith drew himself up to his full height and scornfully asked, "Do you think I am a God gusted jawbone?"—St. Joseph Gazette.

Just a Fit.

In the Ex-Libris Journal an amusing anecdote is given of a man anxious for a coat of arms and fortunate in finding one. A secondhand bookseller bought at a country sale some 800 volumes of handsome but unsalable old sermons, books on theology and the like.

He placed a number of these outside his shop. Soon afterward a well dressed man entered and said, "Have you any more of this kind of books with this shield on them?" pointing to the bookplate attached, which bore the arms and name of a good old country family.

"That box, sir, is full of books from the same house," answered the bookseller.

"What do you ask for them?" inquired the man. "I'm going back to Chicago, and I want to take some books, and these will just fit me, name and all. Just you sort out all that have that shield and name, but don't you send any without that nameplate, for that's my name too. I reckon this old fellow with the daggers and roosters might have been related to me some way."

Picking a Horse.

A British cavalry officer, speaking of horses, said:

"Give me a free hand and I should pick a roan—that is, for good temper and quick learning. Dark grays and blacks are mostly strong and hardy, and so are dark chestnuts. As a general rule, light chestnuts and light bays are nervous and delicate. A rusty black's a sulky pig nine times out of ten. Then, again, there are 'white stockings,' as they call them. You know the old saying, 'One white leg's a bad un, two white legs you may sell to a friend, three white legs you may trust for a time, four white legs you may lay your life on.'"

This does not agree with an old Yankee saying:

One white foot, buy him;
Two white feet, try him;
Three white feet, look well about him;
Four white feet, go on without him.

Now, however, the American idea is similar to that of the sergeant, and they say, "Four white feet you can stake your life on him."—London Spectator.

An Ingenious Device.

When Sir Robert Perks' school days were over he entered the office of a firm of lawyers and worked very hard. It was no uncommon thing to find him reading law at 5 in the morning, and this often after he had been working late on the previous night. As a matter of fact, he made it an inflexible rule never to be in bed of a morning after 5. To enforce this rule he invented an ingenious device. This consisted of a long glass tube filled with water nicely balanced over his head and attached by a string to an alarm. At the desired hour the bell rang and awakened the sleeper. If within a few seconds he did not leap from his bed and avert the calamity the descending weight of the clock destroyed the balance of the tube, and down poured the water on his guilty head!—From "The Life Story of Sir Robert W. Perks, Bart. M. P.," by Dennis Crane.

A COSTLY ACCIDENT.

The Wave of a Hand, an Upset Ink Bottle and Bankruptcy.

The mere motion of a hand ruined Cobbett & Co., one of the largest and wealthiest of English engineering firms. They and an American firm tendered bids for the building of the great Kaura bridge for the Russian government. Jacob Cobbett, who was the brain and center of the business, spent six months in the designing and contracting and had all his plans ready. His bid was accepted, and material was bought in enormous quantities. A time limit had been set both for the commencement and finish, and Cobbett was perfecting his plans and making sure of the smallest details, with all the formula spread out on the table before him, when he stretched out his hand, overturned an ink pot and drowned the most important of the papers in a black sea.

Cobbett had a poor memory. In a fever of anxiety he reconstructed his plans from stray notes. It was impossible, and he called on the Russian government for more time. Time was refused, and Russia repudiated the contract on the ground of delay, as the agreement allowed. Cobbett could not get his work through in time, and the Yankee firm, which now advanced a cheaper tender, with cut and dried plans, got the job. The loss drove Cobbett & Co. to bankruptcy, and the great Kaura bridge in Russia is American built.—London Scraps.

THEY GROW HAIR.

Certain Ingredients if Properly Combined, Stimulate Human Hair Growth.

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered. Betanaphthol is a most powerful, yet absolutely safe germicide and antiseptic, which prevents development of germ matter, and creates a clean, healthy condition.

Pilocarpine, although not a coloring matter or dye, is an ingredient well established for its power to restore natural color to human hair.

Boarax, because of its well-defined softening and cleansing properties, is most useful in the treatment of scalp and hair diseases. Glycerine acts as a stimulant to the hair bulbs, and has a soothing, healing and nourishing influence. Alcohol is indispensable in medicine because of its antiseptic, stimulating and preservative qualities.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is chiefly composed of these ingredients, which are compounded in a peculiar from, and we believe it is the most effective remedy known to medical science for scalp and hair troubles generally. We personally guarantee it to eradicate dandruff and scalp irritations and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair, providing of course there is life and vitality remaining in the hair roots.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease, dandruff or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair tonic. If it does not remove dandruff and promote a growth of hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. This guarantee is printed on every package. It has effected most satisfactory results in 93 out of 100 cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike and in every particular different from anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is recommended. We urge you to try it at our entire risk. Certainly we could offer no better guarantee. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Sold in Rochester only at our store—The Rexall Store and the B. J. Pulver Drug Store.

THE YEAR 2000

SOMETHING WAS WRONG WITH THE AIR SHIP,

But by a Certain Twist of the Lever, It Landed us Safe Home, Cradle and All.

"Well, John, here I am—home at last. Something is wrong with our air ship. I was at least six minutes coming the four miles from town. I ought to have made it in three or four minutes. The ship must go to the trouble man at once. My! How cosy you are, sitting by the electric radiator. And there is the baby in the automatic cradle. Just move the lever over a little farther, John, and give the cradle a little more motion. They used to say 'the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world,' but now it is the hand that throws the switch."

"Yes, I am cold. There's no place like home' is just as true in this year, two thousand, as it was a hundred years ago, especially on a cold night like this. I like home anyway. My nature is very domestic. I tell you, John, I think you ought to consider yourself lucky that I ever proposed to you and took you under the protection of my wing.

"O, I know you had another beaux, that Jones girl, but just see the condition you would have been in if you were Mr. Martha Jones instead of Mr. Mary Smith, as you are now. Why, they do say that Mr. Jones has to just beg pin money from his wife and you know you have a regular allowance every week.

"Why, of course you have to tell me how you spend it, but you know that is all for your own good, John. There is no man that can buy and sell and attend to business matters as can a woman.

"Oh, well a hundred years ago, maybe men did do those things; that was in the dark ages, but now woman has been freed from slavery and has come to her rightful own. There, the baby is asleep; you had better turn off the cradle rocking switch and put on the pneumatic anti-croup apparatus.

"Yes, you are always telling me that the Lord made man first, and therefore man should be first to rule. But just listen, John; when we were first married the first batch of bread you made—yes, I brought home the latest fashion book for you—was something awful, too much protein, not enough cachohydrates, seventeen and one-half ounces to the pound and Oh, so tough. Well the next batch was much better, nearly as good as father used to make, and what was the cause of it? Experience, of course it was experience. So likewise the Creator made man first and profiting by experience the second product, woman, was practically perfect.

"Now, John, there is no use arguing that just because man has been in control of the world since the day of creation, excepting the last fifty years, that he should always be. Woman has been in existence practically as long as man, but she has been like electricity.

"How? Well have we any reason to believe that electricity did not exist in Eve's and Adam's time? No, certainly not; but its power was not manifest except in the thunder and lightning. 'Woman is chiefly known that way too.' John, this is no joking matter. Woman, I repeat, like electricity, has not been known and appreciated until this last century and especially at the present time.

"Now, John, here is a letter addressed, Mr. Mary Smith; that is you. On my way home from town my air ship passed under the mail carrier's ship and she dropped the letter down to me. I do believe it is from the M. W. S. S. I see that it is post marked London, England, where the Men's World Suffrage Society headquarters is located. I think it had better be called the Men's Woolen Sock Society. The latter society would put the world on its feet in better shape and be much more reasonable. You can read your letter and look over the fashion book while I attend to the chores. I forgot to tell you I engaged a hired girl while I was in town. She is an expert with the motor plow and can run the electro-pneumatic-thermo hay harvester to perfection. I have to board her air ship, furnishing gas and an allowance of seven gallons of aromotor electricity monthly. You are to have a hired boy also. He is being courted by a young lady from Detroit, who aviates over three times a week to see him. I did not like this, but help is scarce and it was the best I could do. I must go now. Have supper ready when I come in. I left a bundle for you in the air ship. I will bring it in when I get through with the chores.

"What! Supper all ready? Well, John, you are a jewel. Ha, ha! The fashion book open at Merry Widower hats and three flounce trousers. I suppose I will have to get you all those things. What do you think! When I turned the switch on the automatic milking machine the hens began to cackle. Well, I found that the electric wires of the milking machine had become crossed with the wires running to the new eggograph machine for making the hens lay and before I could stop it quite a few feathers had gotten into the milk pail.

"Yes, here is the package. I called on your grandfather this morning and as you know he is always talking about "them" days when he was a boy. He sent you the package thinking you would enjoy looking over the contents whatever that may be. He is very active for a man ninety-five years old. I believe he bids fair to become a centenarian.

"What, 'can't wait 'till after tea to know what is in the bundle?' I never did see anything like man's curiosity. There, I hear the baby. Bring her in here and put her in the oscillating go cart. My, she is going to [illegible] some day. Never will I forget when in New York on business about six months ago, I received a wireless telephone message from home saying a young lady had come to live with us. I was proud of you both. Open the bundle and then we will have tea.

"What, only old newspapers? Let me see them, John. The Tecumseh Herald, The Tecumseh News, Detroit Free Press and The Chicago Record-Herald, all dated 1910.

"Valuable keepsakes? Not very, in my estimation. Why, it's all about what President William Taft is doing, or Emperor William of Germany has said and what King Edward of England thinks. Ninety per cent of all the news is about men. I tell you, John, those were dark ages. The world was yet in barbarism. Woman was the suppliant of man, his servant. She had no rights; her talents were unrecognized.

"What did you say? Let me see that old Tecumseh paper. Well if the women of the Tecumseh Grange were allowed the privilege of getting up a program themselves that was only a tiny sun beam in a great black dungeon, a dungeon whose inhabitants were the women of the time. But now, nearly a century afterward, woman has triumphed. She is the embodyment of all that is highest, greatest and best in the world. In science, art, invention, commerce and politics she is paramount. Her will is supreme; she fears nothing.

"No, John, you must not read these old papers. They will corrupt your mind and fill it with false and poisonous ideas.

"No, I'll not destroy them as a gift from your old grandfather. However I will pack them away in the farthermost corner of the attic, relics of the dark ages. While I am doing this you may turn my tea, and remember, John, in this age of the world woman is afraid of nothing.

"O! O!! O—o—o—o! John! John!! Come quick! quick!! It's coming right at me! There, it is! It's going to bite! O I'm fainting! Catch me in your arms! O, John! A M-O-U-S-E!!"

Tecumseh, Jan. 28, 1910.

Dear Mr. Snedecor:

You will find enclosed the monologue, "The Year 2000." I think it will be well to preface it with an explanation to the effect that at a recent meeting of the Tecumseh Grange, the men furnished the program and that I wrote the monologue as a contribution to the program. Otherwise people would think I am getting daffy. They will doubtless think so, anyway, after reading the enclosed.

Very truly yours,
A. O. HOWARD.

THE REASON WHY

Vinol

IS THE BEST STRENGTHENING TONIC

for Feeble Old People, Delicate Children, Weak, Run-down Persons, and to Counteract Chronic Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, is because it combines the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron, without oil or grease, tastes good, and agrees with every one.

We return your money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it.

CHARITY BALL

The call of charity is again in our midst; uncompromising want that at this season of the year calls for prompt relief.

It is the well known mission of the society of King's Daughters to bring relief and assistance to as many needy homes as they may, and it has been their habit to give some form of entertainment each year, the proceeds of which are to provide clothing, fuel and sustenance for many cheerless homes.

This year the King's Daughters will give a Charity Ball on Friday evening Feb. 4th at Witherall Hall. Tickets for dance including supper will be $1.50.

There will be other amusements provided for those who do not care to dance and the committee in charge are laying plans to give all attending a hearty welcome and much good cheer. May we not see you at the Charity Ball?

BUGGY ANNOUNCEMENT

By S. W. & L. E. Temple.

During 1909 we examined a great many buggies, desiring to have the very best that money would buy for 1910. not only to be the most stylish but the most durable. He decided to buy the Racine Sattley line and went to the factory in August to see the way buggies were made. All the lumber used in these buggies are seasoned dryed Springs, wheels, boxes, paint and in fact every part of the buggy is made in one mamoth plant.

No expence has been spared to make this line of buggies a line of quality, not of price, with the most up-to-date styles such as the auto-top-seats, not auto seats but auto-top seats, single reach, etc.

We have just received a carload of sample jobs, no two alike, as we bought these buggies before the last raise in price and had them delivered here, we are going to give our friends the benefit of the difference in price, but it must be understood no duplicate job can be sold for same money.

While the stock is complete, we ask you to call and look over the assortment; we want your business on the principle of giving you the very best values for your money. If you have decided to buy a "cheap" buggy, we can sell you one but it, will be a different make, in appearence about the same, but not in quality.

Three candidates were initiated and under the head of Good of the order, a number of fine speeches were given. At the close of the business meeting a fine banquet was served to which all did ample justice.

This order so far has not been very well known among us but it deserves mention for the good it is doing. Every member who is laid up by sickness draws $7 per week and should they need further aid it is freely given. At present they have three on the sick list.

That they endeavor "to do good and to forget not" is one of the best tributes that can be paid to any organization.

Spread Out

your barn-yard manure systematically and get the most value and best results from it. You can only do this by using the best spreader, which is the—

CLOVER LEAF MANURE SPREADER

The pitchfork way makes tedious work, spreads unevenly and wastes half the value of the manure. The crop results are unsatisfactory. A boy cannot spread by the pitchfork way. It requires 3 to 4 times the amount of manure and the money lost by spreading with a pitchfork would more than pay for a manure spreader in one season.

Start the Clover Leaf Method, raise big crops and increase your farm value.

Married Men's Troubles

It was married men's night at the revival meeting.

"Let all you husbands who have troubles in your minds stand up!" shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasm.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the preacher, peering out at this lone sitter, who occupied a chair near the door and apart from the others: "You are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. "I can't get up; I am paralyzed!"

Old Folks' Livers

FOR SALE BY B. J. PULVER, TECUMSEH, MICH.

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO TECUMSEH READERS.

For months Tecumseh citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Tecumseh residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if the personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Tecumseh reader.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About three years ago I was suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had severe pains in the small of my back and the kidney secretions passed so frequently as to cause me great annoyance. When someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and they helped me so much that I continued their use. I have taken this remedy since when my kidneys have troubled me and I have always found the best of results. I willingly allow my name to be used again in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

If people only said what they thought, there wouldn't be so much talking.

It is a dangerous thing to take a cough medicine containing opiates that merely stifle your cough instead of curing it. Foley's Honey and Tar loosens and cures the cough and expels the poisonous germs, thus preventing pneumonia and consumption. Refuse substitutes and take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

The farm is a sort of clock which reflects the time of year.

Rev. I. W. Williams Testifies

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., writes us as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it. Sold by all druggists.

JIM WELL OFF NOW.

Need Never Worry Again Over Financial Matters.

New York, Jan. 27.—Several friends of J. J. Jeffries have received word from him that he would arrive in Los Angeles on Feb. 16 and would then begin a long hunting trip. The boiler maker's present tour with an athletic combination will end by that time, and the biz pugilist will then have more than four months to spend before the day rolls around for his battle with Johnson. Jeffries has made nearly $60,000 clear out of his present engagement, which was planned last November by a Chicago man, while his profits last year from his vaudeville exhibitions were nearly as much. Having cleaned up close to $100,000 therefore by means of public exhibitions, which have been liberally patronized on the strength of the match with the negro pugilist, Jeffries is telling his closest friends that he will never have to worry over financial matters again.

Big Jim's greatest concern, though, is the problem which now actually confronts him. As soon as he reaches his Los Angeles home he intends to find out definitely just what nature has left him in the way of physique, so that he can determine, as nearly as possible, how long and how strenuously he must train to fit himself for the fight. Jeffries, it is conceded, is more anxious about his wind than his physical strength. That his bellows have not yet shown signs of their former capacity is a well known fact.

Four Useful Senses.

The naturalist of Wobrook in the Hills had pointed out a rabbit squatting close under a bush, and the ladies had declared in chorus that they could not see the little animal.

"How do you manage to see everything?" asked one of the party, with flattering inflection.

"Well," began the naturalist confidently, "I ain't altogether seeing. Sometimes I see, but when I can't see with my eyes I smell things with my nose, and when I can't smell things with my nose I hear 'em with my ears, and when I can't hear with my ears I prickle all over."—Youth's Companion

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but its not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food Furthur, these cheap baking powders have a small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as its does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and always unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

WHY PRICES ARE HIGH.

Secretary Wilson Gives Two Reasons For Such Conditions.

Philadelphia, Jan. 27.—In an interview which he gave and later repeated in an address before the members of the Manufacturers' club here, James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, declared that his investigations had disclosed two reasons for the high cost of living. One was a combination which kept up the high retail price of foods, the other was the movement away from the farms, which lessened production. This, coupled with the increase of population, helped to keep up prices.

Secretary Wilson gave it as his opinion that the retailers were forced to sell at prices fixed by the wholesalers. He declared that the large cities were suffering from too many retailers among whom there was no competition because of a combination.

He declared that the lure of the city was drawing the boy and girl away from the farm and that there was a crying need for the states to follow the nation in promoting agriculture.

The worst farming in the country was being done east of the Alleghany mountains, he said, and he urged the necessity for the education of young men in agriculture.

GLAVIS ATTEMPTS TO SHOW UP BALLINGER

Identifies Him With Alleged Crooked Deals in West.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The so-called Ballinger-Pinchot investigation was begun Wednesday by the joint committee of the senate and the house appointed in accordance with the terms of the resolution adopted by congress and approved by President Taft. Gifford Pinchot, the former forester of the agricultural department, into whose conduct as head of the forest service the committee will inquire, was present at the opening session; but Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, the attempt to discredit whom brought about the investigation, was not there.

Glavis testified that while he was a special agent of the land office investigating certain applications for coal land claims in Lewis county, Washington, known as the "Wilson Coal company cases," he secured a deposition from Watson Allen of Seattle, who represented the Wilson Coal company, in which Allen stated that R. A. Ballinger, then a practicing attorney, who had not yet become commissioner of the land office, had drawn up an agreement and certain deeds to be held in escrow conveying the interests in the lands of the entrymen to the Wilson corporation. Glavis claimed that he secured this deposition in conjunction with Henry M. Hoyt, then assistant district attorney from the state of Washington, who is now attorney general for Porto Rico.

The inference sought to be conveyed by the witness was that Mr. Ballinger, by the professional service he had rendered in this case, had been party to a transaction which would have ultimately led to perjury and a fraud upon the public land office laws. He explained that it was necessary for an entryman in making his final proof to make affidavit that he, the affiant, was the sole party in interest in the land patent.

The witness, in replying to a question, admitted that this had no direct relation to the Cunningham coal land cases in Alaska except as to its bearing upon the general conduct of Mr. Ballinger.

A PRISON HORROR.

Awful Fate of a Russian Political Offender.

David Soskice writes in McClure's Magazine of the horrors of the Schluesselburg, Russia's political prison.

"Grachevsky, unable to stand his life any longer," says he, "struck a guard in order to be executed. But the commandant of the fortress declared him to be insane and therefore exempt from punishment.

"Then," said Grachevsky, "I remains for me but to kill myself." He was taken to the 'stable' and kept there under most vigilant watch.

"One night," related Ludmilla Volkenstein, 'a terrible, inhuman shriek was heard. Footsteps hurried toward Grachevsky's cell. Feeble groans followed, and then his door was quickly opened, and it was evident that something terrible had happened to him. Smoke and the smell of burnt clothing and flesh pervaded the building and hung about it till the following day. We then knew that Grachevsky had burnt himself alive. He had soaked his clothes and bedding with the oil from the little night lamp and, rolling himself up in his blanket, had set it on fire. For several days beforehand he had disarmed the suspicions of his guards by exceedingly rational behavior, so that they had relaxed their watchfulness a little and enabled him to commit the dreadful deed."

STONE AGE CUSTOMS.

Ancient Habits Still Endure Among Natives of Rural Roumania.

Customs and habits directly traceable back to the end of the stone age are still observed by the inhabitants of the remoter parts of rural Roumania, says Dr. Emil Racher of Bucharest in the Umschau. The latest statistics show that there are still in Roumania over 54,000 cave dwellings in existence, in which a quarter of a million peasant folk live. These caves are almost as primitive in their arrangements as the original cave dwellings of the stone age.

As recently as in the eighties millet, the oldest Indo-Germanic grain, was still crushed in Roumania by means of hand mills and stored in peculiarly shaped granaries similar to those used by the natives of central Africa. To-day the Roumanian peasants still use ancient plows. At funerals a repast named colibe is partaken of consisting of soaked and boiled corn the exact way corn was first prepared and eaten by the tribes of Europe.

Even today crabapples and wild pears are the only fruit known to the Roumanian peasant, and his vegetables are wild herbs boiled with oil pressed from sunflower, hemp and gourd seeds. Medical men in rural Roumania are still known among the peasantry as wizards.

TRAPPED HOTEL MAN.

Deputy Sheriffs Testify N. F. Hauck of Owosso Sold Them Liquor.

Corunna, Mich., Jan. 27.—N. F. Hauck, proprietor of the Hauck House, leading hotel of Owosso, is on trial in the circuit court on the charge of selling liquor on Sunday.

Deputy sheriffs of Byron and Linden, principal witnesses of the prosecution, testified that Hauck took them into the cellar and furnished them with liquor on Sunday. The men posed as guests.

Laxative for Women Free

There is a great difference in the purposes to which a laxative should be put. Tablets and pills, salts, etc., are usually violent purgatives or cathartics, and altogether too powerful for the average person.

A woman at all times needs only a mild laxative—in fact, none other is needed by anyone, weak or strong though they may be, for the object is simply to move the bowels, and if a gentle laxative will do it, what is the use of a violent one?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has earned a well-deserved vogue among women and children and old folks—people who must necessarily be careful of what they take.

It is a liquid laxative tonic and admittedly the greatest stomach, liver and bowel remedy before the American people. The price is only 50 cents or $1 a bottle, as it comes in both sizes, and all druggists sell it. Its pleasant taste and gentle action make it an ideal remedy for women in constipation, torpid liver, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn and such like digestive complaints. Its use for a short time will remove the trouble entirely so that future medication will be unnecessary. It tones properly the bowels, the stomach and intestinal muscles so that they act naturally again. That this is so is the experience of many heads of families, like Mrs. Brannan, of Alvarado, Va., Mrs. R. L. Stout, of Louisville, Ky., and numerous others; in fact, way out in Williams, Cal., as Mrs. J. E. Blackmore, of that place, writes, the whole town seems to be using it.

If the remedy is new to you and you want to make a trial of it before buying, send your name to the doctor's address as below and a free test bottle will be sent you. Then, if results are satisfactory you can buy it of your druggist.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 366 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

MANUFATURER MURDERED.

Possibly He Recognized Intruder. Shirt Waist Maker Is Killed.

New York, Jan. 31.—The detectives hold it as a reasonable theory that the burglar who shot and killed Moses Gootman and seriously wounded Isaac, his son, after a struggle in the kitchen of the Gootman apartments at 16 East One Hundred and Ninth street at 2:30 Sunday morning, was known to the elder Gootman and possibly recognized by him before he died.

Gootman was a manufacturer of shirt waists, with a factory at 465 Broome street. He employed between fifty and sixty men and women, all of whom had gone out in the shirt waist strike called some weeks ago.

Gootman had slept on a couch in the dining room during several nights, so Mrs. Gootman told the detectives. He seemed to be worried about something and gave as his reason for the change the excuse that he was not sleeping well and he preferred to be alone.

A few minutes before 2:30, Isaac heard a strangled cry sounding in the kitchen. He ran out of his bed room and saw his father struggling with a short, thick-set man. Before the son could prevent, he saw the intruder press a revolver against the elder Gootman's abdomen and fire. The father dropped to the floor.

Isaac made a rush at the burglar, who had turned towards an open window, and before he could grapple with him the burglar raised his revolver and sent a second shot, which ploughed through young Gootman's left arm and entered his side. He fell unconscious. The burglar fled.

LAWYER'S HOUSE ROBBED.

Thieves Got Diamonds and Jewelry Valued at $10,000.

New York, Jan. 31.—A report has been made at police headquarters in Newark that thieves entered the home of Charles A. Feick, a lawyer of High street, and stole diamonds and jewelry to the value of nearly $10,000. The valuables were taken from the bedroom on the second floor some time Saturday night, while members of the family were playing cards on the floor below.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

The authorities of Cornell university invite competitive designs for an emblem of the university and offer a prize of $200 for the most satisfactory. The competition is open to all.

The discovery of a case of scarlet fever among the apprentice seamen under instruction at the yoman's school of the naval training station at Newport, R. I., has caused Commander P. W. Hourigan to take prompt action to prevent a possible spread. The station has been quarantined.

Former Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland is resting at the Hotel Prince George in New York. Reports that he is ill with cirrhosis of the liver were denied. The hotel management was told that he wanted to get a good long rest and that he was not to be disturbed.

Alonzo Wire of Hackettstown, N. J., who was for twelve years head of the police department, says that for the last twenty years he has not closed his eyes in sleep. He came near it, he says, several times recently when he found himself getting drowsy in front of a hot fire, but when he would attempt to take advantage of it and lie down to compose himself for the long sought nap, sleep would flit away, and he would pass the night as he passed so many other, in wide eyed wakefulness. He does not go to bed now, but reclines on a couch. Physicians who have studied his case are unable to assign a cause for his condition.

FOUND DEAD IN FRIEND'S ROOM

Old Soldier's Demise Mystifies Grand Rapids Police.

HAD ON WOMAN'S TOGS

Mrs. Libbie Farmer Returns Home From Vacation to Find Orville Morton of Morenci Dead on Her Bed. She Had Been His Housekeeper. Man Had Shoe Tied Over Face.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 31.—A mystery that has so far defied solution was disclosed early Sunday morning, when Orville E. Morton of Morenci, Mich., an inmate of the Soldiers' home, was found dead in the apartments of his former housekeeper, Mrs. Libbie Farmer.

For years Morton and Mrs. Farmer had been friends. He was admitted to the Soldiers' home Jan. 9, 1909, and on frequent leaves of absence would spend his time between the homes of his daughters in Muskegon and Alpine and the home of Mrs. Farmer.

The Tuesday after Christmas Mrs. Farmer went to Ionia and remained there until late Saturday night, when she returned to the city and went to her rooms. She found Morton lying on her bed.

He was dressed in her underclothing and stockings, over which he had draped a short knee skirt. He had on his own flannel undershirt and heavy woolen overshirt. Over his face, resting lengthwise and covering his nose and mouth, was one of her low house shoes tied around his head. His hands were folded across his chest.

Heard Last Tuesday Night.

About 10:30 Tuesday night, roomers who occupy adjoining rooms heard Morton building a fire. This was the last seen of him alive.

While there was nothing about the room to indicate foul play, the failure to find any traces of poison or drugs deepens the mystery.

Morton's overcoat lay on the couch, neatly spread out, his coat, vest and cap rested on chairs, and his false teeth were lying on the center stand.

In Morton's pockets were found $22.52, some letters and papers and a certificate showing that he was a member in good standing of Morenci lodge, No. 95, F. & A. M.

Mrs. Farmer maintains that their relations never progressed beyond the stage of mere friendship, and that he was given access to her apartments because his trunk was there.

While Coroner Hilliker and the police entertain the theory of suicide they have not determined on that fact. After an examination of the body the coroner announced that death was due to suffocation. The direct cause of death was undoubtedly due to the shoe being pressed tightly over the victim's nose and mouth.

The police are reported to be searching for a strange woman who was seen to enter the Farmer apartments frequently of late with the old man. The police deny this rumor.

THOUSANDS IN PEONAGE

Terrible Conditions Said to Exist In Texas.

GRAND JURY IS AT WORK

Truth Became Known Through Young Man From St. Joseph, Mo., Who Was Made to Slave For Six Months on Koppe Plantation—Many In Austin to Testify Before Jury.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 31.—Stories of cruelty and outrages are told by supposed victims of the peonage system that is alleged to exist upon the Koppe plantation, in Burleson county, and upon other plantations, who are here to give their testimony before the federal grand jury. Two more arrests on a charge of conspiracy to hold certain persons in peonage have been made upon indictments of the federal grand jury, the accused being Robert S. Newton, superintendent and manager of the Koppe plantation, and W. S. Houston, a constable of that precinct. Four special agents of the government have been investigating the peonage system in Texas for some weeks.

The first information the government received of the practices was obtained from Joe Foller of St. Joseph, Mo. He is a young man of good family, who, while on his way to Brownsville, ran out of funds. He left the train at Somerville, Burleson county, to telegraph home for money when he was arrested upon a trumped up charge by a local officer. He was sent to the Koppe plantation, not being permitted to communicate with friends or relatives. He was kept on the farm for six months and worked until physical weakness caused him to be discharged. He reported the matter to the United States authorities when he got back to St. Joseph, and an investigation was inaugurated.

Many Held.

It is alleged that there was discovered that many negroes and whites were held in peonage upon the plantation; that some of them were beaten at times into insensibility by a bat and six foot strap; that negroes and whites, including men and women, were housed together; that failure to do the appointed task each day caused horrible punishment to be inflicted; that two men had their eyes gouged out, and that several died from injuries inflicted by guards.

According to statements of the federal special agents, from 1,500 to 2,000 men have been held in peonage during the past year in Burleson and other counties of the state. Negroes and whites were arrested without cause and pressed into peonage. It is stated that local peace officers received $15 for each man they delivered to a plantation.

Forty witnesses are here to testify. It is reported that a large number of arrests will be made.

To Munch a Viper.

Though the prescription seems to have disappeared from the pharmacopoeia of modern "beauty specialists," it was for centuries notorious that to feed on snake meat was the way to win perpetual youth; to cure goiter, again, or any other swelling, all that was necessary was to munch a viper, from the tail up, as it might be a stick of celery, while yet another snake, if eaten, conferred the power of understanding all the tongues of birds.

Costly Counsel.

"I can understand all you have to say on the subject in an hour's time," said the judge.

"Beg pardon, your honor," persisted the young lawyer, "but I shall consume at least five hours in my argument."

"Very well; have it your own way," said the judge, with resignation. "But it will take the prisoner about five years to tell why he employed you."—Harper's Weekly.

SHIPP WELCOMED TO CHATTANOOGA

Ten Thousond Citizens Greeted Returning Sheriff.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 31.—With hearts overflowing, 10,000 citizens of this city last night gave to Captain Joseph F. Shipp a remarkable reception. It was the home coming of Captain Shipp, who has just completed three months' sentence in prison in Washington for contempt of the supreme court of the United States in connection with the lynching of the negro, Ed Johnson, who was hanged by a mob in this city March 19, 1906.

As the train pulled into the terminal station, bands began the tune of "Dixie." The crowd went wild with enthusiasm, and the music was drowned by the shouts and cheers of the vast throng.

Alighting from the train Captain Shipp was greeted by his wife. He made his way through the crowd, his white head bared, bowing first to one side, then to the other, and entered a carriage.

As Captain Shipp and his party approached the gates of his home the band played "Home, Sweet Home," and the cheering crowd almost instantly broke into tears.

Later Captain Shipp made this statement:

"I knew that my friends would greet me, but I was unprepared for such a demonstration. Certainly this great outpouring was not for me alone. I am only a common man among you. There must have been some ruling reason for this wonderful greeting, of which I feel my unworthiness. I have made no plans for the future. I shall go on my way as in the past and trust to my ability to maintain the respect and love of my fellow townsmen which has been so generously displayed here tonight."

Washington, Jan. 31.—Sheriff Joseph F. Shipp, Nich Nolan and Luther Williams, the three men who were sentenced to ninety days in jail for contempt of the supreme court of the United States for their connection with the lynching of the negro Johnson, in Chattanooga, in 1906, finished their sentences and were released Saturday morning at 8:07 o'clock.

TRYING NAVAL OFFICERS.

Case Against Auld and Robnet, at Boston, Begins.

Boston, Jan. 31.—This morning, at the navy yard, began the sessions of the court-martial which is to hear the evidence in the charges against Paymaster George P. Auld, formerly of the receiving ship Wabash, and Passed Assistant Surgeon Auzy E. Robnet, formerly attached to the naval hospital at Chelsea, in connection with the alleged assault upon and insult to Dr. Edward S. Cowles of this city, a cousin of Rear Admiral William S. Cowles, U. S. N., retired, at a hop at the navy yard armory on Dec. 11.

The case is termed by the naval authorities as rather a "tempest in a teapot," and it is predicted at the navy yard that the hearing in the Auld case will be concluded probably today, and that the Robnet case will take less time. If a verdict of acquittal for Paymaster Auld is given by the court the case of Dr. Robnet will not be tried at all, it is said.

The Comparison.

Dropping into the Garrick club one afternoon, Charles Brookfield, the dramatist, found a well known actor, who happened to be playing David Garrick at the time, reclining in a chair right under the portrait of the immortal "Davy." Brookfield stopped in front of him and looked first at the portrait and then at the man. "By Jove, old fellow," he exclaimed at last, "you grow more and more like Garrick every day!"

"Do you really think so, Brookfield?" returned the delighted victim.

"Yes," came the crushing retort, "and less and less like him every night."—London Tatler.

William C. Witherell, W. Potawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has convinced me that they are an absolutely reliable kidney remedy. I publicly recommended them through the local papers in return for the relief I received from backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble through their use. I seldom have need of a kidney remedy now, but I still keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house all the time. I know of several persons who have used this remedy at my suggestion with the best of results." For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

MATCHMAKING.

A Story of Love Between Intellectual People.

By WAYNE S. BORROW.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

A little dark woman dressed in a kimono was arranging a mahogany tea table with claws to its legs, on which were a teapot, dainty china cups and saucers, cream and sugar bowls. The apartment was as daintily furnished as the tea table. Persian rugs were on the floor, damask and lace curtains hung in the windows, while a profusion of bric-a-brac was scattered about. It was an apartment that a man would never dare enter, for should he turn around suddenly his coattail would be sure to sweep some valuable bit of china on to the floor, of course breaking it into fragments.

A woman large and fair [illegible] to the door. "You poor thing! You look fagged to death."

"I am, dear. I'm dead already. This is my ghost that wants a cup of tea."

The little dark woman in the kimono pushed the large fair one into an easy chair, slipped out hatpins and disposed of the gorgeous picture hat that crowned a blond pompadour.

"I'm sure you're an angel, Laura. Perhaps this poor ghost has got to heaven."

"Tell me about it," said the other sympathetically. "You haven't lost flesh over it, Anne."

The visitor laughed ruefully. "Do I lose flesh over anything?" she inquired. "But I have taken what Jack calls my annual vow and swear-off from clubs. The federation may federate in any town it sees fit. I'll not go near it. No, I'll not!" as her hostess laughed and refilled her teacup. "This vow is not to be annually broken—only annually renewed.

"You see, it was like this: It was worse than an ordinary federation meeting, for I had Myra Reed Morton and her daughter Lily's love affairs on my mind. You know, Professor Henry of the university has been desperately in love with Lily for a year, only he doesn't know it, poor soul! He's so wound up in his 'ologies and knowledges that he doesn't understand what he wants."

"And you were trying to help him, you matchmaking creature!" suggested Laura.

"Of course I was! Isn't Myra Reed a widow and one of my dearest friends, and isn't Lily the sweetest and best girl of her age I know? I've invited the professor to my house and listened to his theories till"—

"Till you're very, very tired of it," agreed the other sympathetically.

The sufferer nodded. "I've given him every chance in the world to be alone with Lily, and I've tried—well, it sounds brutal to put it just that way—but I've tried to shield Myra's little idiosyncrasies from the son-in-law I hoped she would have.

"Then along came this miserable federation meeting, and the evil one counseled me to put Myra on the program. Some madness led me to think that she would actually follow instructions and give me a paper on colonial families of Virginia—that for the Daughters, you know. In my besotted state of mind I ran and invited the professor to be present at that particular meeting. To invite him it was necessary to invite the entire faculty unless I wanted to seem desperately special. Oh, Laura, I don't know whether I have fortitude to go on!"

"Yes, you have," her friend insisted. "Take a wafer and several long breaths. Did Susie Allingham faint? I heard the most garbled account of the thing."

"Faint? No more than you or I. She had promised me to have a paper on traveling libraries and a full report. Five minutes before the reading I asked her how long her paper was and would she please let me glance over it. The shameless creature hadn't the scratch of a pen. She said she was going to give us a little talk, and she was shaking like a leaf with stage fright right then. Oh, yes, she pretended to faint!"

"You can't quite say that, can you? You didn't have a physician present or test her with a redhot iron?"

The president of the Spare Moments club giggled comfortably. "I rather think the latter. Jane Courtney—you know what a soldier Jane is—oh, a remonstrance. "It is dangerous as you are now, and if you lean out your heels may slip, and then—and then you will go down and drag us with you. It may be death."

"It may be life for the ten persons the snow carried over. I do not know, but there is the edge of something dark just over the bulge of rock, and I thought I saw it stir. You may hold your knives ready, and if I fall you can cut the rope quickly and save yourselves. Now!"

They pressed the rope sharply against the rock wall behind and braced themselves as firmly as possible to hold it from slipping or swaying. Marcia, without even looking at them again, leaned out, and out, and out, until only the rope sustained her weight, her heels resting against the narrow shelf keeping her in position. Then, after what seemed an endless suspense to the men at the end of the rope, her hand motioned for them to draw her back to her footing.

"Yes, it is the party," she said as she regained her balance, "and some of them are alive. We must go down to them."

"But the rope is not long enough," both guides protested in a breath, "and we cannot"—

"Yes, I think we can," Marcia said, "or at least we can try. There are several fissures large enough for our heels to grasp. One of us will stay here, another be let down to a fissure as far as the rope will reach, and so on. There are three of you guides and myself. Four lengths of the rope will reach down to the party, I think. You have plenty of strong twine, and that can be used to draw the rope up from shelf to shelf as the party are rescued."

"A girl could never draw a heavy body up this wall," fearfully, "and—and if the rope should slip away and be lost"—

"We will take that risk. And I shall be strong enough to draw them up. I have done such things before. Now, Henri," as she worked her way along the shelf to his side and motioned for the other guides to follow, "you will stay here and lower the rest of us to the next fissure, then fasten the twine to the rope and let it down for Fritz to lower Gaspard and myself to the next fissure; then Gaspard will lower me, and I will fasten the rope to some rock projection, or if I cannot find one I will drill a hole in the rock and drive in a spike.

"Then I will go down hand over hand and see if any of the party are able to help themselves.

"If they are, I will climb back to my fissure and draw them up, or perhaps some of them will be able to help me. If not, I will have to go down to fasten each one separately, then climb back and draw him up.

"And, now, mind, all of you," her voice ringing sharp, "there must not be a hand to tremble or an eye to waver. On each of us the lives of all will depend."

"Perhaps one of us men would better go down to the lowest fissure," hesitated Henri.

"No; I will go myself. I can do the work better, I think, and my muscles have been trained for and by such work. It may be the entire party are alive and we can save them all."

They started to follow the plan the girl had laid down. Marcia, having assumed the leadership, naturally took it upon herself to be the first one lowered.

The rope having been fastened about her waist, she was lowered to the fissure below. The distance was not great, but only a steady pair of eyes, swinging, as she did, over a giddy height, could have enabled her to maintain her equanimity.

Having reached the fissure, she unbound the rope. It was drawn up, and Fritz was next lowered, then Gaspard.

When the three were ready to go a step lower Marcia, still taking the lead, was lowered to the next fissure, and Gaspard followed.

It was now Marcia's part to do the rest alone.

But this step was more dangerous than the others, for there was but one pair of arms to bear her weight, and the distance was greater than either of the two former descents.

The brave girl made a loop at the end of the rope, and, instead of having it placed about her waist, took it in her hands that she might drop whatever distance the rope would not reach.

And so, swinging by her two hands, she was lowered to the rope's full length.

There still remained six feet between her and a rocky projection on which there was a surface as many feet square. She called to Gaspard to move three feet to the left. He did so, and she called again to him to move two feet farther in the same direction. Then she told him to swing her gently to and fro from the cliff. When directly over the proper place she let go and safely landed on the rock.

Tying the end of the rope around a point of rock, she completed her journey.

It was only after a day and night and another day of such hardihood and daring as was told at the inns and chalets for many a long year that the work was finished.

Even the guides, fired by the example of Marcia and perhaps also by solicitude for the other guides of their party, seemed to be unconscious of fear and hunger and weariness.

When at the end of the second day they reached the foot of the mountain the rescuers were almost as exhausted as the party they had saved, and from the palms of Marcia Wells' hands nearly all the skin had been worn by the rope.

But three days later, although her hands were still bandaged, she said goodby to the rest of the party and started off to begin the new year in quest of another mountain to climb.

A Modest Judge.

A certain prominent English jurist was transferred from the chancery court to the admiralty court rather unexpectedly. While conversant with English law to a surprising degree, this gentleman had spent little time in marine law and was rather dubious as to his ability to cope with the duties of his new office. His colleagues, in recognition of the occasion, gave him a dinner, after which he was called upon for an address. He made a long and serious speech, which embraced about everything from free trade to England's foreign policy. Then, pausing a moment, he glanced round the crowded room and said:

"Gentlemen, in closing I can think of no better words than the lines of Tennyson:

"And may there be no moaning of the bar
When I put out to sea."

Foreign Geography.

Children of European birth who were old enough to receive some instruction in geography before coming to this country hold opinions in regard to the political divisions of the earth which all the American geographers and the teachers thereof combined cannot uproot. A New York teacher found that out when she tried to impress upon a young Austrian miss that Columbus is the capital of Ohio.

"It is Cincinnati, on the Ohio," retorted the Austrian maiden politely, but firmly.

Maps and printed text were produced to prove her error. The pupil was in nowise convinced.

"It wasn't that way in our geography at home," said she. And the next day, to uphold her contention, she brought the geography on which she based her assertion. That book was not a perfect product of the geography maker's art, for it certainly did state that Cincinnati, on the Ohio river, was the capital of Ohio.

"But that is a mistake," said the teacher. Then day after day, when the girl was called upon to recite, the teacher put the question of discord, "What is the capital of Ohio?" and day after day, at the risk of bad marks, came the positive reply, "Cincinnati, on the Ohio."—New York Press.

Whelks' Eggs.

Natural soap is not heard of very often, but it not only exists, but is highly prized by Jack Tar in the tropics when the purser reports that the ship's supply of soap has given out. Then all hands are sent ashore to gather a supply of "natural soap," which is found on the shore in the shape of whelks' eggs. The whelk is a little shellfish, or marine mollusk, which in Europe is eaten like mussels, cockles, oysters and clams, but in the tropics it is more highly esteemed for the soap it provides in the shape of its eggs. The eggs are found in a light yellowish mass which is composed of some five or six hundred capsules. One fish alone produces millions of these eggs in the course of the year. They are found on the shores of the Atlantic, but are very profuse on the intertropical coral reefs, where sailors take large quantities aboard for use as soap.

Diamond Cut Diamond.

"Patrick H. McCarren," said a Brooklyn lawyer, "knew how to handle men. He met straightforward men with straightforward methods, and tricky men he bested with wilier tricks than their own.

"Once he illustrated his policy to me with a story. He was like, he said, the rich Peter Higgins.

"When Peter was young and gay two friends, being hard up, put up a game on him.

"'Peter,' they said, 'you might pay us that $2 we lent you.'

"'When did you lend me $2?' said Peter haughtily.

"'Why, night before last, when you were drunk,' was the reply.

"'Oh, yes,' said Peter. 'I remember now. But, hang it, I paid you back!'

"'Paid us back? When?'

"'Last night, when you were drunk. Don't you remember?'"

Didn't Lose His Temper.

There was an elderly East Indian colonel whose boast it was that he had a very tranquil disposition that nothing could ruffle. He took up golf, and for a long time his friends failed to notice any disturbance of the colonel's outward calm, but one day, when playing a foursome, he got into a notorious "devil's punchbowl" bunker and spent a terrible fifteen minutes trying first to find the ball and then to play it out. He tried every club in vain, and at last, glaring like a demon, he smashed them, one after another, across a jagged rock. "What are you doing?" cried the party above. "It's all right!" he snorted. "It's—it's better to—break one's clubs than to—lose one's temper!" And the caddie gathered up the pieces.

Crushing a Lawyer.

De Wolfe Hopper was once a witness in a suit for slander, and the opposing counsel in the court room said:

"You are an actor, I believe?"

"Yes," replied Hopper.

"Is not that a low calling?"

"I don't know, but it's so much better than my father's that I am rather proud of it."

"What was your father's calling, may I ask?"

"He was a lawyer," said Hopper.

HOME FROM TEXAS!

Our Good Friends, The Slayton's.

Dear Ed. Herald:

The Slaytons arrived safe and sound from their southern trip last Friday and Tecumseh "sure does" look right good to us and we are "plumb" glad to be at home again. We were struck with the wonderful possibilities of Texas, but we were amazed at the achievements of Oklahoma City. The only place we visited in Oklahoma. Here we found a number of friends besides the relatives we visited. Louis McClure now of the firm of Workman & McClure is doing finely and planning to build a home this spring. Met Mrs. Emory and Mrs. Ada [illegible] and Mrs. Robert Boyd's mother and sister. Mr. Will Crane, formerly of the Wood Crane & Wood of Adrian, is President and [illegible] Co. He took us through their fine new store. The building is a six story stone and steel fire proof structure equipped with all up-to-date conveniences. They employ about 200 in the store. His son Douglas Crane is an attorney in the city.

The story of Oklahoma City reads like a fairy tale. In March 1889 it was just a watering station for the Sante Fe Railway trains. In May that year it had a population of 5000. In 1900, 10,000, 1907, 32000, today 50000 and they claim this census will surely give them 60000.

The city has just secured a packing plant, Morris & Co. of Chicago, with a capacity of handling daily 1000 head of cattle 500 hogs and 1500 sheep. A bonus of $300,000 cash for this plant was raised in a few hours. This plant will bring thousands of workmen to the city. They were advertising for 1500 more men to rush the work last week. The city has 45 miles of Electric St. Railway, 60 miles of paved streets, 47 churches, 14 public schools, Epworth University and a promise of a Pres. College, 13 banks with over $10,000,000 deposits, 4 railroads with 30 passenger trains daily. Area of the city 9 square miles, and average temperature 60 degrees. It ranged from 50 to 76 degrees the week we were there and the suushine every day was simply glorious. (I will just whisper though that they said one day last August it was 108 degrees) Now I have told you something of the greatness of this fair city. Shall we all sell out and go there? Let me preach a little sermon, with apologies to our ministers, and my text is something like this: "Better be a big toad in a little puddle" etc. etc. Now after having been a medium sized toad in Tecumseh it would be quite hard to be a little tiny toad in the great city of Oklahoma. We have our advantages, what are some of our assets. To be known and loved by all (if we are lovable). Money goes ten times as far here, good schools and churches as you find anywhere, great trees, green grass, big yards, happy homes. There—big taxes, high rents, if fortunate enough to have anything to tax, rush, speculation everywhere, wind, dust and you are a stranger in a strange land. Very few care whether you succeed or not, you stand or fall alone. So I would say if you are a capable, energetic young man, with brains and little money, push on to the west or south where you can find a better place to win out, but if you have good brains and some money and a chance in a good business that some one has made for you, don't think all the opportunities are far away. There are comforts and advantages right here (for money cannot buy all the good things of life) that you would greatly miss in a great city. Think this is all I will say. Very glad to have had our trip and learn so much of other states and more than glad to be back in dear old Tecumseh.

Alice M. Slayton.

Habits of Seals.

The habits of seals are very interesting. The very young seal is helpless in the water until he is taught by his mother to swim. She takes him into the water daily on her fin and dumps him in and when he gets tired of floundering about places him on her fin again and returns to her camp. When the young seals are well grown they suddenly disappear with their mothers and the bull seals. No one knows where they go, and their return is equally as sudden as their departure. The bulls are the first to put in an appearance at the camping ground. When they arrive they commence at once to prepare a camp for their mates, which they stake off and for which they fight until they die. In the meantime the female seals remain quite a distance from land, floating lazily on the water and seemingly having a good time.

Ant Eaters.

Ant eaters are in the curious position of being practically unable to open their mouths. It may almost be said, indeed, that they have no mouths to open. There is just a small, round orifice at the end of the snout, through which about two feet of wormlike tongue can wriggle out, and as this tongue is bathed with liquid glue instead of saliva every ant which it touches adheres to it, and the animal licks the insects up by hundreds at a time.

Not Up to Modern Standards.

"Your wife's new hat makes her look like a queen," said the man who tries to be complimentary.

"Don't let her hear you say that," answered Mr. Bliggins. "I have looked throught the histories, and I never yet saw a picture of a queen who looked as if she employed a first class milliner."—Washington Star.

Evarts and the Author.

When a popular young author went to see William M. Evarts while he was secretary of state in behalf of a consulship for which he was an applicant Mr. Evarts congratulated him on the fame which he had acquired, but hastened to add, "Although you have laurels on your brows, I suppose you can't browse on your laurels."

Inquisitive.

After Sunday school:

Willie—Did you hear that boy swear, Johnny, when I told him to go away?

Johnny—No. (Quietly persuasive) Tell him to go away again and I'll listen.—Manchester Guardian.

It will be seen that Adrian opens at home with Saginaw the pennant winners of last season. That itself is quite an honor and every fan within a radius of fifteen miles should turn out on opening day, May 10 and see what the Adrian club can do with the Pets of Burkhart.

According to a new ruling of the league, teams in the S. M. can play no exhibition games with S. M. teams and for that reason there will be no disappointments over the showing of any of the teams when the season opens.

SUBJECT:
"SCULLY ANTHRACITE"

It is with pleasure that we announce to coal users and the general public of this city, that the above coal has been tested by the United States Geological Survey Department, located in the city of Pittsburg, Pa., and their findings as a result of this test was that "SCULLY ANTHRACITE" coal comes fully within their approval and they have stamped it as being a pure Anthracite Hard coal

Some local dealers have raised complaint and have tried to make an issue out of the fact that it was not a Genuine Anthracite coal. In this connection, beg to advise you that the United States Government is the largest purchaser of coal in the world, and they have several different departments to analyze coal for just such purposes, and their determination and decision in the matter is accepted by all local coal dealers throughout the United States as being final and satisfactory. Consequently, S. W. & L. E. Temple, of your city, will be glad at any and all times to show you this coal burning in their office, and the number of satisfied users in your city speaks for itself.

We make the claim that Scully Anthracite coal contains more heat per ton than the majority of Hard coals on the market. Further, that after one once gets accustomed to burning same, they will not go back to other hard coals that they have previously burned. When you consider the difference in price, or in other words, how cheaply you can buy this coal, all conditions taken into consideration, it appeals not only to the poor, but the rich and poor alike.

We take this means of thanking you for the patronage you have seen fit to give our agent in your city, who we cheerfully stand behind in their guarantee to you. Price $7.00 per ton delivered. If not delivered, $6.50 per ton. Respectfully,

W. J. SCULLY,
Detroit, Mich.

JOINT INSTALLATION

K. O. T. M. M. and L. O. T. M. M.

A large and appreciative audience was in attendance at the joint installation of the K. O. T. M. M. and the L. O. T. M. M. at Odd Fellows Hall Monday evening. The ceremony of installation was very impressive and much praise is due the officers and guards for their effective work. In listening to the obbligations taken by each candidate and the lecture given, one could not help feeling that it was good for these brothers and sisters to meet together and that the Order is surely one worthy of respect from all. The program given at the close of the installation was very beautiful indeed.

The drill under the leadership of Mrs. Edna Belding was exceptionally fine, and we congratulate the Ladies and Sir Knights on their good work. The solo by Mrs. [illegible] was very fine.

The installing officer for the Sir Knights was H. C. Lair of Port Huron, whose work was pronounced very good indeed. Mrs. Edna Belding installed the ladies in her usual very pleasing manner.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The congregation of the Baptist church Sunday evening was larger than on any previous evening since Dr. Hartzog began his lectures on "Beacon Lights of Biblical History." It was notably representative of the intelligence of the town and surrounding country. His theme was "King Solomon the Temple Builder." To add to the interest of the lecture, the speaker had a large painting of Jerusalem with the Temple in the foreground. He also had a large map of the ancient world indicating the size of King Solomon's domain. This map and a drawing illustrating the location of Jerusalem have been prepared by the speaker.

Next Sunday evening the theme will be "Elijah the Dean of the Prophets." He will give the thrilling story of the distruation of the empire and the city of Jerusalem invaded by an Egyptian King.

NANCY B. MERRILL.

Mrs. Merrill has for a long time been a sufferer from bronchial trouble and death came to her relief Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Pentecost. She was born in Onondaga Co. N. Y. and was 76 years old at the time of her death.

She was married July 4, 1846, to Jason P. Merrill and to them was born three children all of whom survive her. She has made her home of late years with her daughter, Mrs. Adah Resbridger of Jackson but came to Tecumseh last October, where she has been with her daughter Mrs. Lillian Pentecost, Delos H. Merrill of Napoleon is her son.

The funeral was held at the Baptist Church in Norvell at 10 o'clock Monday, Rev. Blanchard officiating.

ALMA COLLEGE.

President Bruske has just received architectural plans which show that the campus is to undergo a great change in the near future. These drawings are the work of Mr. Yeomans of Philadelphia, and were presented to Dr. Bruske by Mrs. Louise Yeomans King, Alma.

Among the buildings to be erected will be a spacious men's dormitory situated near the big athletic field. Another building, the most important of all will be known as the Lumberman's Memorial Hall. It will contain an assembly room beneath the dome, and two wings, one devoted to Sciences and the other to Music and the arts.

In beautifying the campus special attention will be given to the cultivation of shrubbery. Although the campus contains a grove of twelve there is very little shrubbery to cover and adorn the foundations of the buildings.

A committee of Alma citizens has been appointed to raise an endowment of five thousand dollars, the income of which to be used in keeping the campus trim and neat.

It would be well nigh impossible to trace the growth of Alma College step by step. Beginning with two buildings the college has advanced in number of buildings and equipment until we now have seven. Various departments were added from year to year, the Academy, the Kindergarden the Commercial, the School of Art, the School of Music and the School of Pedagogy. The last edifice erected was Wright Hall, the finest building of its kind in the west. From an enrollement of 95 in 1887-8, the student body has grown to an average of 300. The faculty has increased from 6 to 25. The college has six libraries containing 22,500 volumes, also a valuable collection of pamphlets. 2316 volumes were added in 1909 alone.

This splendid work of expansion and improvement will continue. Alma college plans to celebrate its 26th anniversary in 1912 for that year will mark the completion of certain improvements and the consummation of important projects. The endowment will have been increased to half a million dollars, the number of free Scholarships tripled several buildidgs erected and the campus beautified.

BRIEF AND BREEZY.

Does Mr. Taft expect the Senate to do anything when Mr. Aldrich is not present?

Senator La Follette himself may be the greatest demagogue of the age, but the fact remains that that which he is preaching and teaching, is for the general uplift of mankind.

Mr. Champ Clark should go slow. If he and his cohorts reform "Uncle Joe" too early in the game, they may spoil their own prospects.

Col. Frank L. Stanton thinks he might easily swear off from eating meat "were it not for beefsteak and onions." Somebody will have to call this obstreperous member to order.

Mr. Taft believes that the President should be the head of his party. There's one Roosevelt policy that has not become impaired.

The next President may be elected on the vegetarian ticket.

Any man who thinks he can easily push Taft out of the way has not seen the man.

Why don't those kind-hearted Congressmen let Ballinger name his own whitewash committee?

Senator Aldrich is not a rash man. He will count at least 1000 before he makes up his mind to retire.

A boil is the result of a humor the blood, but few victims see anything funny about it.

No Guess Work
About the Baking if you use
CALUMET
Baking Powder

When the baking does not come just right you are inclined to blame everything but the real cause. Poor baking powder spoils more food than any other one thing. Try a can of CALUMET and feel easy about your baking. It never fails to produce sweet, delicious food. On account of its great raising power and moderate cost it is the most economical.

Misleading advertisements may have led you to believe that you take baking powder into the stomach in the same form as it is in the can. Here is the truth: In the process of baking the heat causes a chemical reaction in the baking powder which destroys or entirely changes the nature of the original ingredients. Therefore, the original contents of the can or what is printed on the label is no indication of what you get in the food.

In Calumet Baking Powder the ingredients are so scientifically compounded that this chemical reaction leaves no tartaric acid, Alum, Lime or other residue in the food. In a Cream of Tartar or Trust Baking Powder this chemical reaction turns the Cream of Tartar into Rochelle Salts, a drug which should never be taken in food.

CALUMET complies with all pure food laws—both State and National. Your Grocer will guarantee it. If he offers "something just as good," refuse it—insist on having CALUMET and be sure of good baking.

Received highest award World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, 1907, which positively proves there is no guesswork about CALUMET, because this award means that it was highest in quality and is absolutely pure.

MONDAY CLUB.

The Monday Club gave another of their open days yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Wilson.

The flags of Norway and Sweden were every where in evidence as this is a Scandenavian year with the club. All the rooms were decorated with the national emblems of the countries which the club is studying.

The rooms were well filled with members and the guests listened to some fine Swedish music in the following program:

Instrumental Duet, Norwegian Bridal Procession, Grieg—Mrs. Fred Wood, Miss Edyth Shull.

Vocal Solo, Cradle Song by Saderberg—Mrs. Thomas McCann.

Biographical Sketch of Jennie Lind—Mrs. Wood.

A Sketch of Christine Nilson was given in a paper by Miss Edyth Magers.

Miss Magers accompanied by Mrs. Wood sang—Rose Marie and responded to an encore with "The Swanee River."

Piano Solo, Love, by Grieg—Miss Alice Bradley. The encore which Miss Bradley gave was, "Sow a Wild Rose,, by McDowell.

Honor to One of Tecumseh's Dentists

At a meeting of the second District Dental Association held in Jackson last week, Dr. Reed was elected President, as this Association is composed of the dentists of the counties of Jackson, Washtenaw and Lenawee, this was a marked favor, and one well deserved. Many of the leading dentists of the State were in attendance and the meeting was one of great interest. We congratulate the Dr. on his new office.

The "sundries" item in a man's personal account may often cover a multitude of sins.

MY DREAM.

After One Month's Experience As Reporter.

"I dreamed me a dream, in the midst of my slumbers,
And as fast as I dreamed, it was coined into numbers."
Every local and scrap I had put in the papers,
Like imps from Inferno, around me did caper.
They twigged at my ear, and they pulled at my hair—
One said I was splendid, another—not fair.
Mr. A, who had come from a far distant town,
Was pleased with the way I had written him down—
While B, not so friendly, remarked with a laugh;
That item is worthless as vapor or chaff.
Then C jumped up boldly remarking at once;
That reporter is neither a tool or a dunce.
Then another remarked—with a wink of the eye,
Beware when you meet her, to quiz you she'll try.
They danced on my pillow, with pure impish glee,
Discussing my work in a manner quite free—
'Till a call from below woke me up from my sleeping,
And I left all the imps, in the Devil's own keeping.
He seized on them quickly, the nimble and spry,
And served them at once in a good printer's Pi.

BANQUET

Young People's Society.

The banquet given by the Young People's society at the Presbyterian church last Friday night was a very pleasant affair. About 50 partook of the good things provided by the Ladies of the Aid Society.

Miss Lulu Aylesworth, President of the society acted as toastmistress in a very pleasing manner. Earl Rector responded to the toast, "The Young People's Work" in a very effective manner. Rev. Dunning next responded to "Our Society" his remarks were very interesting.

"The Aim of the Christian Endeavor" was finely handled by Wm. Ralph Hall State Secretary of the Young People's Society. Later he gave an address on "The Work of the Y. P. S." what it was doing and what it must aim to do.

The musical part of the program was rendered by Mrs. Hodges and Mrs. Wood, in a duet and Miss Edith Wilson and Floyd Slater, Solos. The entertainment was very interesting in every respect.

DIRT CHEAP.

No, dirt is'nt cheap any longer so drop the saying, "dirt cheap" from your vocabulary.

Farms in Southern Michigan are selling at fabulous prices. Farmers now adays can retire in comfort, as they can get almost any price they wish and for those who still work their farms there surely is everything to encourage them, as everything they produce is bringing the best of prices.

After so many years of adverse conditions the outlook is surely encouraging.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Tecumseh People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and I have received such great benefit that I gladly endorse them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work as they should I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and a short use brings me relief." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, filmmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Bristin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago and all my efforts for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were highly colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

On a Sailing Vessel.

Instead of the usual routine work on a steamer—paint washing and so forth—the work on a sailing ship varies widely. It may be making or shortening sail, bending or unbending fine or heavy weather canvas, squaring in or bracing up the yards, tacking or wearing ship, and, no matter what the labor, one always has the satisfaction of seeing the result. The speed and sailing qualities of a vessel were things that could be discussed with interest as well as the length of passage. In bad weather, when excitement ran high and cursing was considered quite in order, struggling up aloft with wet or frozen canvas—one hand for the ship and the other for yourself—on a dark, dirty night put a man on his mettle, and should the foresail be handled or the main topsail settled and the cry of "Splice the main brace!" be heard—well, one felt at peace with the world.

In the tropics catching sharks, harpooning dolphins and porpoises, singing, dancing, telling yarns and reading over old love letters are diversions not easily forgotten by those who have experienced them. Being becalmed in the tropics on a beautiful moonlight night brought home to one the beauties and wonders of nature and the existence of a God with whom one felt in closer touch on such nights as those.—A British Marine Officer in Atlantic.

Slightly Acquainted.

As an instance of the "marrying in haste" principle that obtains in some American cities an English lady who visited Chicago relates how her maid, who accompanied her, quickly became imbued with the desire to become Mrs. Somebody.

One morning she appeared before her mistress and, with glowing eyes, announced that she had named the day and would become a wife at the end of the week.

"Are you going back home, then?" the lady asked.

"Oh, no, ma'am; it's an American gentleman," replied the maid.

"But," remonstrated her mistress, "we've only been here a fortnight."

"That's no matter. He wants the wedding to be on Saturday."

"Well, can't you get him to postpone the marriage just a little till I can get another maid?"

"Well, ma'am, I'd like to oblige you; but, you see, I don't feel well enough acquainted to ask him to do that."—London Answers.

A Mean Trick.

"Talking of mean tricks," said the big man, "there was Ballantine. This man Ballantine came in late to a song recital at Palm Beach, and there wasn't a vacant seat in the house.

"Ballantine noticed Mrs. Jerome Blank. Mrs. Jerome Blank, he knew, had a very handsome husband that she kept a strict watch over. She didn't like him to associate with any of the fair sex.

"Ballantine, edging near to Mrs. Blank, who had an excellent seat, said in a loud voice to a friend:

"'Who was that enormously pretty girl I saw Jerome Blank talking to on the pier?'

"In about four seconds Mrs. Blank was gone and Ballantine was seated comfortably in her chair."—Kansas City Star.

A Curious Experience.

Lombroso, the famous Italian criminologist, once had a curious experience. He was in a printing office correcting the proofs in his "Delinquent Man" with the chief reader when on reaching a page which deals with a young man who, impelled by jealousy, had stabbed his fiancee he made a surprising discovery. The proofreader was his man.

"Suddenly," Lombroso said in telling the story, "he threw himself at my feet, declaring that he would commit suicide if I published this story with his name. His face, before very gentle, was completely altered and almost terrifying, and I was really afraid that he would kill himself or me on the spot. I tore up the proofs and for several editions omitted his story."

Cooking Your Goose.

The phrase "I'll cook your goose for you" originated in this manner: Eric, king of Sweden, coming to a certain town, besieged it, but, having few soldiers, was obliged to desist. The inhabitants in derision hung out from the walls a goose on a pole. Later Eric returned with reenforcements and in reply to the challenge of the heralds observed that he had come "to cook their goose for them" and proceeded to storm the town and make it hot for the inhabitants.

PARISIANS ARE JUBILANT

Waters of Seine Are at Last Receding.

THOUSANDS VISIT THE QUAYS

Bridges Reopened—None Seem to Be Seriously Damaged—Trouble By No Means Over, However—Red Cross Has Relief Fund of $283,000—Soup Kitchens Set Up.

Paris, Jan. 31.—Central Paris Sunday had the appearance rather of celebration than of mourning in an incalculable disaster. Brilliant weather, added to reports of a constant recession of the floods, excited the spirits of the Parisians to a high pitch of gaiety. Everybody was outdoors. Scores of thousands swarmed jubilantly on the quay sides, suggesting a gigantic gathering of tourists. The crush of wheeled traffic was tremendous. The riverside was everyone's goal, and every evidence of the subsidence of the water was eagerly scanned and discussed. The troops were considerably taxed to restrain the eagerness of the crowds, which moving from place to place, would have often found progress difficult, but for the military cordons. Three of the closed bridges were reopened and none seemed to have suffered in stability.

New Encroachments Continue.

If the decline of the water continues as it has all will be well. Meanwhile conditions in the city have not yet greatly improved. There have been sudden disappearances of the water in some directions and new encroachments in others. The underground railway station in the Square du Temple was suddenly almost swamped Sunday, the water reaching a depth of nearly twenty-four feet.

It is hardly necessary to say, that underground Paris is still full of water. Here and there a cellar has been emptied, but this is not general. The misery of the refugees and householders generally is not mitigated, and the gravity of the situation is not relieved.

The total amount thus far received for the national flood relief fund is $283,000. The Red Cross society, which is establishing refuge and soup kitchens all over the city, is giving the most useful help. Many of its members belong to the highest French society. The supply of provisions has again become normal. The movement of Parisians to the big hotels continues.

Fallieres Fell Out of Boat.

President Fallieres Sunday visited the flooded quarters of the city, making use of all sorts of means of transportation. His automobile took him to the Hotel Invalides through a vast shallow lake near the Pont Alexandre. There he embarked in a motor boat. The president lost his balance and fell into the water, from which he was promptly rescued. He returned to the palace, changed his clothing and then resumed his tour of inspection. He was everywhere received with enthusiasm. The premier also paid visits all around Paris.

No official reports were received from the provinces up to this morning. So far as Paris is concerned, the present state of affairs is reassuring.

GOOD TIME FOR UPRISING.

In Fact 'Tis Feared Orleanists May Stir Up Revolution.

Paris, Jan. 31.—Among many Parisians there is anxiety as to future events, although no further inundation is feared. It will probably be the best part of a year before the roads and buildings are put in their previous condition, which means that the government has a heavy task before it, and France easily becomes dissatisfied with its government. Should there be delay in the reorganization of the city, and this is almost inevitable, there will be discontent everywhere, which may, perhaps, ferment. Then it is feared that "the sword of Damocles," which France is always on the alert for, viz. the Orleanists, may seize the opportunity to stir up strife and revolution. Although this anxiety may seem absurd to any one not understanding the intricacies of French politics, it is far from unreasonable.

At present everybody is most enthusiastic about all the government arrangements and the personal efforts of the chiefs of the government to alleviate the suffering. Perfect of Police Lepine is more than ever the idol of the country.

Insured For a Million.

New York, Jan. 31.—John H. Jones of Pittsburg, head of the Pittsburg-Buffalo company, has been insured in the Equitable for $1,000,000, payable to the Pittsburg-Buffalo company. G. W. Vanderbilt is the only other person now known to carry so much in one policy, though there are several men who carry in the aggregate a bigger amount of insurance. The late Frank H. Peavey of Minneapolis carried a million dollar policy. The Pittsburg-Buffalo company has insured the lives of all its officers and is now paying to the Equitable more than $50,000 a year in premiums.

A Sporting Chance.

"I'll teach you to play at pitch and toss!" shouted the enraged father. "I'll flog you for an hour, I will!"

SAYS SENATOR ALLDS RECEIVED A BRIBE

Fellow Senator In New York Makes Charges Against Him.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 31.—State Senator Jotham P. Allds of Norwich, the president, pro. tem., of the state senate, and Republican leader of that branch of the legislature, received a bribe of $1,000 while a member of the assembly on April 23, 1901, for not pressing to passage certain legislation. This is the charge just made public by Senator Benn Conger, also a Republican.

In his sworn charge, Senator Conger swears that the bribery in question was initiated by Senator Allds himself, who demanded the $1,000 instead of the bridge manufacturing companies seeking out Senator Allds to buy him off from doing his duty. It is inferred that Senator Conger thus justifies his position in this controversy in that he would have it appear that the bridge companies had not taken the initiative, but had paid up because they considered it "strike" legislation and had to give up the money or suffer the consequences.

Senator Conger declares Senator Allds received and accepted $1,000 in Senator Conger's presence in the capitol building.

MRS. GUNNESS AGAIN.

Willmar (Minn.) Man Believes She Is Brother's Housekeeper.

Willmar, Minn., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Belle Gunness, who lured many men to their doom at the notorious "Gunness farm" near Laporte, Ind., has, after three years' disappearance, it is believed, been found as a housekeeper for Gus Kirby, a farmer, fourteen miles northeast of Willmar. This information comes from Samuel Kirby of Mankato, Minn., a wealthy farmer and brother of Gus Kirby.

Gus's movements during the past few months have been toward putting in cash all his property in view to a "trip to California." This action is closely in line with Mrs. Gunness' reputed policy in securing the worldly wealth of her victims. The alleged physical similarity between his brother's housekeeper and the missing Laporte fugitive have convinced Samuel Kirby that the women are identical.

Chief of Police Clinton Cochran of Laporte, Ind., armed with a warrant for Mrs. Gunness' arrest, is expected in Willmar.

New York's Old First Presbyterian Church Has Large Enough Endowment Fund Now.

New York, Jan. 31.—The Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, pastor of the Old First Presbyterian church, at Fifth avenue and Twelfth street, announced at the close of his sermon Sunday morning that Mrs. D. Willis James had given the church $180,000, thereby raising the endowment to $300,000, and preserving the Old First church.

The congregation of this church, like those of most downtown churches, has dwindled so in recent years that the church has for some time been in serious financial straits. It had finally become necessary either to sell the church site, a block of the frontage on Fifth avenue, and move uptown, or raise an endowment. Dr. Duffield was particularly anxious to save the old church. By several years of hard work he had raised $120,000 endowment, but more money was needed. Mrs. James' gift definitely settles the question of the Old First's future.

In six years more the Old First church will celebrate its bicentennial anniversary.

WHY FLOODS IN EUROPE.

Government Weather Bureau Chief Gives the Reason.

Washington, Jan. 31.—In a special bulletin in which he predicts that a cold wave will hit the Atlantic coast by the early part of this week, Professor Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, has given his explanation of the heavy floods in western Europe.

"The exceptionally heavy rains and resultant destructive floods of the last two weeks in western Europe," said Professor Moore, "were due to a remarkable persistence of abnormally low barometric pressure over Iceland area and adjacent European coasts. During this period western central and western portions of Europe were almost constantly covered by the rain quadrants of a rapid succession of cyclonic areas of exceptional magnitude and intensity. Similar conditions existed over Behring sea and adjacent portions of the Pacific ocean and the North American continent, where gales and heavy precipitation also prevailed. During the prevalence of these great cyclonic areas in the high latitudes of the oceans, barometric pressure was usually high over Siberia, the Azores and the tropical and sub-tropical regions of the Pacific ocean."

WOMAN SUES PREACHER.

Wants $50,000 For Alleged Defamation of Character.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—A suit for damages brought by Mrs. Mary A. Lavender against the Rev. Dr. Edward B. Crawford, pastor of the Woodlawn M. E. church, in which she seeks to collect $50,000 for alleged defamation of character, will be called for trial before Judge Mangan in the circuit court today.

The suit is the outgrowth of a church trial a year ago involving Mr. Crawford, Mrs. Lavender, a member of the Woodlawn church, and the Rev. John D. Leek, a former pastor of the church.

Crawford claimed that Mrs. Lavender had made a confession to him in which she admitted that her relations with Dr. Leek had not been proper. Crawford used this confession to bring the former pastor and the parishioner to an ecclesiastical trial.

The verdict contained censure for both. The affair [illegible] annual conference of the Methodist church in Rockford, Ill., where Dr. Crawford was given the support of that body and the resignation of Dr. Leek from the ministry accepted.

Mrs. Lavender says that she never made the confession.

QUEER SENTENCES.

Saloon Keepers Made to Go to Church For Violating Law.

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—The saloon keepers who were sentenced by Mayor Shank to attend church Sunday because they had violated the law last Sunday by keeping their saloons open paid the full penalties of their wrong doing, and today they reopened their bars and did business at the old stands. Marion Cummins, though, first had to bring a letter to the mayor written by the minister whose sermon he heard, and it had to state that the guilty saloon keeper was at the services.

Jerry Steufel, Joseph Kolomone and Joseph Krober, who were placed in charge of Rev. John Smolley of Holy Trinity church, learned when Sunday comes and that the day is a day of rest. The minister explained to them very carefully that they must obey the mayor and that their saloons must not be opened until Monday morning.

Dorando Again Defeats Hayes.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—About 6,000 persons in Recreation park Sunday saw a Marthon race, which was won by Dorando. He beat Hayes by sixty yards. The track was ten laps to the mile, and the time was 2 hours 41 minutes and 35 seconds. Hayes ran a good race, but after the fifteenth mile he tried several sprints which weakened him. Hayes led most of the way, Dorando being contented to trail him closely.

Asleep For Two Weeks.

Toledo, O., Jan. 31.—Physicians and detectives are mystified over the peculiar condition in which J. F. Smithwick, a wealthy cotton merchant of South Creek, N. C., has remained for two weeks at the Star hotel here.

During his strange sleep, which began sixteen days ago, Smithwick has not spoken more than a dozen words, and at all times he seems to be unconscious. It was supposed when Smithwick was found unconscious in his room that he was the victim of gas.

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.

No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purgative tablets, etc., and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen, then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not new, only we are trying to find new friends for it.

A. A. Feits, of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found his cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through neighbors or friends; others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from a stomach, liver or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. If you will send your name and address he will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. If it proves itself as he claims then continue the treatment by buying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist, as all of them sell it. Old people, like children, should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouched for with the U. S. government. Also, though a free bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are always guaranteed from the regular bottles bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free test bottle today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

JUDGE AND MRS. FORD BOTH WEPT

Tear Spilling Scenes at Trial of Latter.

Cincinnati, Feb. 3.—At one stage of the trial Wednesday of Mrs. Jeanette Ford, charged with attempting to blackmail C. L. Warriner, defaulting Big Four railroad treasurer, Judge Swing burst into tears. This was when he reversed his decisions of Tuesday in which he had ordered Prosecuting Attorney Hunt to produce a transcript of the evidence given by Warriner before the grand jury. Prosecutor Hunt declared that the names of other persons would be involved in such a procedure, and this declaration of the prosecutor, of course, again set tongues wagging.

Wednesday morning, Judge Swing promptly ordered the trial to proceed, taking no account of the apparent liability for contempt of the prosecutor and stating that the only precedent he could discover was a similar case now pending in the Ohio supreme court, which would be decided in a few days.

Mrs. Ford herself burst into tears at another stage. This was when it was intimated that E. S. Cooke, a former employe in the office with Warriner, had special reasons to support her little daughter, Jeannette.

In his cross-examination, in the afternoon, Warriner said that he would estimate that he had given to the family of Cook every bit as much money as he had given to Mrs. Ford.

"I have certainly given them," he said, "from $800 to $1,000 a month during the past five years."

HEIKE MAKES CLAIM.

Says He Is Immune Because Forced to Incriminate Himself.

New York, Feb. 3.—Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, appeared before Judge Martin in the United States circuit court Wednesday and claimed immunity from prosecution on the indictment charging him and five other employes of the sugar trust with conspiracy to defraud the government.

Through his counsel, John B. Stanchfield, Heike entered a plea, alleging that he had been called by United States District Attorney Wise to testify before the grand jury in an interstate commerce proceeding, and that he had been compelled to answer questions which incriminated him. Henry L. Stimson, special United States counsel, filed a replication which stated that Heike's plea was virtually a confession of guilt, and that the government was ready to go to trial on the issue as to whether Heike was immune.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Two general appropriation bills, one providing for the army and the other for urgent deficiencies, were passed by the senate Wednesday.

Vice President Sherman announced the appointment of Senator W. E. Purcell (N. D.) as a member of the joint congress committee to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, filling a vacancy occasion by the resignation of Senator Paynter (Ky.).

The senate passed a bill coming from the house providing that all government obligations should hereafter be payable, principal and interest, in gold.

ON TRIAL FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Case of Dr. Fritch For Causing Mabel Millman's Death.

CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Defendant Will Not Likely Take Stand—Line of Questioning of His Attorney Brings Out This Fact. Many Men Called as Jurors Had Fixed Opinions.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3. After many postponements, the trial of Dr. George A. Fritch, charged with having caused the death of Mabel Millman, was finally begun before Judge Phelan, in the recorder's court, yesterday morning.

It is probable that Dr. Fritch will not take the stand in an effort to prove himself innocent of manslaughter, the charge named in the warrant. This became apparent yesterday afternoon, when Attorney Frank T. Lodge, counsel for Dr. Fritch, examined several prospective jurors.

Nearly every man who appeared to have any chance of remaining in the jury box through the trial was closely questioned by Lodge in regard to his attitude towards a defendant who exercised his constitutional right and declined to appear as a witness.

Six of the dozen jurors of the regular panel called declared that they had fixed opinions as to the physician's guilt or innocence. All asserted that it would require some real convincing evidence to change their views.

Why He Doesn't Favor Wenger.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3.—Governor Warner, when asked as to whether he would take any further action in the Wenger matter at Jackson, said he will do nothing more at present. "I voted against Wenger because his term is out, and I did not feel like re-electing a man who is under indictment. McGurrin was my choice, but when I saw that he could not be named I voted for several other candidates."

Despondent Man Cuts Own Throat.

Corunna, Mich., Feb. 3.—Despondent through worry over the sale of his farm, which had been his home since boyhood, Fred Kuegle, aged thirty and single, left his brother's house at 4 o'clock in the morning, went out behind the barn and cut his throat with a pocketknife. His brother missed him and followed, to meet Kuegle staggering toward him in a stream of blood. Kuegle fell at his brother's feet and was carried into the house He will die.

Candidate to Succeed Himself.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3.—Frederic C. Martindale has officially announced that he would be a candidate to succeed himself as secretary of state, thereby dispelling the rumors to the effect that he would enter the race for the governorship.

PREDICTS A PANIC.

High Prices Is Fore-runner of Such, Says Yale Professor.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 3.—According to the prophecy made by Irving Fisher, professor of political economy at Yale, to his students, the present rise in prices in this country is a forerunner of a disastrous panic.

He said in part:

"We are headed exactly toward a financial and industrial panic. Prices are rising with amazing rapidity, and the chief cause is the increase in gold. Within the past few years the discovery of gold in Africa, Alaska, Australia and parts of the United States has fairly glutted the market.

"We had asmall panic in 1907, and there was a quick recovery because of a timely influx of still more gold. Present conditions show that another is due in a few years. One cannot tell just when it will come."

PARISIANS GET ANOTHER SCARE

Rain and Snow Bring Back Flood Fears.

NO REAL GROUND FOR ALARM

Underground Railway Resuming Operations—Suburbanites Still Suffering, Save For Lack of Food—Police Forbid Throwing of Confetti During Carnival Next Week.

Paris, Feb. 3.—Rain and snow fell for several hours Wednesday, reawakening the flood fears of the Parisians. There is as yet, however, no real ground for alarm. The floods continue to subside. Communications are being restored on all sides within the city, although much still remains to be done. It is impossible to say when the D'Orsay and Invalides stations will be reopened. They will need complete renovation.

Section after section of the underground railway is reopening, but it will perhaps be six weeks before the whole line can be used. The other railways, except the Northson, are still much disorganized. The telegraph lines are yet in poor shape.

Still Distress in Suburbs.

Except for the distribution of food, the distress in the suburbs is still unrelieved. The water there is still deep in the houses and factories. Access from Paris is also very difficult.

The prefect of police has forbidden the throwing of confetti during the carnival celebrations next week, lest it block the sewers. Anybody who has seen the amazing quantities of confetti strewn in fete times on the boulevards and left to be washed into the drains by scavangers will not wonder at the police order. Some of the newspapers are urging that the carnival celebrations be abandoned, and that the money ordinarily spent on them be devoted to the sufferers.

The greatest energy is being shown by the health department with the view to forestalling an epidemic. Many tons of disinfectants have been distributed already, and the work continues ceaselessly.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—Emperor William has donated $5,000 to the fund for the relief of the French sufferers.

Decide Racing Dates.

New York, Feb. 3.—The stewards of the Jockey club will meet today and may decide upon a tentative schedule of racing dates for this year. It was said that the schedule would be so arranged that there would be no friction or conflict and that single meetings would be allotted to Brighton, Saratoga and Empire City to cover more than fifty days in July and August. But whether the season will open on April 15 or about May 1 will not be known until the schedule is handed to the newspapers.

Gifts For Seven Institutions.

New York, Feb. 3.—Gifts for seven institutions amounting to $400,000 were announced Wednesday at the seventh annual meeting of the General Education board, held at the office of the chairman, Frederick T. Gates. All these gifts are from the Rockefeller fund, and they are all conditional. Although over forty applications were received by the board from various colleges, only seven were granted. Thorough investigation is made into every application, and in every case a secretary of the board visits the institution.

"Bug" Holiday Is Dying.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 3.—"Bug" Holiday, crack outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds in former years, is dying at his home, 933 Central avenue. For years he was one of the most sensational outfielders in the National league. Three years ago, Holiday was stricken, and since that time he has been for the most part confined to his bed.

CATASTROPHE IN MEXICAN MINE

Sixty-eight Known Dead Owing to Gas Explosion.

MINER'S CIGARETTE THE CAUSE

Mexicans and Japanese Victims of Accident in Coal Mine at Esperanzas, Mex.—Rescue Party Goes to Third Level Before Finding Dead—Were There Scattered About.

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 3.—Dispatches received here say that sixty-eight men were killed and six others injured in a mine explosion at Les Esperantes, Mex.

The explosion occurred in the No. 3 shaft of the coal mine of the Esperanzas Mining company and is attributed to the ignition of gas from the flame of a miner's cigarette, who was smoking contrary to the rules.

The miners, consisting principally of Mexicans and Japanese, had assumed their places in the workings shortly after 7 o'clock. About 8:30 o'clock those at work above ground heard a loud explosion, and almost instantly a vast cloud of smoke and dust shot from the mouth of the shaft.

Assistance was immediately forthcoming, and as soon as the air in the shaft could be purified sufficiently to permit rescuers to descend many volunteers were ready to risk their lives in an endeavor to succor their stricken brothers below.

A cage was immediately sent down, followed later by two others, all loaded. When the cages descended and the men had made an examination of the first and second levels everything was found to be intact, and, beyond being frightened, the men working in these levels were safe. They were brought to the top as rapidly as the cages could be loaded.

The rescue party went down to the third level and, as soon as the air could be sufficiently cleared, entered the shafts in search of the dead. Scattered about in various positions they found the bodies of the men, suffocated, their faces indicating in many instances the hopeless fight they had waged.

TO SOUTH POLE.

Peary Encourages Such Expedition. Would Loan Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 3.—An expedition to discover the South Pole was suggested by Commander Peary, the Arctic explorer, in a speech Tuesday night before the National Geographic society, at a dinner given by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell. Commander Peary will not take an active part in the expedition, but will act in an advisory capacity. The dinner was given to the board of managers of the society.

Commander Peary suggested, on behalf of the Peary Arctic club, that the club and the society fit out a joint expedition to reach the South Pole. The Peary Arctic club, he said, would contribute the steamer Roosevelt, which he used in his trip to the North Pole. This offer was contingent on raising the first $50,000 toward the expedition by the society. All expenses above $50,000 were to be divided equally between the club and the society, and Mr. Peary estimated that it would cost between $75,000 and $100,000 to finance the expedition. The proposed expedition would start next fall and reach Coates land about March, 1911. Coates land is that part of the Antarctic continent directly opposite Cape Royds, the base of the British South Pole expedition. The two camps would be about 2,000 miles apart and approximately the same distance from the pole. It is estimated that the expedition would reach the South Pole about Dec. 31, 1911.

The Roosevelt is suited for the work, says Peary.

BEWARE OF CATARRH

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.
Sold by druggists, 75c.

VERIFY IT

The Proof is in Tecumseh Almost at Your Door.

The public statement of a Tecumseh citizen is in itself strong proof for Tecumseh people, but confirmation strengthens the evidence.

Here is a Tecumseh citizen who testified years ago that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved sick kidneys and now states the cure was permanent. Can any sufferer from kidney ills ask better proof? You can investigate. The case is right at home.

William C. Witherell, W. Potawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has convinced me that they are an absolutely reliable kidney remedy. I publicly recommended them through the local papers in return for the relief I received from backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble through their use. I seldom have need of a kidney remedy now, but I still keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house all the time. I know of several persons who have used this remedy at my suggestion with the best of results." For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

THE PURSUIT OF SALLY

And the New Professor in the Woman's College.

By LOUISE OSBORN.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

"They'll never think of looking for us here in the grove at this time," Sally Purdon looked anxiously over her shoulder with less confidence than her words implied.

"But what if they don't find us?" asked Julia breathlessly, trying to keep pace with her companion. "If we aren't able to get back to the village in time for the dinner that won't help us very much."

"We'll manage to get back all right," said Sally, looking critically through the trees at the fading light of the autumn sun. "It will be dark enough soon for us to make a dash out through the woods and cornfields, across one of the farms, and from there we can get to the village from the upper end. The sophomores won't expect us in that direction."

"Quick!" Sally had suddenly changed the tone of her voice and was crouching with an arm around her companion behind a clump of laurel bushes. "They're in the grove," she whispered. "Lie flat and don't breathe!"

"Oh, dear!" whispered Julia as the sharp twigs scratched her face, but Sally's palm, clapped suddenly over her mouth, cut her complaints short.

The sound of hurried footsteps on the dead leaves and whispering voices came nearer. "They're in here somewhere," said one. "We must get Sally anyway." The footsteps suddenly ceased within a few feet of the crouching freshmen.

Sally, with one hand still held firmly over her companion's mouth, waited with every sense alert.

"They've circled us," whispered one, and the sound of the crumpling leaves announced at least a temporary relief for the freshman. When the sounds were lost in the distance Sally crawled carefully from the bushes, dragging her friend, limp and distracted, with her.

"I can't move a step," Julia begged. "I'm so dreadfully frightened."

"Fiddlesticks, Julia," said Sally, with scorn. "Why, if the girls had known you were such a baby they would never have elected you vice president."

"Oh, I wish they hadn't. It's dreadful. Do they steal just the officers?"

"Of course. Just me and you and the treasurer and the secretary," Sally explained. "You ought to be proud to be worth stealing. Let's make a dash for the farm now before they come back." Argument having failed, Sally tried to carry her friend by main force. "Quick!" she urged. "They're coming."

The returning footsteps only made the timid vice president more stolid. "I can't move!" she moaned.

Suddenly the figure of a sophomore sprang from behind the shadows of the trees. Julia started to scream.

"Silence!" commanded the sophomore in mock solemnity.

The plucky little freshman president let go her hold on her helpless friend, dodged the attempted grasp of a second sophomore who had appeared on the scene and ran with a sure foot and a steady pulse through the dark grove toward the farm and the open country beyond. She leaped skillfully over a fence, dashed down a country lane, crept under a hedge and found herself on the open highway that led to the village.

It was now about 6 o'clock, and she had half an hour to make her way through the ranks and traps of the vigilant sophomores to her expectant classmates awaiting her in gala attire at one of the village tea rooms. Freshmen presidents had evaded sophomores before and reached their class banquets, but they had been disguised as peddlers or smuggled in tied up in laundry bags or wrapped in burlaps and delivered from caterers' wagons hours before the banquet.

"I'll just have to trust to luck and my own muscle," thought Sally, with undaunted nerve, as she walked along the country road.

But when, as she rounded the last corner and turned into the village street, she heard the sound of quick footsteps behind the hedge at her side she felt a fatiguing sense of defeat.

"There she is," she heard some one call, and Sally made a sudden cut across the street and dashed through the campus gate into the protecting shadow of one of the college buildings. Safe for a moment, she crouched along the wall to the corner of the building. Then, with head bent forward, she made another quick turn and rushed headlong into—

With a quick sense of relief it came to her that sophomores didn't wear overcoats. It was only a professor.

"Excuse me," she said, trying to speak as if butting head first into professors was an everyday occurrence.

"Sally!" he said, and for a moment the plucky freshman president lost her pluck and forgot all about the pursuing sophomores and the expectant classmates.

"Stephen Dray," she gasped, "how could you?"

"How could I what? Didn't you know I was here?" The man stood before her in bewilderment.

"How could I? Why, I didn't even know that you knew I was here," she stammered, trying to make herself clear. "Oh, you are the most unreasonable man in the world. Did you come today?"

"Come today, Sally! Why, I'm a professor here. I thought I'd try to bury myself here with my books and forget."

"Oh," said Sally in surprise, "and I came here to get my degree." She wrung her hands with impatience. "Stephen, you are so inconsiderate. You ought to have known that I'd want to come here to college. And I was having such a nice time, and now you're going to spoil it all. Why will you be so persistent?"

"You can jolly well change your mind about my persistence, Sally. Why"—he clutched his hands helplessly at his side—"why, Sally, I—I shan't even speak to you—only, of course, as an instructor."

"An instructor? Stephen, are you really an instructor?" Sally laughed a funny little laugh that made Stephen wince. "Well, I'm sure I beg your pardon, Mr. Instructor, for butting into you."

The sound of the exasperating sophomores urged Sally on. "Goodby, Stephen," she said, but Stephen detained her with an outstretched hand.

"Just once, Sally"— he began. "Do you want me to chuck the whole thing and get away?"

"Why, no; of course not!" she assured him, preoccupied with the sound of the approaching voices. She hurried past him and crouched down. Then, with a sudden determination, she whispered, "Stephen!"

He turned and came back.

"Help me, Stephen," Sally whispered, rising to her feet. "They're after me—the sophomores. You're not an instructor now; you're just Stephen. Please"—her hands clutched his arm convulsively—"please get me to the banquet, and I'll"—

Stephen, mindful of his own not far distant college days, caught the situation in a flash. "Get down!" he commanded. "Lie as flat as you can." Sally obeyed, and Stephen threw his ample overcoat over her. Then, bending down, he began to examine the bark of a tree a few feet away.

The sophomores, completely mystified by the sudden disappearance of their prey and not daring to make known the object of their quest to a professor, hurried by. "I thought he was the new English instructor," Stephen heard one of the sophomores exclaim, "but he seems to be doing botany experiments."

Two minutes later Stephen left the tree and came cautiously over to Sally. "I guess I can dash down to the tea room now," suggested Sally from beneath the coat.

Stephen had other plans. "Here!" he ordered, lifting her up and tucking her hands into the sleeves of the overcoat. "Can you tie your hair down so that it will go into my hat?" And, while Sally worked with sure fingers pinning down her disheveled hair, the instructor began unlacing his heavy boots.

"The coat is long enough to cover your dress, and the collar turned up will come to your ears, and the hat pulled down will cover your forehead. Sit down a second while I fasten these over your shoes. You can walk a little way with the two pairs, I fancy."

The shoes fastened and the hat drawn down, Sally jumped to her feet with a thrill of victory, and, without stopping to consider the plight of the bootless Stephen, hurried bravely on to the banquet and slouched past the exasperated sophomores like some weary tramp.

The next day curiosity was rife. "How on earth did Sally Purdon evade the sophomores?" asked the upper class men, and the freshmen, knowing the manner of her disguise, asked in vain for the name of the one who furnished her forth so generously. "It was a miracle," Sally told them, with a twinkle in her eye that only increased their curiosity.

Two days later Sally encountered Stephen in the campus.

"Stephen," she exclaimed, "it was the biggest freshman triumph in years." She laughed with enthusiasm and gratitude. "But I don't just know how to get your things back again. Perhaps I could drop them out of my window some night and"—

"Oh, never mind that," interrupted Stephen, disregarding the fact that he was wearing a borrowed hat and shivering for the want of a coat. "What I want to know is what you started to say you'd do if I saw you through."

"Oh!" gasped Sally in alarm. "Didn't you know? And maybe you wouldn't have done it if you had known."

"Sally Purdon," Stephen asked almost severely, "will you marry me or won't you?"

"Stephen Dray," said Sally, trying to mitate his tone, "I will."

Great Forests.

Canada owns a forest larger in area than the whole of England, Scotland and Wales all put together. The greatest length of Britain is 608 miles, and its greatest width 325 miles, while a Canadian forest in the Hudson bay and Labrador region is 1,000 by 1,700 miles in extent. Another big forest stretches from Alaska to Washington state. The Amazon basin, South America, comprises about 2,100 by 1,300 miles of forest, while Central Africa has a forest region 3,000 miles from north to south and of unknown width from east to west, and the pine, larch and cedar forests of Siberia are 3,000 by 1,000 miles in extent.
